Dairy Bowl Team Is Tops

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County 4-H Dairy Bowl team is now the top in the state with a recent win over 30 other teams in a state-wide competition held at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association convention in State College.

Kenneth Winebark, extension agent, said the team now represents Pennsylvania and will advance to a national competition this summer in South Carolina.

Dairy Bowl competitions test participants knowledge of all aspects of the dairy industry, from production to marketing.

The Lebanon team, both the senior and junior teams have been performing strongly over the last two years, Winebark said. Last year, both the senior and the junior teams were second in the state. This year, the senior team took first and the junior team took second.

On the senior team are David Lentz, of Lebanon, Duane Nolt, Richland, Rebecca Sonnen, Richland, and Terry Hill, of Lebanon.

The junior team consists of Steve Bollinger, of Kleinfeltersville, Stephanie Wagner, Myerstown, Karen Lentz, of Lebanon, and Corwin Bombgardner, of Ono.

Morris Honored At Maryland Holstein Banquet

Maryland Correspondent

BEL AIR, MD. — Nearly 500 holstein breeders and friends attended the annual banquet of the Maryland Holstein Association at McComas Hall. The highlight of the evening was honoring John and Martha Morris for their many years of service. President Marlin Martin gave a moving tribute, detailing the many services provided to the organization by John and Martha. Everyone gave them a standing ovation and applause of several minutes, after which the Holstein Association presented the couple with a unique quilt designed by Eva Martin. The quilt had a definite holstein theme with alternating patches of holstein cows that said we love holsteins. The quilt was inscribed with the words "In appreciation for your many years of dedicated service."

John Morris became involved with the Holstein Association in 1946 as a fieldman serving the southeast territory of which Maryland was a part. He became Dairy Extension Specialist at the University of Maryland in 1950. Morris trained 26 4-H Dairy Judging Teams of which 13 won National Contests. He accompanied three of the teams to the International Contest in England and all three won the Gold Cup. He became the secretary of the Maryland Holstein Association on July 1, 1977, and became treasurer February 28, 1984. During his years of service to this organization, he only missed one board meeting and one annual meeting. John is very active in his church, Christ Reformed United Church of Christ. He is currently chairman of the congregation. Honors received include, Professor Emeritus of the University of Maryland; Honorary American Farmer from National FFA; State 4-H Alumni Award;

Salmonella Threatens Poultry Industry

Editor's note: Salmonella enteritidis (SE), a bacteria present in poultry that can be transmitted to eggs, remains the number one problem facing the layer industry. Even though many of the large Pennsylvania commercial breeder flocks — numbering more than 800 — are effectively screening for SE, there are thousands of "backyard" flocks operated by small farms that may not be aware of the SE problem and how to control it. These smaller flocks could in fact be causing some human SE outbreaks, especially in Lancaster County, the number one egg producing county in the U.S. Now that SE testing is mandatory, what should farmers be doing?

This is the first article in a two-part series examining what SE is and what is being done to stop the spread of SE.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Salmonella. The word brings shudders to egg producers throughout the country. It's a disease that continues to take its toll on hens, livestock — even humans.

Each year, more is known about the disease. Recently, Frank Young, FDA chief, warned that microbes in meat and poultry products are perhaps the biggest food

Avoid Salmonellosis With Proper Precautions

Consumers can protect themselves from salmonellosis, a flu-like disease caused by salmonella organisms in food by handling foods correctly, said Penn State food scientist Morris Mast.

Salmonella can cause a disease called salmonellosis, one of the most common types of foodborne illnesses. "It is not a new disease," said Mast. "It's probably been around as long as man has been on earth."

The disease can produce flu-like symptoms of fever, diarrhea, and vomiting 12 to 36 hours after eating and can last 2 to 7 days. Infants, the elderly, and people with weakened resistance to infection are most frequently affected by salmonellosis.

Examples of foods that provide a favorable environment for salmonellae to grow include poultry, meats, eggs, dairy products, and seafood. The bacteria will grow only if foods are at a temperature between 45 and 115 degrees Fahrenheit.

"But even if salmonellae are present in foods, consumers won't suffer from salmonellosis if they cook and handle the food properly," said Mast.

"Commercial pasteurization of milk and liquid eggs destroys the bacteria," he said. "Heating other foods, such as meat and poultry, to an internal temperature of 155

Four-H: Symbol Of Courage

Editor's Note: From March 11 to 17, 4-H members will celebrate Pennsylvania 4-H Week. The 4-H youth education program began 76 years ago in Mercer County and quickly spread to every corner of the state, but 4-H had its roots many years before that. Lois Parker of the Chester County 4-H Center Board is compiling a history of 4-H. A segment of her research follows.

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.)— During the 1800's the South's economy was ruled by the kingdom of cotton. When this monarchy was struck by a colossal tragedy, 4-H was born.

In 1982, the cotton boll weevil from Mexico began its march across the South's cotton fields. In its wake, it left nothing but failed cotton crops.

When Texas cotton fields were hard hit in 1903, the United States Department of Agriculture sent

Performance Begins Here

Inside Each Bag of Funk's G-Hybrids and Hoffman Soybeans

Performance. That's the bottom line. Performance that's measured by such characteristics as standability, grain quality, disease resistance and, most important, yields.

You'll get that performance from Funk's G-Hybrids like G-4543, the top yielding hybrid in Delaware Performance Trials in 1986 and 1987 Or Funk's G-4626, one of the highest yielding varieties in southern Pennsylvania and Maryland during the past three years. Or from Hoffman soybeans like Hoffman 359, a leader in 1987 Maryland trials in Queenstown and Quantico.

OPINION

Mixed Signals

Achieving the goals of environmental protection and continued agricultural productivity and profitability will require a significant review of current agricultural and environmental policies, according to a report issued recently by the University of Minnesota.

The report, "Agricultural Competitiveness, Farm Fertilizer and Chemical Use, and Environmental Quality," was published by the University of Minnesota's Center for International Food and Agricultural Policy. It examines the factors that influence farm-management practices and input use.

Increased attention to the effects of agricultural practices on environmental quality is ushering in a new era of environmental laws affecting agricultural practices, but these new requirements frequently appear to be at odds with existing farm programs and policies, researchers said.

After reviewing today's agricultural and environmental issues, the report concludes that "improved environmental quality need not be opposed to economic competitiveness."

According to the study, as reported in the February issue of Cargill Bulletin, attempts to address the environmental and agricultural issues often become polarized around two claims. One, continued farm fertilizer and chemical use will be "environmentally catastrophic. Or two, total elimination of input use would be "economically disastrous."

The researchers believe that neither claim is realistic nor likely to occur. Authors C. Ford Runge, Robert D. Munson, Ed Lotterman and Jared Creason argue that "reducing the adverse effects of farming on the environment need not be opposed to economic competitiveness."

They suggest that the on-going development of more beneficial and efficient agricultural chemicals will reduce the adverse environmental effects caused by agriculture. Their report attempts to lay the groundwork for better understanding of alternative public policies and private practices that can maintain the farmer's productive edge while improving environmental quality.

Often, farmers need to respond to conflicting signals from the market place, government policies and environmental regulations.

"The key to maintaining a competitive agricultural sector, while also minimizing negative environmental impacts, is finding the right balance among these signals," the report said.

Because crop production is filled with uncertainties and risk, government programs have evolved to support the price of basic farm commodities. The study points out that the unfortunate side effects of conflicting policies include specialization in subsidized crops, incentives to boost yields and the acres planted to those crops, often at the expense of crop rotation and soil conservation. Tax incentives have encouraged investments in production methods that intensify chemical and other input use.

The decision to use fertilizers and chemical inputs, the report states, includes the weighing and choosing among a variety of factors, including market prices, government subsidies, tax incentives, environmental regulations, fertilizer and chemical marketing and public-sector research recommendations.

The report concludes that changing agricultural policy to send a clearer set of signals would not, in itself, solve all the environmental problems affecting agriculture, but it would eliminate confusion and remove many barriers to sound environmental practices.

But government policies and on-farm decision are closely related. Improved management practices will require clearer signals from federal farm policymakers and a renewed commitment from producers to practice careful and precise farming methods that protect environmental quality.

We believe that changes in farm policy designed to encourage, rather than discourage, environmentally sound farming practices could help bring about a new mode of "high precision" farming that is highly productive and environmentally sound.

To Control Wild Garlic

We may like onions on our hamburgers and in other foods, but very few of us like onion-flavored milk. This can easily happen on dairy farms where wild garlic plants are allowed to grow. Many pastures are infested with wild garlic. One of the best times to start control measures on this weed is early in the spring when the young plants are 4 to 8 inches high. An application of 2,4-D will knock them down. Follow the label for directions. When this is applied around the middle to latter part of March, little damage is done to any legume in the area. If garlic plants are allowed to mature each year, the pasture area will become so contaminated that dairy cows cannot utilize the grass.

To Be Concerned With Heifer Housing

Heifer housing plans should consider heifer's needs and management tasks to be performed at various stages of their life cycle, according to Glenn Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent. Also consider the handling and storage of feed and manure, labor efficiency, costs and convenience.

Calves can be housed in individual hutches and pens, away from other cattle and protected from the manure and air of older cattle.

Open front buildings with bedded packs can provide adequate and economical housing and manure storage.

At 4 to 6 months of age, calves are better able to adjust to free stalls and to Virginia style heifer barns. These barns are more costly, but they require little to no bedding. However, alleys need to be scraped regularly and provisions for manure storage are needed.

Using slatted pits in the alleys eliminates the need to scrape alleys, and provides some needed manure storage.

To Be Aware That A Popular Herbicide Will Be Restricted Use Chemical In 1991

According to Robert Anderson, Extension Agronomy Agent, new restrictions from the Environmental Protection Agency will set new guidelines for one of agriculture's most heavily used pesticide, Atrazine. Atrazine which forms the basis of most corn herbicide programs throughout the country will fall under new use guidelines in 1991. Applicators must be certified private applicators or commercial applicators to purchase and apply Atrazine starting next year. In addition, protective clothing must be worn when handling the material. Areas within 50 feet of wells or sink holes will be banned as locations for mixing, loading or applying Atrazine under the new restrictions.

Farmers do favor the protection of groundwater from agricultural chemicals, according to recent studies. An American Farmland Trust survey found that farmers surveyed in the Midwest would favor penalties for excessive pesticide use.

To Practice Safety Around Manure Pits

Many manure pits will be cleaned out at this time of year for field application. This by-product of the livestock and dairy business is very useful as fertilizer. However, the pit can be a safety hazard because of poisonous and explosive gases. When the mixture is agitated in order to be removed, these gases are more plentiful and much more dangerous. Good ventilation above the pit is very important. Also, anyone who goes down in the empty pit should be wearing a gas mask. These gases are dangerous and can be fatal to both humans and animals. We urge all farmers to caution their employees of this potential danger.

If the drop in the M. and W. price of 99• per cwt. between December 1989 and January 1990 was enough to swallow, then area dairy farmers should really choke when they hear the February M. and W. amount of $12.22, which is $1.74 per cwt. less than January's price. This means in two

DIFFERENT RULES

March 11, 1990

Background Scripture:
John 16.
Devotional Reading:
John 16:1-11.

A few years ago, while we were in Naples, Italy, we had a few close shaves while we were driving around the city. As a matter of fact, we even had some narrow escapes after we had turned in our rental car and were on foot. When we spoke of this to the manager of our hotel, he smiled and said, "When in Naples, you must understand that a red light here does not mean stop and a green light does not mean go. The Neapolitan drives by rules all his own."

Despite the fact that almost the whole world abides by certain basic traffic rules and standards doesn't seem to matter in Naples. In a sense, that must be true of the Christian, too — not in traffic matters, of course, but in the way we operate in the world. Certain words and symbols must have a different meaning for us than the rest of the world, not because we want to be different, but because, until the whole world is in step with God's plan and purpose, we have to be.

BY THE SWORD

For example, take the commonly-held belief that truth must be imposed by force. Most of the wars our world has known have been fought on that presumption. The bloody Crusades were fought for the purpose of defending the faith from the heresy of Islam. (Of course, there were a lot of other less noble motivations, too.) The fallacy in this idea is prefigured in Jesus' words to his disciples: "They will put you out of the synagogues; indeed the hour is coming when whoever kills you will think he is offering service to God" (16:2).

Lots of people have thought that they were "offering service to God" by killing and maiming others "for the faith." These people are sincere, but horribly mistaken! Why do they do this? "And they will do this because they have not known the Father, nor me" (15:3). If you really know God in Christ, you will know you do not need to defend his honor. Just as vengeance belongs to God alone, so does the defense of faith. We are called by Christ, not to defend the faith, but to live it and that will be defense enough.

OUR ADVANTAGE

Another commonly held concept is that it would be better if Christ were still physically present in this world. Many of us tend to look at his physical "absence" as an unfortunate reality with which we have to deal. But Jesus tells his disciples, "Nevertheless I tell you the truth: it is to your advantage that I go away..." (16:7a). The physical absence of Christ is not something to regret, but rather a cause for rejoicing. By leaving us physically, Christ has been freed of all the limitations of the physical body and can now be with every Christian everywhere: "For if I do not go away, the Counselor will not come to you; but if I go, I will send him to you."

The world's concept of "defeat" and "victory" cannot be normative for Christians either. At this moment, it would seem that drugs, official corruption, sexual immorality, and materialism are "winning" and that the churches with their declining memberships and influence are "losing." But Christ bids us take a different perspective: "In the world you have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world" (16:33).

Lapp's Barn Equipment Has Open House

WHITE HORSE (Lancaster Co.)—"The cow is the most remarkable thing that walks on this earth," said Dr. Ronald Dubbe. "This cow was designed to produce milk suffcient for a calf--about 1800 lbs. of milk per year. But we have this cow that is now genetically capable of giving 18,000 lbs. of milk and more. So, our cows work at more than 10 times their natural capacity. This puts stress on us as dairymen--stewards of the cow--to properly care for that production capacity without getting into trouble."

Dubbe made his remarks at Lapp's Barn Equipment open house in support of the Total Mixed Ration (TMR) method of feeding cows.

"TMR feeds the cow the way she was meant to be fed," Dubbe said. "It avoids problems with individual ingredients and helps the cow to consume all the nutrients she needs to produce milk."

On the subject of BST, Dubbe thinks it will be approved and used. But he believes in some herds it may produce a negative effect.

"Many herds have a cap placed on their production by some aspect of management," Dubbe said.

Feeding High Producing Cows . . .

BY BARRY J. STEEVENS
Missouri Dairy News

The most limiting nutrient in feeding high producing dairy herds is always energy. Many of the dairy cows will be in a negative energy balance the first part of lactation. Here are a few tips to keep in mind in balancing rations for the high producing cow.

Peak milk production normally occurs at about 45 to 70 days after calving. Maximum dry matter intake lags behind peak milk output by four to eight weeks. Each pound of additional dry matter consumed can increase milk yield 1.6 to 2.4 pounds, depending upon stage of lactation and milk yield. For each pound increase in peak milk yield, total production over the full lactation will increase 200 to 225 pounds milk.

Dairy cows can easily be converting 1 to 1½ pound body fat to milk production per day in early lactation. As body fat has no protein, additional ration protein is required. Body condition scoring is very helpful in managing body weight gain during the latter part of lactation to prepare the cow for the subsequent lactation. Ideally, cows should have a condition score of 3.8/5.0 at calving.

First lactation heifers typically drop 6 percent in milk yield every 30 days following peak milk while older cows drop 9 percent every 30 days.

Maximum dry matter intake is achieved with an upper limit of 45 percent ration moisture (do not get total ration over 45 percent moisture).

Optimum rumen fermentation can be more easily achieved with the total mixed ration. Greater dry matter intakes are achieved with increased feeding frequency; that is, 3 times versus 2 times per day.

Dairy cows producing an excess of 100 pounds milk per day will easily be consuming between 4 to 5 percent body weight dry matter intake per day. A 1300-pound cow can easily consume 50 to 60 pounds dry matter daily.

. . . One Cow's Opinion

RON BELYEA
Missouri Dairy News

Hi. My name is Profet, and I recently spent a weekend with my low producing bovine cousins.

It was a disaster.

First thing that happened was that they gave me breakfast. Now, I am used to eating 75 lbs. of dry matter, barely enough to support 150 lbs. of milk and my skinny 1300-lb. frame. You know what they gave me? Twenty pounds of grass mulch from a big bale and 40 lbs. of some nasty corn-concoction from a fancy bag. I starved all day, and the milk pail showed it that night, too. If that wasn't bad enough, I had this stomach ache bigtime. Had to eat a wheelbarrow of alka-seltzer and still didn't feel very well.

We had to have a serious discussion. I told them: "Look, I can't get by on the tiny amounts you been putting on my plate." They were horrified. "After all," they said, "we've been feeding your cousins like this since the thirties." I said, "It shows." Then they asked the big question: "What would you like?"

I overwhelmed them with: 50 lbs. corn silage; 25 lbs. good alfalfa hay; 25 lbs. corn; 10 lbs. soybean meal; 6 lbs. whole cottonseeds; 5 lbs. distillers grains... plus minerals and vitamins.

I told them that I had to have my feeds all mixed together and on my plate all the time so I would eat as much and as often as I wanted. They said that mixing feeds was too much work and, besides, if humans don't mix peas, potatoes, ice cream and relish together, why should we? I said: "Do humans stand on all fours when they eat?"

Then they said, "You can't eat that much anyhow."

I said: "Read my lips and watch my hips."

They said, "We don't have these kinds of feeds."

I said, "I know someone who does."

They said, "It will cost a lot of money."

I said, "So does lost production."

I left my cousin's place after another day of starvation and ridicule. They still think I was kidding them about my feed bag. They didn't understand what a high producer really needs, and I guess they never will.

My wimpy herdmates, listening to this woeful tale, had several reactions, the strongest of which was "stay home" and "stop being a snobby bossy." But, you know, I can't help thinking about maybe some day, after I grow up and mature a little more, I'll go back and visit them. This time I'll take my feed bag with me and show them how it's really done.

Purina Mills Holds Dairy Meeting

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.)—"You need to feed a cow according to how she is producing," said Larry Wile, dairy specialist, Purina Mills. "And that will still be true, even when BST comes on the market."

Speaking at the Purina Mills dairy nutrition management meeting here Thursday, Wile said that if BST takes a cow from 90 lbs. of milk to 100 lbs. of milk per day, you will feed her like a 100 lb. cow. There is not a lot of difference between the two cows.

In herd management, you need to be sure the cow's nutrient needs are actually consumed. Often the measurements are wrong or the feed that is refused by the cow gets shipped out to the heifers.

"We need to be sure the cow is eating what she should be eating," Wile said. "And energy still remains the ingredient we can't get enough of."

Dr. John Clark said that in the US, dairymen need to feed for maximum production. High milk production sometimes lowers the precentage of butterfat in the milk. But the profit is still greater in the higher milk producing cow.

Clark sited North Carlona data that showed 70 lbs. of milk at 3.6% butterfat was worth $5.74 less than 110lbs. at 3.1% butterfat. The data was based on $16 milk with a 13 cent butterfat differential.

In addition to feed ingredients, Clark listed other factors that affect milk composition. They are: calving patterns, disease, stress and body condition.

Randy Sipkema, health product specialist, discussed how the Purina yitiman feed products can help dairymen. Milk Pak N-S in a convenient pelleted feed is especially useful for the stress over calving. This feed helps prevent ketosis.

And the Purina Yeast Pak stimulates digestion and feed intake. "The injection of additional live bacteria into the rumen gets it charged up faster than waiting for nature to take its course," Sipkema said. "The vitiman products are not for continuous feeding, but for specific stresses."

The management meeting included a noon meal at the Plain and Fancy Restaurant.

"The most common lid is due to nutrition limitations. The genetics are there, but because of the manager, the cows keep hitting their heads against that production lid. With BST, the cows in some herds may hit their heads against that lid all the harder.

"We could indeed see some negative effects, if management does not have the ability to implement the factors necessary to allow that cow to produce more milk. A dairyman better use all the other management tools available before he starts to use BST."

Lapp's open house on March 7-9 featured a noon lunch on Thursday.

Farm Bill Dairy Proposals Promise Struggle

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

FREDERICK, MD. — A major dairy policy fight is shaping up between officials of the Bush administration, who would like to continue the price cutting policies of the 1985 farm bill for the next five years, and farmer interests led by the National Milk Producers Federation, which wants the new farm bill to take account of differences between the butterfat and solids-not-fat components of milk and avoid straight price cuts.

In his recently released proposal for a 1990 farm bill, Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter asked for "more flexibility" in adjusting the milk support price than was the case under previous bills. As they were under the 1985 farm bill, price adjustments would be triggered by projections of the amount of surplus dairy products bought by the government's Commodity Credit Corporation.

If projections call for an annual surplus of 5.0 to 7.5 billion pounds, Yeutter wants the authority to reduce the support price 25 to 50 cents. A projected surplus between 7.5 and 10 billion pounds would authorize a reduction of 50 to 75 cents. And a surplus estimated to be more than 10 billion pounds -- as occurred several times in the mid-1980s -- would mandate a $1 reduction.

The administration plan has the potential to reduce milk prices far faster than was the case under the 1985 farm bill, which stipulated cuts of just 50 cents when the projected surplus exceeded 5 billion pounds. Economists for the federation, the major lobbying group for most of the nation's dairy cooperatives, said implementation of the administration's proposal probably would drop the support price -- now at $10.10 a hundredweight -- to $8.10 by 1992.

Moreover, the administration's plan does not address the changes critics have advocated in the way potential surpluses are calculated. Under it, the U.S. Department of Agriculture would continue to count all CCC purchases as surplus, even when the cheese, butter or non-fat dry milk is used in government nutrition programs for the disadvantaged. And the calculation would continue to be on a butterfat basis rather than the total solids basis advocated by National Milk.

The latter consideration can make a big difference at times, such as the present, when the amount of surplus butterfat is far greater than the surplus of the other milk components. In reducing the support price 50 cents in January, for instance, Yeutter could point to a projected surplus of 8 billion pounds in 1990. However, USDA economists also estimated that the government would buy no more than 4.4 billion pounds on a total solids basis.

The differences in these numbers reflect the fact that the surplus is mostly of butterfat, not milk in general. To address this differential surplus, National Milk has developed what it's calling the "Component Adjustment Program" in its proposals for the 1990 farm bill. According to Dan Lauers, a lobbyist for the federation, the proposed program "would separate the balance for butterfat from the balance for nonfat solids." Although all of the details have yet to be worked out, the program would address component surpluses by setting up an assessment for farm production in excess of established bases. In the case of butterfat, the assessment would pay for the government to sell butter on the world market at prices below those paid by the CCC.

The National Milk plan is designed to give Congress an alternative to price cutting as a means of dealing with surplus milk production, Lauers said. In fact, a related federation proposal would establish a floor of $10.60 a hundredweight -- 50 cents above the current level -- for milk price supports. The support level would fluctuate above this floor in response to changes in the average all-milk price for the country as a whole.

Moreover, to deal with projections of major surplus of more than six percent on a total solids basis, the Secretary of Agriculture would be required to implement some type of inventory management under the federation plan. Such management, whether through a whole herd buyout, milk diversion or two-tiered pricing program, would supersede any CAP activity, Lauers said.

Since its introduction several weeks ago, the administration's dairy proposal has been widely criticized, but government observers caution it shouldn't be counted out of the new farm bill.

"We really think the fight is going to be between the administration's proposal and what the Congress is proposing or what we're proposing," Lauers said.

Salmonella Threatens

safety issue facing our country, "bigger than that of pesticide or drug residues," he said in an article in the July 1989 Egg Industry.

The 1982 Census of Agriculture showed that Pennsylvania ranked third in egg production in the U.S. The latest figures indicate that Lancaster County ranks first in Pennsylvania egg production, and first in the country, with more than 500 flocks out of more than 800 in the state.

Poultry producers are concerned over the associated business losses from Salmonella and are worried about the possibility of human illness from SE. In the June 1988 issue of Poultry Science, a USDA economist estimated that total medical and productivity losses associated with the infection are $1 billion per year.

Chief concern

At the 93rd annual meeting of the U.S. Annual Health Association in Las Vegas, Nevada, poultry issues were reviewed. Chief among the concerns, to poultry producers, marketers, and health officials alike, was the concern over Salmonella enteritidis (SE).

In an article in the January/February issue of Egg Industry, "increases in the isolation rates of SE have been noted throughout the country. A number of SE outbreaks in humans has implicated food vehicles such as eggs or foods made with raw Grade A shell eggs."

Egg Industry achknowledges the ominous presence of SE. Data collected at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Georgia, indicates that "SE continues to be a public health problem. More outbreaks have been reported in humans at presstime 1989 than in any previous year," according to the magazine.

Raw Grade A shell eggs have been implicated as the cause of the SE infection in humans. SE has also been found in a number of meat animals, including cattle, swine, ducks, turkeys, geese, and other animals.

Isolated bacteria

Where does SE come from? How does it originate?

"Salmonella" is a word coined after the scientist, D.F. Salmon, an American bacteriologist and chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, who isolated the bacteria in 1885. (See accompanying "basic answers" chart.) The name is applied to a certain class of pathogenic bacteria. There are more than 1,600 types of Salmonella, each broken down into separate classes.

"SE can be found in many species of domestic and wild animals and in an uncertain number of human carriers," said David Kradel, Penn State poultry extension veterinarian. "Food-associated illnesses caused by SE are most often associated with the use of raw or inadequately cooked product or gross mishandling of the food."

Kradel said that food-associated illness often results from "mishandling of the product between the time it is produced and the time it is eaten. This mishandling gives the relatively few bacteria that are normally present in raw food or that get there from an infected food handler or contaminated equipment the opportunity to rapidly multiply."

Ovaries of hens

One means of SE transmission, about which most experts agree, is through the ovaries and into the eggs. The organism, which may be present in the ovaries of hens, is transmitted through the egg-formation process. If present in the egg and not properly destroyed by pasteurization or adequate cooking, the SE can spread to humans.

"Most SE outbreaks occur during warm weather and this is believed to be caused by the temperature affect on the development of the organism," said Kradel.

Another suspected means of passing the bacteria includes feeding hens meat by-products contaminated by SE. But so far, SE has not been found in the meat by-products. SE infection may also be caused when the hens are explosed to an SE-contaminated environment. Other means, indicate experts, include worker contamination in the food preparation process, the egg washing and sanitizing process, and other processes.

"By and large, we are not going to eliminate SE," said Kradel. "The bacteria, as are other salmonella, are in the environment. SE and other bacteria compete with each other."

Kradel points out that, in 1983, when the avian influenza virus took its toll on Pennsylvania breeder stocks, the "cleaning out" (which destroyed all bacteria) that was conducted may have set the stage for the introduction and propagation of SE infections in flocks. According to Kradel, one theory is that, once the SE bacteria was allowed an "open arena" minus the competing bacteria, SE was able to freely develop.

Competitor bacteria

"We may have destroyed the competitor bacteria in flocks," said Kradel. "The avian influenza program may have set the environmental stage for SE to spread in the flocks."

In the Feb. 1 issue of Poultry Times, William A. Stappenbeck, manager of Baker Commodities Inc., spoke to members of the National Turkey Federation in San Diego.

"Salmonella contamination in rendered products comes mainly from recontamination," Stappenbeck said. It comes from cross traffic from raw material areas to finished product areas, poorly maintained equipment, spillage, poor bird and insect control, and dirty vehicles.

As indicated by Poultry Times, waste water can also carry the bacteria in meat by-product process plants. Water from washing meal-grinding equipment and conveyors caused cross-contamination. Stappenbeck's company found that employees were "returning contaminated floor sweepings to the milling system; insects (primarily cockroaches) were increasing; moisture and dust stuck to convey-

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Snyder County dairy farmer Shirley A. Womer has been appointed to a three-year term on the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's Commodity Marketing Board.

The Womer family farms 110 acres near Middleburg, including 36 registered Holsteins. Shirley Womer is also active in the state and national Holstein associations.

As a member of the PDPP Commodity Marketing Board, Womer will help administer a $1.5 million annual budget designed to expand consumption of Pennsylvania dairy products through market promotion, research and nutrition education programs.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program was reorganized by state law in 1987 to give dairy farmers direct control of product marketing. The program is voluntarily supported by more than 4,000 dairy farmers statewide.

Salmonella Threatens

ors tested positive; and brooms and hoses were moved from area to area."

Source of contamination

A possible source of contamination is animal protein products being fed to poultry. In the Northeast alone, said Poultry Times, "fears have resulted in 50,000 tons of animal protein being taken out of feed."

At the 1989 Annual Congress of the American Veterinary Medical Association, SE as a pathogen was studied. The views of several scientists gathered there were plain: SE was a threat, and, indeed, the industry must be aware of the problem and take steps to stop the spread of the bacteria.

The scientists reviewed the facts about SE. From the November/December 1989 issue of Egg Industry, these were some of their findings:

- People are being infected by SE through eggs, particularly Grade A egg shells.
- Certain types of Salmonella are present in the intestines of many birds and can infect eggs by fecal contamination and penetration of the shell after the egg is laid.
- In Pennsylvania studies, SE was obtained from some dead-in-shell embryos of multiplier flocks shown to be positive on serology.
- Between 1985 and 1988, there were 140 confirmed outbreaks of SE in humans in 12 states, resulting in 4,976 illnesses and 30 deaths. In 1989 alone there were 71 outbreaks of SE.
- We have no knowledge of how many of the nation's flocks are infected, or the proportion of individual hens which may be excreting SE in a specific unit.
- 40,000 salmonella sp. isolates are derived from patients each year in the U.S., or about 20 cases per 100,000 population. Approximately 10 percent of the actual cases are diagnosed, so the true incidence of salmonella is relatively high. (Author's emphasis.)
- There is a close relationship, the scientists agree, between infection of flocks and outbreaks of the disease in consumers.
- Mishandled eggs are the most important vehicle for transmission of SE. Unfortunately, washing eggs may contribute to enhanced eggshell penetration by SE.

Stop the spread

What can be done to stop the spread of the bacteria?

Dr. Larry SHipman, a USDA epidemiologist, spoke at the American Veterinary Medical Association 1989 Annual Congress. According to Egg Industry, Shipman said the problem "does not lie at any specific point in the production chain, but will require concerted action by breeders, producers, and egg packers."

"Each segment of every food industry, from production to consumption, shares responsibility for this effort," said Kradel.

But often it takes work by regulatory agencies, in particular the FDA, to ensure that the bacteria is properly disposed of. And several steps have recently been taken to stop the spread of SE.

Mandatory testing

Early in 1989, the FDA began to prepare a mandatory testing program for SE in an announcement to the board of the United Egg Producers. The board had already voted to support a mandatory SE testing program for breeder and multiplier flocks, but not for layer flocks.

According to the May 8, 1989 Poultry Times, a voluntary testing program for breeder and multiplier flocks was begun in 21 states, and the SE problem was found in 'about half' of those states, said Michael Holbrook, director of the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service Poultry Division. The problem was focused mainly in the Northeast.

"Thirty-one flocks have been depopulated and a few flocks now are directing eggs to pasteurization," said Holbrook. Depopulated flocks, said Holbrook, include one primary breeder flock and three multiplier flocks.

In a plan to start extensive hen testing, the USDA met in mid-December last year with egg industry leaders and FDA officials to lay out a plan to test flocks for SE. According to Poultry Times, USDA will perform the testing, while FDA's role will be more at monitoring eggs as they reach the consumer.

months time the manufactured price of milk in the United States has dropped $2.71 per cwt.

Where are all the people that thought it was so terrible when the M. and W. escalated dramatically last fall and early winter. Never before has there been such a dramatic movement in the M. and W. prices as has happened in the last two months.

Some milk industry foundation leaders at a conference in January said they would bring the M. and W. under control, but no one thought even these processors coupled with the National Cheese Exchange would be able to accomplish what has happened in two months.

These price declines will mean dairy farmers across the U.S. will see $240,000,000 less in their milk checks each month. The average producer will lose approximately $1,200 per month. The sad part is we are nowhere near the bottom of the price decline.

Blend Prices

The lowest blend price forecasted for Federal Order #2 for June of 1990 was $11.15 per cwt. With all these unsettled conditions going on in the industry, dairy farmers now may see Junes' blend price go down to $10.50 per cwt. This will be lower than 1979's price of $11.03 per cwt.

Imagine - January 1990 record high blend prices at $15.17 - six months later dairy farmers receive a price that is comparable to 1978 and 1979.

Let's do something

I would like to think by now that dairy farmers would think they have had enough.

Fighting Mastitis, Selecting Sires Top Concerns

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Heifer housing, profitable culling, DHIA's Prostaph testing support, and strategies for staying competitive for the 1990s, dominated the topics for part two of Lancaster County's Dairy Days.

Sponsored by the Penn State University Extension Service, the first day of the two-day dairy days dealt mainly with BST, keeping pesticides out of groundwater, and cow reproduction and production.

Day two, however, included two pannel discussions by area farmers. The first group told what decisions they've made over the past several decades and how they've surivived, and what they plan to do in the 1990s to continue in agriculture, if not dairying.

The second group of dairy farmer pannelists, provided first hand information on heifer raising facilities they have built, how much it cost to build, why they chose the designs they did and what benefits or drawbacks they've experienced.

Starting the day with an update on paper bedding, Daniel McFarland, extension multi-county ag engineering specialist, provided a basic review of paper bedding studies done by several colleges and urged farmers to "work with it and see what works for you."

He summarized the advantages of using paper (newspaper) bedding: better absorption than straw or sawdust; lower concentration of heavy metals; slower (though not inhibited) bacteria growth; inexpensive.

On the other hand, McFarland said there are a few special handling requirements with paper bedding: it can compact and may require more labor. He recommended cutting the bedding into silver dollar-sized pieces and to use a base layer of straw when using paper with bedded packs.

McFarland said newspaper has also been of some concern with wind. To prevent littering and wind-blowing problems, he suggests using smaller amounts of bedding and changing more often.

There are some things yet to learn about newspaper bedding.

When asked, McFarland said he had no combustibility studies available to use for comparison between newspaper and other types of bedding material.

Within a little more than a month, McFarland said he is aware of two incidents — one in Lancaster and one in Berks counties — in which a burning piece of farm machinery set near newspaper bundles caused fires. Both fires were relatively minor.

McFarland said he plans to do an informal study, later this year, of what it takes to start newpaper bedding on fire.

Later in the dairy seminar, McFarland again took the podium and discussed his field of expertise — animal shelter designs and the effects of ventilation on dairy cattle growth, health and production.

McFarland recommended a series of special buildings for raising calves and heifers which minimize stress and maximize growth and health needs for young cattle, while providing quick and efficient cleaning, feeding and monitoring aspects for those caring for the animals.

Gary Rogers, with the Penn State University, reviewed sire selection reasons and methods and provided formulas for dairymen to use in making sire selection decisions. The formulas are flexible and can be modified to meet each dairyman's needs.

Copies of the formulas with explanations are available through the Penn State University Department of Animal and Dairy Science.

Rogers said the formulas are based on a number of areas of concern in managing a breeding program.

According to Rogers, the most important aspect in deciding sire selection should be milk production values.

Of the other traits which are currently heritable to a significant degree, Rogers said only a few body conformation aspects are worth concentrating on in order to indirectly select for healthier animals.

Rogers said that selecting for higher udders, better teat placement and better feet angles can apparently decrease the incidence of udder health problems.

Although there is no national mastitis reporting program that would allow finding and breeding strains of cattle with natural resistance to the disease, Rogers said he did an extensive study of existing traceable traits and compared them to apparent resistance to disease. He said the results of his work supports "what some of you already know, that selecting for udder and teat placement does work."

However, because the bottom line in any business is profit over expense, Rogers said farmers should value milk production at least three times more important than other aspects.

Rogers said the formulas can give farmers an easier method for ranking the top selections for their needs.

He said that, although it is not popular, most AI technicians, if given the formulas, should be able to rank the sires according to three major factors; most economical, best for herd improvement, and least risk.

In his second presentation of the day, Rogers also provided guidelines for profitable cow culling and longevity. He provided data gained from studies on culling and profits and shared a formula to help farmers help make better decisions in cow culling.

Basically, Rogers said the decision to cull a cow should be based on the value of the cull cow and the costs of raising a replacement cow.

He said that for the month, now is a good time to cull, because of relatively good prices for slaughter cows, and relatively low costs for raising calves to adulthood.

He also has authored a hand-out available to farmers through the extension office.

Robert Eberhart, with PSU department of veterinary science, talked about Prostaph milk antibody test for detection of staphylococcus aureus mastitis, one of the two highly communicable forms of mastitis.

According to Eberhart, staphylococcus aureus can go undetected in a cow for a long time and then be spread throughout the rest of the herd, before the original sick cow develops any visible symptoms. The disease is believed to be spread mostly by farmers while milking.

A test, called Prostaph, detects the presence of antibodies in milk that cows make to fight the bacterial infection. Thus the test provides an indicitive tool for farmers to control this highly contagious and problem disease.

The results of a Michigan University study on the test showed an overall 98 percent effectiveness.

However, during followup studies done by PSU, the test was only about half accurate in determining which cows had the disease.

The test is still very good, though, Eberhart said. He said the test rated about 93 percent accurate in determining which cows were free of the disease.

Eberhart said to use the test effectively, as it is understood, the entire herd should be tested if the herd is suspect. He said a culture test of the milk tank can indicate whether the herd has a problem.

If so, then a total herd Prostaph testing can be done. Those that test negative should be either milked first, or milked seperately. A follow-up test on the cows that intitially tested positive can be performed, at the very least. Best is to have those cattle culture tested, he said.

He also said that apparently farmers have been doing some things the right way. Eberhart said that those who practice milking heifers first, for whatever reason, are in effect protecting their herd from future damage, since heifers are least likely to have the mastitis and pass it on to the older cows.

Lebanon Dairy Days Features High Producing Cow Analysis

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The potential use of the milk-increasing protein hormone, bovine somatotrophin (BST), continues to be a topic of much concern at area dairy seminars and a recent dairy day seminar here was no exception.

However, other aspects of dairy herd management were stressed throughout the dairy day talks, and little time was spent on the ongoing debate as to whether BST should be or shouldn't be used.

Sponsored by the Lebanon County office of the Penn State University Extension Service, the dairy day seminar featured several representatives for BST-manufacturing companies, a Michigan farmer who allowed his herd to be used in a test, and a local dairyman who stands undecided on the issue of whether to use BST or not, but sells milk from his high producing herd to a local dairy that has set a policy of not accepting BST-produced milk.

All speakers, except for the local farmer, had spoken the day before to a Lancaster crowd (see the March 3 issue of Lancaster Farming) and addressed their areas of expertise in cow maintenance and milk production during the morning session, and then provided a short discourse on how BST might affect those aspects.

The morning session began with a talk by Bill Chalupa PhD, from the University of Pennsylvania, who talked about the nutritional needs of high producing cows. In the afternoon, Chalupa talked again about the nutritional aspects of BST-influenced cows.

Chalupa said balance rations were the key to providing proper nutrition to high producing cows and recommended the services of a nutritionist in developing a total mixed ration (TMR) from the forages and foods available to each herd owner.

He said that without proper balancing, some unexpected problems can occur.

According to Chalupa, potential ammonia deficiencies can lead to low fat output through starvation of the fiber digesters in the cow's system.

"It's when we're feeding only corn silage or feeding high amounts of hay instead of silages, that we could have an ammonia deficiency. We have run into situations of this and what we see in the cow is, the cow's milk has a low fat test.

"It has a low fat test because we're starving the fiber digesters. So we need to pay attention to the soluable protein," Chalupa said.

"Another thing we need to pay attention to, is that when we add fat to our rations we also need to adjust the bypass protein in those rations," he said.

The reason for doing so is because "rumen microbes do not use fat as a source of energy.

"When we go above three percent fat, we add more bypass protein to the ration in order to compensate for the lower amount of microbial protein that will be synthesized," Chalupa said.

"When we formulate rations, we consider the maintenance requirement of the animal, how much milk the animal is going to give and then how much feed will she consume."

According to Chalupa, in concocting a ration for a cow in an attempt of producing about 30 kilos of milk, which converts to about 80 pounds of milk, farmers should remember they need about 1.6 megacals of net energy per kilo. "And that's not too hard to achieve," he said.

A panel of speakers at Lebanon Dairy Days take questions about high producing cows from the audience. From the left is Vince Wagner, local dairyman, Ken Nobis, Michigan dairyman with BST trial herd, Dr. Bob Patton, a nutritionist in for Monsanto, Mike O'Conner, PSU dairy specialist, Bill Chalupa, University of Pennsylvania, New Bolton Center and county extension agent host Kenneth Winebark.

"But when we go to higher levels of production, those (increased) levels of net energy can only be achieved by adding fat to the ration," Chalupa said.

"If we try to do it (increase net energy) with grain, we will lower the fiber content and have all kinds of problems.

"So, as we go above the 30 Kilos, or 80 pounds of milk, we have to add fat and that impacts on the amount of bypass protein we need," he said.

According to Chalupa, for production levels at or below the 30 kilos of milk, "about 38 to 39 percent protein in a ration would probably be about fine.

"Above, though, and . . . we are getting about 49 percent. Put more fat in, we need bypass protein. How can we formulate a ration?" he said.

Chalupa said to begin formulating a ration, the concentrate portion of the ration needs first analysis.

"Starting at 30 kilos, we started putting in whole cotton seed and just a small amount of megalac," he said.

"I normally max out my whole cotton seed at about 10 percent of the ration dry matter and that will give somewhere around 5 to 6 pounds of whole cotton seed per cow, per day.

"A couple of the reasons I do this: I want only about one third of my fat to come from whole cotton seed; I've seen cases where higher levels of whole-cots have been used, and you start seeing some of the whole seed appearing in the feces.

"We max out the whole cotton seed and then we start to bring in some more megalac," he said.

He said the four-way juggling act begins at about this point in creating a ration.

"Putting in fat . . . What's happening, we're putting in fat and we're drecreasing the amount of soybean meal and increasing the amount of bypass protein," he said. He said he uses blood meal for bypass protein for simplicity.

"It's important to keep these balances of energy and protein and fat and bypass protein.

"If we're doing this, we're maxed out at 7- to 7½ -percent fat. I know some nutritionists and dairymen who feed more fat, up to 8, 8.5 percent. In some cases, it works. But I get nervous when I'm above 7½ -percent fat," Chalupa said.

"I like to hold it to about 7 percent. And when we're doing this, we're still holding our ABF at about 18 percent," he said.

But good total mixed rations requires a little extra upfront money, in order to get the extra milk.

"People say, 'Oh, that's fine. You're using all these speciality feed ingredients, but the ration is costing more,'" Chalupa said. "And I've been doing this for about 25 years and I don't know how to make the ration better and have it cost less or cost the same.

"If we're going to have more nutrients in the ration, it's going to cost more," Chalupa said.

At first level of milk production, about 20 kilos of milk, he calculated that his ration would cost about 10 cents per kilo of the ration, or about a nickel a pound.

Go up to much higher levels and feed costs rise.

"What we contend is not the cost of the ration, but really the income over feed cost, and also that will depend on what the genetic potential of a specific herd is," Chalupa said.

"If for an example, we have a herd that has a genetic potential for about 25,000 pounds of milk, and we feed it rations to support that level of milk, starting early in lactation, and then drop back to some of the less nutrient dense rations, and in fact the cows do milk at that level, you can see we are still increasing our income over feed costs.

"We haven't reached the point of diminishing returns.

"We suggest, go ahead and feed this ration, and if your other management factors are correct and your cows really do have the genetic potenital, they will increase production and you will see and increase in income over feed cost.

"And if you don't, there's either some other management component that's not correct, or your cows really do not have that genetic potential, and then we better drop back to the next level," he said.

Mike O'Conner, dairy specialist with Penn State University, talked about keeping high producing cows reproducing and attempted to dispel some myths surrounding these cows.

He said it's not so much the farmer's cow as the farmer, in most cases.

"First thing is an attitude problem," O'Conner said. "I think high production is often blamed for low reproduction performance."

He said that some farmers come to him, throw their hands up in the air and claim the can't get their cows bred because they are producing too much milk.

O'Conner said that there is no significant, direct correlation between high milk production and low breeding performance.

He said nutritional upsets in cows caused by farmers who improperly ration feed for high production, or, in some cases, farmers who deliberately wait to breed their cows, are more at cause for poor reproduction behavior.

"Also you allow those cows that are high producers more opportunity to conceive. That's not quite fair to the low producer," O'Conner said.

"Also as days open increases, a longer dry period results. Cows tend to get overconditioned in that late lactation period and the dry period. So a lot of those four items account for some of that bias towards the high producers," he said.

"Secondly, the low producers, you cull them earlier . . . and they are not given a chance to reproduce or become a repeat breeder and phisiologically, inside of them, they may be a repeat breeder, only you don't give them an opportunity to show that," O'Conner said

"Be cautious of reading some of this (DHIA) information and showing a negative effect on reproduction, especially for the high producer," he said.

O'Conner said there were some interesting results from studying DHIA records taken from 4,800 Holstein herds in Northeast U S. that were grouped according to production.

The groupings ranged from classes of 19,000 pounds milk to 13,700 pounds milk. And data showed that while the high producers had longer days in milk, the calving intervals basically remained the same.

"What I'm getting at is, these

Dietrich's Milk Products Expands

READING (Berks Co.) — Dietrich's Milk Products Inc. (DMP), a leading manufacturer of dried dairy ingredients, announced today formation of a Specialty Products Division.

The new division will focus on meeting the dairy powder needs of manufacturers of seasonings, dressing, sauces, snack foods, and related products. In addition, it will provide specialized development and contract drying services.

"Milk produced locally will now be put to new uses," said Thomas W. Dietrich.

"We have seen a growing need for dairy powders in specialty areas such as high-flavor, enzyme-modified and cultured products, as well as in traditional areas such as cheese," Dietrich said.

"With our new division, we can effectively take advantage of our almost 40 years of dairy product drying experience to give customers the quality, consistency, and service they require," he said.

The Specialty Products Division will be based in Reading, and will utilize the manufacturing capabilties of DMP's existing plants as well as those housed in a new facility scheduled to be fully operational in March.

"Our plan is to have this facility produce dry, powdered cheese, yogurt, and sour cream for makers of prepared foods and the snack industry," Dietrich said.

DMP is a leading U.S. supplier of dried dairy ingredients to the food processing industry, operating two manufacturing plants in Reading and Middlebury Center. It employs 150 people in the processing of dairy ingredients and powders.

DMP, owned and managed by three generations of the Dietrich family, has a history of over 60 years during which the company has evolved from a neighborhood dairy to a major national dairy ingredient processor.

High Producing Cow Analyzed

higher producing herds are not only getting higher production, but they are managing reproduction," O'Conner said.

However, O'Conner said he can go back through the records and find the opposite trends indicated. "You can go through the literature and find anything you want . . .

"Inside the cow, from a reproductive standpoint, there are no differences," O'Conner said. He explained that the study cows had their average daily milk production recorded, up until 70th day, and then production was projected from those figures out to 305 days.

Also, the cows were monitored for levels of progesterone in the milk to determine when cows ovulated. According to O'Conner, the higher producers had no differences in ovulation.

"Equally, when the uterus and cervix returned to breeding shape, something called involution, there were no differences in timing," he said.

"Days to first heat, was variable, ranging from 69 to 77 days," O'Conner said of the study's results. "Days to first breeding was exactly the same. And days not pregnant, 103 to 107. So, physiologically, there are no differences for reproduction.

"I'd like to dispel that concept that the cow not functioning properly reproductively is because it is giving too much milk," he said.

He quickly added, however, that geneticists' research over the years has seemed to show "that there is a slight negative relationship between production and fertility. It's slight, but it's real."

"It's difficult for you folks to select on the basis of fertility because the highest estimates of fertility inheritability are 10 percent and the most of the figures are 3 to 5 percent.

"So even if you could select for it, you wouldn't be gaining much. Remeber, milk selection is on the order of 25-to 30 percent heritablility," he said.

According to O'Conner, most of the problem with breeding after 90 days is an "awareness problem."

He said some people claim that cows with higher milk production have lower first service conception rate, but that records and research shows that to be also a myth.

He also said that farmers apparently don't like to check heats.

He said that in studying the various adherences to the 21-day estrous cycle in cows, the heat detection methods used by farmers and the accuracy of heat detection and the success of conception on the first service of artificial insemination, there appears to be a supported conclusion: those who use stringent and rigorous heat detection methods are more apt to have better first service conceptions.

He also showed data that indicates that cows are more likely to come into heat before 6 a.m. and after 6 p.m., although the specific reason is not known. O'Conner said it could be that the cows are distracted during the day.

Nevertheless, O'Conner said that the study shows that most dairymen are missing the best time of the day to determine heat.

He said he suggests to those who desire an increase in conception rate and a lower calving interval to check their herds in the evening or first thing in the morning before disturbing them.

O'Conner also had charts and graphs that showed that cows who were allowed on dirt where footing was sure and not slippy, showed a much higher incidence of reception to mounting.

He said good dirt conditions, or grooved cement could improve cow receptability and increase the probability of first service conception.

Cows with good body condition score (ideal weight and condition) also show better estrous activity, O'Conner said. Cows that are too fat will respond poorly and underweight cows respond poorly.

Other problems with conception rate includes cystic ovaries, uterine infections and other health problems, O'Conner said. He said overall herd health and environment will improve reproduction.

Postpartum exams done 25 to 30 days after freshening can help detect and then prevent such problems, O'Conner said.

Likewise, clean and healthy surroundings during calving can help prevent infections and disease and help lengthen the reproductive life of a cow, in addition to helping increase calf survivability.

Charles Gardner DVM, with Willow Creek Animal Hospital, and a spokesman for Monsanto Corp., a manufacturer of BST, talked about herd health and how to better manage.

According to Gardner, he used to rely heavily on a computer to help manage dairy herds, but recently reverted to using colored pencils and graph paper to chart incidence of health problems within herds.

He said that, without charting, incidents of one to two retained placentas a month can seem insignificant.

But, through charting the actual cases over time and reviewing them in comparison to the actual herd activity, what at first seemed insignificant suddenly shows up as being 25 percent of the cows having problems during calving.

He said that rate was too high. But added that unless good records are kept on paper, and charted later, a serious problem can go undetected and the cause of the problem can continue.

BURKET ADDRESSES MARYLAND HOLSTEIN CONVENTION

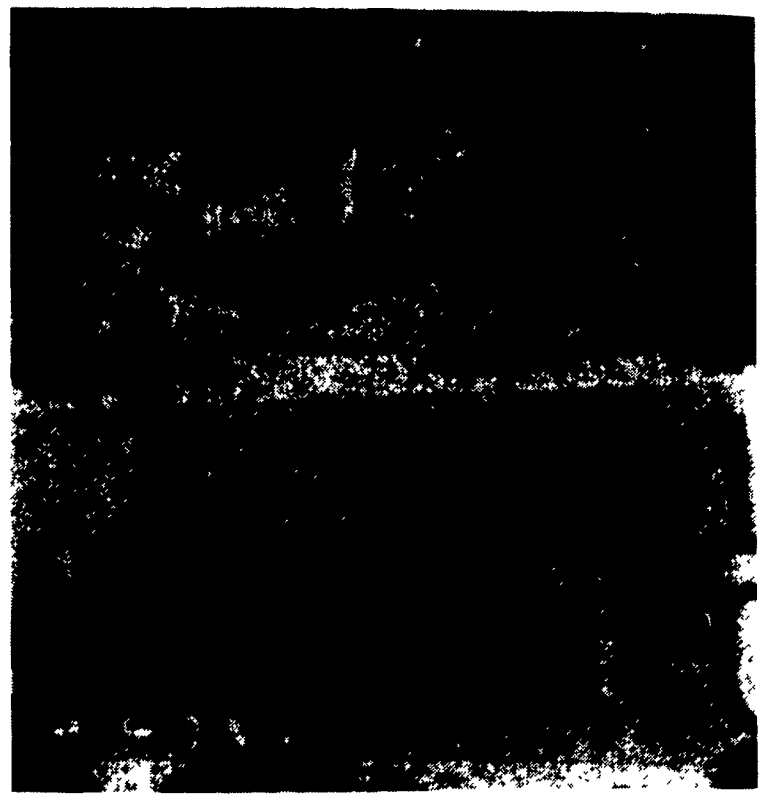
Dave Burket, PA Holstein breeder was the speaker for the afternoon session of the Maryland Holstein Convention. His unique delivery and keen observations had the undivided attention of his audience. Burket noted a similarity of the MD and PA conventions, both having celebrities for speakers, PA having former President Carter and MD having Burket!

Burket opened by saying he was given two assignments. The first was "Breeding a Paper Cow." His answer to that was, learn to read, count and add numbers. AMEN! His second was to challenge his audience to "breed a herd of cows for the nineties." He noted that one of their herds lowest producing cows was ranked 18th in their herd. He observed, "Don't try to beat the numbers, but be sure the numbers don't beat you." Burket said that many breeders are admitting the numbers system is not meeting expectations. At a recent visit to Burket's farm, visitors from Germany saw a real fancy cow they liked and were extremely interested in until they found she was -500. She would not be eligible to enter Germany, Burket said. This is an example of how good cows are excluded due to lack of numbers.

Burket also noted that Cornell University for many years breed All American cows. They are now using the top 1% of the bulls to breed their herd. He challenged anyone to visit and if they feel that Cornell is still breeding All Americans, he will personally pay for the trip and a visit to see a psychiatrist. Burket said it is time to turn to the real experts, the breeders. He said some say we can not breed for longevity. Compare it with corn, he noted. We used to have 85-day corn, now we have 125 - 130-day corn. Burket says he would rather have a hot 10-year-old than a hot 2-year-old.

How important is fancy, Burket asked. When you were dating, did you want a girl that was functional or did you prefer one that was fancy? When a potential buyer looks at ten heifers, which one does he pick first? The big fancy one or the small ugly? If we breed better cows, we can sell more and better breeding stock, Burket said. At present, indexes start high and go down. Burket feels indexes should start low and go up.

The highest achievement for a breeder is standing first at Madison or breeding an All American. Burket said Bull Studs stand taller when daughters from their bulls are selected first at ringside. Burket asked why Canada now dominates the show at Madison. He added that we have lots of milk, so why not breed for better, more fancy cows. We can win the battle to breed better cows if we can devise the formula! Answering a question from the audience as to who has the formula, Burket said, "You the breeder have the answer."



John and Martha Morris were honored at the Maryland Holstein Banquet for years of service to the dairy industry. John retired as secretary/treasurer after 13 years of work for the association. The package contained a beautiful quilt with the inscription: "In appreciation for years of dedicated service. We love John. We love Martha."

BREEDERS CONVENE

The first item considered for discussion by President William Allen at the March 2, Maryland Holstein Convention business meeting was the financial status of the organization. Because of a slight loss in operations and the realization of future increases, it was recommended by the Finance Committee that there be an increase in membership dues. This recommendation was put in the form of a motion and passed. The base rate will go from $20.00 to $25.00 and from $0.25 to $0.40 per cow. These rates will be effective for the 1991 membership. Along with membership in the state association, this fee entitles the member to free subscriptions to the Holstein World, Southeastern News and the Farm Shine.

The election of officers was conducted by Nominating Committee Chairman, Douglas King. Those elected were: President, Marlin Martin, Smithsburg, MD., Vice President, Oren Bender, Accident, MD., Secretary-Treasurer, Jack and Vicki King, Manchester, MD. Directors for three year terms: Scott Hood, Middletown, MD., representing Frederick County, Donna Myers, New Windsor, MD., representing Carroll County, Arthur Rhoderick, Hagerstown, MD., representing Washington County, and John L. Schenning, Bel Air, MD., representing Harford and Baltimore counties. Elected for a two-year term was Bruce Schrader, Chestertown, MD., representing Kent and Queen Annes counties.

Allen, Jr., Charles Iager, Jason Myers, Arthur Rhoderick and Donald Wilcom. National Director, Marlin Hoff reported that the association headquarters will be remaining in Brattlesboro. It would have cost approximately $2.00 per registered animal to relocate to another area. Director Hoff is also concerned that the association keep abreast of the changing times in recognizing how fat and protein are computed in establishing awards such as qualification for Progressive Breeder Awards.

Progressive Breeder awards were presented by Holstein consultants, Clarence Stouffer and Thomas Dunn. To qualify, a breeder had to meet the following requirements:

DHIR herd lactation average for both milk and fat meet or exceed the values in the 25th percentile for your region of the country. Minimum milk, 20,931, minimum fat, 751.

BAA for the herd classification conducted during the time period of 11-87 thru 2-89 meet or exceed 103.3.

Dave Burket

At least 75% of cows must bear the breeders prefix.

The following were eligible for this prestigious award:

C. Renn Remsberg	27 years
Maple Lawn Farms, Inc.	23 years
Marlin Hoff	9 years
Carl L. Bender	7 years
Joseph A. Schwartzbeck, Jr.	6 years

THAT PESKY CHICKWEED

The mild weather in January and February has resulted in a major chickweed problem in alfalfa, especially in Southeastern Pennsylvania and points south. That's the story I heard repeatedly as I traveled across Lancaster and Chester Counties last week. The problem is especially serious in seedings made last August. But there's also plenty of chickweed and other winter annual weeds in seedings made last spring, and older stands as well.

What, if anything, can be done right now to reduce the competition caused by this troublesome weed? The options are either none or at best very limited. But in an attempt to find some answers I checked with Penn State weed scientists Nate Hartwig and Lynn Hoffman for some suggestions.

But first a word about chickweed itself. It's a winter annual that starts to grow anytime the temperature is above freezing. A prolific seed producer it's already flowering in some areas and by early April or before, will be producing an abundance of seed which can spell more trouble for next winter.

CONTROL IN LATE SUMMER SEEDINGS

The biggest chickweed problem is in alfalfa seedings made last August. And here of course, is where competition on the alfalfa is the greatest. Unfortunately, however, there's not much you can do to control chickweed in August seedings.

If the seeding includes a grass there are no options. And at the moment the same is true for alfalfa seeded alone. But, Dr. Nate Hartwig tells me, a special local needs (24C) label has been applied for allowing the use of gramoxone (paraquat) on new seedings of alfalfa less than one year old. If approved, Hartwig says, this label may be available within a short time.

OLDER ALFALFA STANDS

On established alfalfa stands more than one year old gramoxone (paraquet) can be used. However to avoid injury to the alfalfa do not apply if new spring growth exceeds one inch. Applications made at later stage of growth may set the crop back and reduce first harvest yield. And do not use more than the recommended rate. Add surfactant as directed on the label and follow all other label directions carefully.

Other options on older stands include Velpar, Sinbar, and Lexone/Sencor 4L, Lynn Hoffman reminds you. Velpar applied at the rate of one-half to one and one half lbs. per acre does an excellent job of controlling dandelions as well as many winter annual weeds, and is reasonably effective on chickweed, Lynn tells me. It should be applied in a minimum of 20 gallons of water and before 2 inches of new alfalfa growth is present.

Sinbar (terbacil) applied in the spring before new alfalfa growth begins is also effective on chickweed, benbit and other broadleafed weeds, Hoffman says. But if you use Sinbar remember do not replant the field to any crop within 2 years after the last application.

Lexone/Sencor 4L (metribuzin) applied at the recommended rate will control dandelion and a number of annual broadleaves and is reasonably effective on chickweed. In liquid form alfalfa may be severely injured if new growth is present at spring application.

However, if impregnated on dry fertilizer these products may be applied safely after dormancy is broken, but prior to 3 inches of new alfalfa growth. Metribuzin may be used on alfalfa-grass mixtures, but may injure grasses if applied at the higher rates.

All chemicals should, of course, be applied when the air temperature is above freezing. And for maximum benefit from paraquet daytime temperatures into the 50's are desirable.

Under all circumstances be sure to read the label carefully before using, Hartwig, Hoffman repeated. And follow all directions on the label carefully.

Records Broken At NCGA Corn Classic

PHOENIX, Ariz. — A record number of 1,927 attendees from 42 states; Washington, D.C.; Canada; and Mexico flocked to the 1990 National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) 32nd annual Corn Classic, held February 21-23.

The record crowd had an opportunity to view the largest trade show exhibit at a Corn Classic, where 86 exhibitors occupied 177 booth spaces and heard nationally known speakers.

"Our Corn Classic attendance and trade show have nearly doubled in the past four years," said NCGA President Alan Kemper, a Lafayette, Indiana corn grower. "And corporate support for the Classic was at its highest level, with 33 companies sponsoring various programs, meals, receptions and awards.

"The Corn Classic has truly become the corn industry event of the year, with all industry segments represented," Kemper said.

NCGA leaders selected the Phoenix location to recognize the city for its efforts to reduce carbon monoxide levels caused by auto emissions by using corn-derived ethanol blended fuels While it was the first time a Corn Classic has been held outside the major corn growing area of the country, response from attendees, exhibitors, and corporate sponsors exceeded expectations, according to Kemper.

The NCGA Corn Classic returns to the Midwest in 1991, and is set for February 20-22 in Kansas City, Missouri.

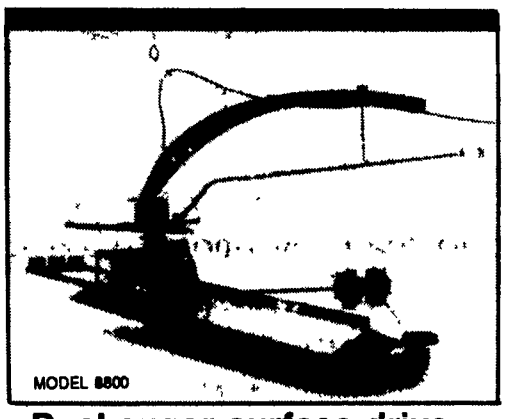
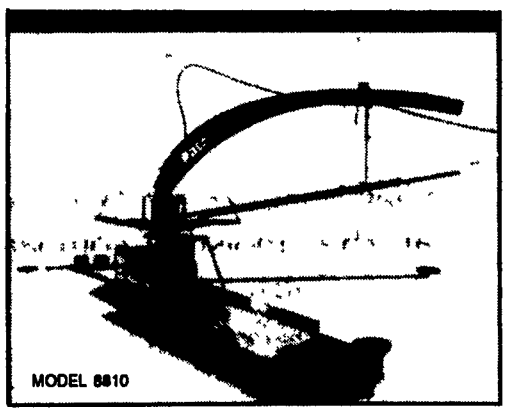
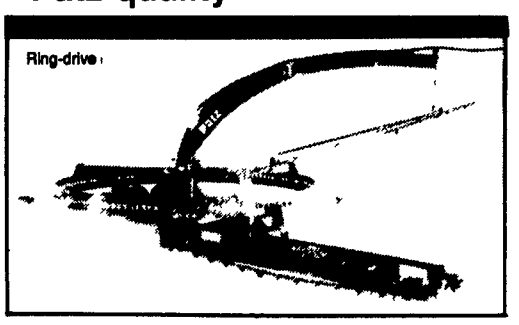
Patz - The Only Manufacturer Of Augers And Chain That Feature 4 Silo Unloaders To Fit Your Price And Performance Needs



Dual-auger surface-drive silo unloader with Patz quality



Dual-auger center-drive silo unloader with Patz quality

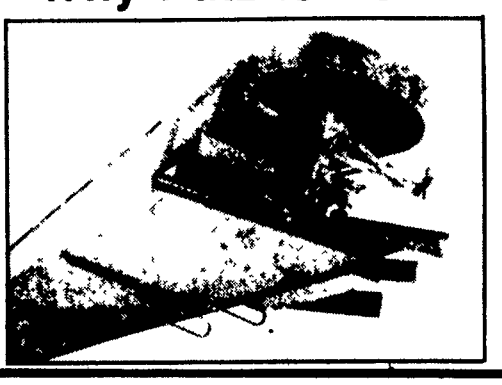


RD-820 RING-DRIVE SILO UNLOADER

Both silo unloaders have a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that cut through frozen and packed silage.

98B SURFACE-DRIVE SILO UNLOADER

Why Patz is No. 1



- Durable Patz hook-and-eye link chain. Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance.
- Four-tooth sprocket drives every link behind the hook--the link's thickest and strongest point.
- Chain flexibility for various layouts.
- Select 2" flites for solid manure or 4" high flites for slurry manure. ¼ -inch-thick flites are welded to Patz links. ½ -inch-thick wear shoes extend flite life.
- Three drive unit sizes match your gutter length and allow expansion.
- Corner wheel top-and-bottom flanges guide the chain around the corner. Corner wheel assemblies remove easily for service without concrete breakout.
- Heavier XH link available for extremely long pulls.

aid in the form of governmental agricultural agents. It was hoped that these courageous souls would find a weevil-proof farming method and then teach it to the Texas cotton farmers.

The seemingly stubborn farmers balked at the proposed ideas. They came from a long line of cotton growers who knew everything there was to know about raising cotton. No government "feller" was going to tell them anything!

But, beginning on January 15, 1904, one "feller" named Dr. Seaman A. Knapp set out to change that. If the parents would not listen, he would talk to their children.

He arranged meetings in schoolhouses, townhalls and churches where he introduced diversified farming -- mixing corn, pigs and cotton. His enthusiasm sparked the younger Texans to organize corn, pig and cotton clubs and hold meetings to learn better ways to manage their growth. Soon, the children were selling their produce and making a profit!

The parents, who had opposed any change in the old methods, began to note the new and better farm and home skills their children were learning and demonstrating.

Gradually, word spread throughout the nation. Diligent, ambitious club boys and girls were dumbfounding their parents by raising fattened year-old beef steers, increasing potato and sugar beet crops per acre and diversifying crops grown on same acreage.

In Iowa, farmers, bankers, school teachers and fair association managers banded together to offer leadership and prizes to foster and encouraged farm children in agricultural interests.

A school superintendent, O. H. Benson of Wright County, envisioned a vast coordinated system of clubs -- all sharing a common courage, high ideals and desire to perfect a finer rural citizenship. In 1906, while visiting a schoolyard filled with children busily looking for four-leaf clovers, he suddenly realized the emblem that would symbolize all rural clubs.

He sketched the outline of a four-leaf clover and placed an "H" in the center of each leaf: H-head-clear thinking; H-heart- true-blue loyalty, wholesomeness, clean living; H-hands- skilled and useful, pledged to service for self and fellowmen; H-health- precious spark of life that makes great accomplishments possible.

The Smith-Lever Act signed by President Woodrow Wilson in 1914 provided funds for the national promotion of agricultural extension service, in cooperation with land-grant colleges, made the U.S. government "an actual promoter of boys' and girls' club work."

A committee seeking an emblem for junior extension chose Benson's representation of courage -- the green four-leaf clover with a white "H" on each leaf and the following pledge:

I Pledge
My Head to clearer thinking,
My Heart to greater loyalty,
My Hands to larger service and
My Health to better living for my club, my community, and my country.

The 4-H colors are green and white for a reason. Green is nature's most common color, and it stands for growth, life, and youth. White is the symbol for purity and high ideals.

The motto of courage is -- "To Make the Best Better."

Early records show that 4-H originated in Pennsylvania in Mercer County. Charles G. McBride, extension agent for six western Pennsylvania counties, held meetings in the fall of 1912 with the cooperation of the Grange to organize a corn growing contest in 1913. Fourteen boys and one girl entered that contest, which was won by the girl, Aleen Fell.

The first definite projects for boys and girls in Pennsylvania were outlined in 1916. There was some loosely organized work through the schools in counties where county extension associations were not organized.

Under the leadership of McBride, who became state 4-H club leader in April, 1917, club work was definitely tied into the county extension program.

4-H has evolved from teaching agriuclture and home economics in club groups to much more today. 4-H offers a wide range of clubs and projects from which to choose. There are community clubs, dairy, dog, environmental, goat, home economics, horse, livestock (beef, sheep, swine), poultry, rabbit, Seeing Eye puppy clubs and even an 18th History Club!

4-H members learn by doing; after all, experience is the best teacher!

Avoid Salmonellosis

degrees will assure their safety."

The second way to control salmonellae is to prevent recontamination. Said Mast, "Recontamination can happen in food-service establishments or in the home if poor personal hygiene is practiced or if the cooked food comes in contact with unclean utensils, equipment, or uncooked foods that may harbor salmonella bacteria."

Mast recommends the following guidelines for food handlers and consumers:

- Wash raw foods carefully and thoroughly.
- Wash hands thoroughly after handling raw foods to lessen the possibility of contaminating cooked, ready-to-eat foods, or serving utensils.
- Carefully follow label directions on packages for storing, preparing, or serving quick-frozen foods. Storage at proper temperatures prevents salmonellae growth. Thorough cooking will kill them.
- Do not thaw frozen raw poultry at room temperature. Thaw in the refrigerator or use cool running water.
- Store uncooked foods on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator. Raw foods should not drip onto cooked foods.
- Do not stuff turkeys or chickens the night before cooking.
- After cooking stuffed poultry, and before refrigerating it, remove the stuffing from the bird. This will allow faster cooling and/or reheating.
- Refrigerate leftovers promptly and heat thoroughly before reserving (gravies should be reheated to "rolling boil"). Freshly cooked foods rarely cause illness.
- Refrigerate all dairy products promptly, including mixtures made from dry base, such as rehydrated powdered milk.
- Before re-using, thoroughly wash with hot water and soap all utensils used for preparing raw poultry, meats, eggs, or pastry mixes.
- Make sure perishable foods carried on a picnic are kept cold until eaten. Foods that tend to spoil easily without refrigeration should not be exposed to warmer temperatures for more than half an hour before eating.

Animal Ag Symposium Scheduled

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The various issues facing animal agriculture are to be the focus of a March 21-22 symposium to be held at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md.

Called, "Future Trends in Animal Agriculture," the symposium will bring together representatives from a spectrum of animal interest groups.

The event is being co-sponsored by PennAg Industries Association, an agribusiness trade organization representing more than 500 businesses.

According to Michele Pohl, of PennAg, the meeting may "bring together, possibly for the first time, articulate and expert speakers representing a broad spectrum of opinion."

Scheduled to speak are John Hoyt, with the Humane Society of the U.S.; Steven Kopperud, Animal Industry Foundation; Fred Kirschenmann, Organic Feed Producers Association of North America; David Fraser, Animal Research Center, Agriculture Canada; Kathleen Hartnett, of the National Cattleman's Association; and Charles Benbrook, of the National Academy of Sciences.

"We have assembled a group of leading authorities who will enlighten, provoke, and perhaps encourage those who participate in the symposium," said David Brubaker, conference co-chairman and executive vice president of PennAg.

"The issues being considered at this symposium are significant and will be enduring. We simply must take the time to understand each other," he said.

Farm Forum

ers certainly are not over-paid, but dairy farmers, are you still willing to sit back and watch these types of increases in various segments of our industry while you get paid a 1979 price?!?

Mr. Dairyman

1. Are you willing to sell your milk at these ridiculous prices??
2. The consumers purchasing power is adequate to sustain the prices dairy farmers received for their milk in December of 1989.
3. We can't correct what has happened, but we can protect our future.
4. Every dairy farmer should contact their Congressmen and U.S. Senators today. Call for an investigation into the possible manipulation of United States cheese prices.
5. Immediately contact your milk handler or cooperative demanding a substantial premium for your milk starting now.
6. A $3.00 per cwt. premium on our milk will be necessary if we are going to sustain dairy farmers this summer. My God, Go For It!
7. Support legislation for the 1990 Farm Bill that mandates a Two-Tier pricing mechanism that brings dairy farmers prices back to 75% parity.
8. Contact your Congressman and ask him to co-sign on and support Congressman Peter Smith (R-VT) H.R. Bill #4004 which would place a three-year moritorium on B.S.T. milk.
9. Check out the chemical companies that are pushing imitation ice cream. These same people who are pushing B.S.T. on farmers are willing to short-change you on the other end.
10. Let's bring a halt to these yo-yo, topsy-turvy milk prices. What in the world do you think consumers must think??
11. Former Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Jim McHale used to say, "If you don't do anything else, then run around in a circle and holler!"

The days of hollering are upon us. It's time dairy farmers demand to be allowed to control their own destiny. It's time we set a price for our milk and also establish the total amount of milk that is needed in the United States.

Conclusion

We have been crying aloud for thirty years that we need an escalator formula for pricing milk. It's time we have one. A formula that will be tied to the production of milk that will return a fair price to dairy farmers is needed.

No, our program is not a government oriented program; it's market oriented, with dairy farmers having a say about the price and the amounts of production.

The time for action is now. Let's say goodbye to surplus milk, producer assessments, price controls by processors, and especially let's say goodbye to apathy by dairy farmers.

If we fail to act now on all fronts, can you imagine the chaos that looms ahead for all of us in the near future.

Dauphin County Boys Sew Up Competition

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

MILLERSBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Imagine being the only guy in a competition with a group of fifty young women.

Discomforting? Embarrassing? Frustrating? Not at all, according to a Millersburg 4-H'er Jesse Romberger.

"That was fun," grins the 15-year-old 4-H member. "I had all these girls pitying me."

The girls were fellow (no pun intended) contestants at 4-H State Fashion Revue last August, competing for top honors in clothing construction and the opportunity to represent Pennsylvania at National 4-H Club Congress.

Jesse earned a slot at 4-H state days after being named a winner in the senior division at the July regional dress review in York. And, while the state contest judges took several minutes to evaluate most of the entries, Jesse's judging was over quickly.

Interestingly enough, he was one of two regional winners from the Millersburg area Busy Bee Workers Club. The other was 10-year-old Seth Paul, the only other young man competing, who was named a junior division winner. Jesse is the son of Stanley and Louetta Romberger, Millersburg R1, and Seth's parents are Ronald and Doris Paul, State Street, Millersburg.

The "sportsmen's business suit" Jesse sewed and modeled was in a drab olive cotton. Jacket was a traditional business style, but with the unusual touch of pants in Bermuda-short length, giving the outfit a tropical, safari look. Jesse accented the style with a classic safari-type hat. The idea, he says, came from an outfit worn by actor Sylvester Stallone in "Twins."

Since Jesse did not take one of the top spots in the statewide contest, he is already planning this year's project. And, he intends to compete in 4-H sewing until he reaches the age limit.

Actually, the Millersburg Area Senior High School freshman had never intended to join the 4-H sewing club led by his grandmother, Francis "Franny" Shoop. But his sister Lisa was a member ten years ago, and Jesse, then five, had no choice in the matter of attending the meetings with her and their mother.

"Mostly I pestered the girls," he grins, recalling his pre-4-H escapades. Eventually, an interest in trying his hand at the skills they were learning overcame the pestering. At seven, Jesse asked to take a sewing project, too.

While 4-H entry-level age was eight, a "preppie" program allowed interested youngsters a chance to take a project a year sooner. Preppie projects are displayed at roundup by these members for experience, but are not judged.

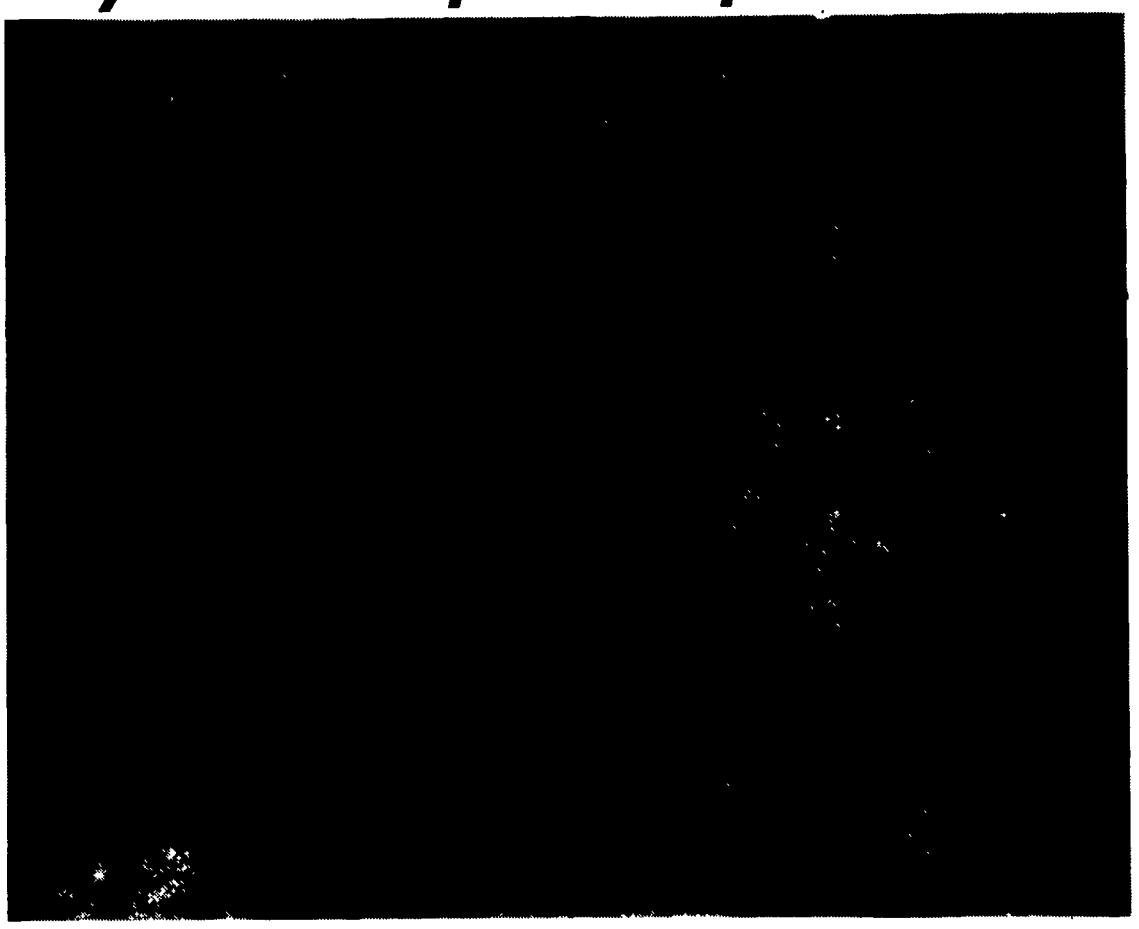
His first official, judged project was a backpack, made of sturdy denim.

"I thought it was hard," he relates, of learning to cut out patterns, hand sewing, and threading the sewing machine and needles.

"The boys actually have less trouble controlling the sewing machines than do the girls," leader Franny Shoop observes. Having taught several boys in the club she founded, she has noticed that boys seem to have a natural affinity for the mechanics of sewing machine operation.

While boys have always been welcome in 4-H sewing programs, few have carried their project skills to regional and state levels. Franny, who has been guiding the Busy Bees group for some 20 years, took a photo many years ago of a young man competing in state fashion revue. She used that photo to encourage Jesse.

New and increasingly difficult construction techniques are learned and used in consecutive levels of the 4-H sewing program. Beginners usually sew something simple and basic, like a square pillow, progressing to jackets, suits and outfits demanding advanced construction skills.



Millersburg 4-H'ers Seth Paul, left, and Jesse Romberger model garments they made in learning sewing skills which have taken them on to regional competition.

All of his 4-H sewing projects get steady use by Seth Paul. Both his jacket and denim backpack have been ideal for everyday school use.

Wardrobe additions made by Jesse as projects include a green corduroy 4-H jacket, jogging suit, and lined three-piece wool suit. But none have stirred more comments than his eye-catching Halloween costume, an idea sparked in an area fabric store.

Browsing through a pattern book one day, Jesse flipped to a page showing a Pink Panther costume.

"I wanted it for the Halloween parade, but no one would make it for me," he relates. Undaunted, Jesse decided the costume would provide an unusual 4-H project.

Millersburg, at the foot of the mountain on which the Rombergers' home is located, annually holds a Halloween parade. jesse took a first prize a few years ago with a "dice" costume, a white square design with appropriate dots. He was hoping judges would like a Pink Panther as well.

Sewn in hot pink and pale pink fake fur, the costume is colorful and amusing. The face, with a stuffed, round muzzle, took Jesse "about a month" to complete, but added a perfect touch of character to the costume.

"The judges throught the seams should have been finished differently so it didn't do well at regionals," says Jesse. Nevertheless, it was the hit of the day, delighting 4-H'ers along with summer school students at the host Cumberland Valley School.

"The girls didn't know there was a guy taking part. You can only see straight ahead through the eye openings, so I had to be led around all day. And because of the paws on the costume, I couldn't use my hands," he adds, laughing at the memory of everyone's surprise when he finally unmasked.

Thought it failed to win him a repeat of the Halloween parade first prize, the Pink Panther outfit has been enjoyed by the entire family. His mother even borrowed it one day to deliver a birthday cake to a co-worker.

Like Jesse, Seth Paul was taken along to be "babysat" while his older sister, Shea, attended the 4-H sewing meetings.

"I didn't want to join at first because of all the girls," admits this quiet 10-year-old, whose face splits in a wide grin at the confession that he, too, was a "pest" to the girls.

Persuaded to give sewing a try, he agreed to make a first-year project pillow and a backpack.

"I sewed the pillow on the machine and my Mom made me rip it out and do it by hand," Seth reminds her with an accusing glance. But hand sewing was a guideline of the project book which she insisted he follow. Adding the creative touch of an appliqued truck, Seth carried a blue ribbon home from roundup.

Wearing the jacket to his winning drab olive "sportsmen's business suit" sewn in cotton, Jesse is surrounded by several of his 4-H sewing projects.

In sewing his sturdy denim backpack, Seth learned to set in a zipper and use Velcro fasteners. He continues to use it every school day, slung over the shoulders of his most recent award winner, a green corduroy 4-H jacket.

The jacket is similar to the one sewn by Jesse earlier in his 4-H years, made from material Francis had left from that first one. In fact, this dedicated leader had purchased extra yardage of the green corduroy, specifically with her 4-H members in mind.

Lined with a heavy quilted fabric, the warm jacket has earned Seth many compliments for his sewing abilities. But the advanced techniques needed to complete the jacket sometimes had Seth doing one of his least-favorite parts of sewing -- ripping.

"I had to keep ripping to get the bottom part in right," he says of the stretchy, ribbed edging which holds the jacket snug to the waist.

Even the ripping seemed worthwhile after Seth was named a regional junior winner and then snagged a best of show rosette at the Gratz Fair. Like Jesse, Seth is plotting strategy for this year's project, eyeing another chance to compete at regionals.

The Busy Bee Workers Club usually holds its first of a ten-week series of sewing meetings on President's Day, aiming to complete projects by the end of school.

Boys Sew

"After that, we have trouble getting them out for meetings," explains Franny. Louetta Romberger is the ten-member club's organizational leader, while Doris Paul helps members working on their projects at the meeting.

Other boys have also taken sewing projects with the club, and these three leaders express concern that the skill requirements are geared more to girls than to boys. They feel boys are more limited in choosing projects which encompass the 4-H levels of skill requirements than with the range of garment types available to girls.

One change they would like in judging is more allowance for the rapid growth of 4-H sewing members in their teen years. A project begun in February may be partially outgrown by regional roundup in July. But, fit of the garment is an important part of the project score.

"Judges should allow for their growth, but they don't," figures Franny, considering the time and cost involved in a project garment.

While the club is primarily geared to sewing, members can carry other projects. Jesse raises LaMancha dairy goats, New Zealand rabbits and poultry, tends vegetables and strawberries, and carries varied projects like foods and woodworking. As an exchange club member, he has traveled to California and is hoping to visit Tennessee this summer.

An avid exhibitor of the best of his hundred-plus New Zealand rabbits, Jesse participates in several area and regional open-class rabbitry shows. He has restored a John Deere B tractor, with an assist from "Santa Claus" in the form of new tires for the antique machine.

Seth tends a 4-H garden at the family's State Street home in Millersburg, sometimes sharing his excess tomatoes and peppers with his leader. He enjoys playing sports with his fourth-grade friends at Lenkersville Elementary School. Fishing is a favorite pursuit, especially since the Paul family has a cottage along the nearby Susquehanna River.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

When I write my diary at the end of the day, I usually cannot say that I wallpapered the bedroom or painted the front porch, although I have done those type of big jobs.

My entries are usually a listing of many small jobs. Just this morning I watered my many indoor flowers and then bottled milk from our bulk tank and cooked coconut custard. I even put a few drops of rust preventive on three tiny spots on my car.

Last week I made four lemon meringue pies one morning and then gave two of them away. I had to double the recipe twice and the double boiler wasn't big enough. So, I put water in a dishpan and put a large kettle in it — that's improvising. It seems that we often do this on a farm rather than run to the store all of the time. Years ago they said that many farms would fall apart if the farmer didn't use bale wire to repair gates, machinery and fences.

My trip to the mailbox is often one of the highlights of the day. The other day I counted 22 items in our box. One never knows what to expect. It might be a pair of stockings or a microwave bowl that I sent for with coupons from cereal boxes. But more likely there will be a letter or two from one of Lancaster Farming's readers.

I've heard from a lady in Newton, Kansas, who tells me that I am a distant cousin of hers. She's very interested in genealogy and has made trips to Lancaster County to trace her ancestors. Another couple from Gettysburg wrote to say that we share a three-times great-grandmother.

Other letters inquire about growing peanuts as they've read that I have grown some in my garden. Still others ask for flower seeds or bulbs as I have more than I need and they are so expensive from seed catalogs.

Of course, it is no surprise to see a newspaper and several bills in our big box. It is the other things that make our day

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Winter is an ideal time to celebrate the convenience and speed of microwaving canned foods. At a time when many items are out of season, you can turn to your cupboard to find just about any food. And, you can turn to your microwave to heat any canned food in a matter of minutes.

Because canned foods are already prepared and cooked, they need only a quick heat to warm them to serving temperature, saving you precious time.

It's simple to microwave canned foods. Usually they should be covered. And, they should not be microwaved too long — remember, they just need heating, not cooking.

Soup is the top-selling canned food in the United States, according to the Canned Food Information Council. Others in the top 10, in order of popularity, are: tuna, pasta, corn, beans and pork and beans, green beans, tomatoes, peaches, pineapple, and canned ham and meats.

To microwave condensed, canned soup: Pour soup into a microwave-safe measure or casserole; stir in a can of water or milk. Cover with plastic wrap or a lid. Microwave on High for three to six minutes or until hot. Stir about halfway through heating or at the end of heating time. (Stirring is important, or you're likely to get mouthfuls of varying temperatures.) Pour into bowls.

More than 40 varieties of dried beans — such as navy, kidney, lima — are available in convenient cooked, canned form. Long soaking and slow cooking are eliminated when you use canned beans. Canned pork and beans or baked beans can be a quick, convenient main dish.

To microwave canned pork and beans: Place pork and beans in a microwave-safe serving dish or casserole. Cover with plastic wrap or a lid. (Or, if beans are very juicy, cover with waxed paper.) Microwave on High, allowing one to two minutes for each cupful. To prevent "popping," stir beans halfway through and towards end of heating, and do not heat too long.

More than 130 canned vegetable products and mixtures are available. Almost 90 percent of tomatoes and 95 percent of all beets harvested in the United States are made into canned products.

To microwave canned vegetables: Drain most of the liquid and save for another use. Place vegetables in a microwave-safe serving dish or casserole. Cover with plastic wrap or a lid. Microwave on High, allowing one to two minutes for each cup of vegetables. A 16-ounce can of drained vegetables will heat in two to three minutes.

Today's recipes call for a variety of canned foods. Try Easy Chicken Vegetable Soup for a thick, hearty soup made in minutes. A can of lower-salt vegetable soup is combined with canned tomatoes and convenient canned chicken. Zippy Sweet and Sour Beets can be served as a hot vegetable or a cold pickle. Since I discovered that more than 50 percent of the peaches harvested in the United States are canned, I decided to share my favorite recipe for a winter peach dessert — Homey Peach Cobbler.

Easy Chicken Vegetable Soup

1 can (5-7 ounces) boneless chicken
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed lower-salt vegetable soup
⅔ cup canned chopped tomatoes with juice
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning

With a fork, break chicken (undrained) into large pieces in a microwave-safe 1-quart measure or 1½ -quart casserole. Gently stir in remaining ingredients. Cover with plastic wrap or lid. Microwave (High) 6 to 8 minutes, stirring once, or until hot. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Each serving — ⅓ of recipe: 173 calories, 12g protein, 7g fat, 14g carbohydrate, 690mg sodium, 30mg cholesterol.

Zippy Sweet and Sour Beets

2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 can (16 ounces) sliced beets, drained

Place vinegar, sugar and horseradish in a 2- to 4-cup microwave-safe casserole. Microwave (High) 30 to 60 seconds or until hot. Stir to dissolve sugar. Gently stir in beets. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 servings.

Pickled Beets: Prepare as above. Cover and chill several hours or overnight. Drain and serve cold as pickles.

Each serving: 55 calories, 1g protein, 0 fat, 14g carbohydrate, 200mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Homey Peach Cobbler

1 can (29 ounces) peach slices, undrained
1-2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup water
1 cup buttermilk biscuit mix
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon margarine or butter, melted
Sugar and cinnamon mixture
Vanilla ice cream (optional)

Pour juice from peaches into a microwave-safe 2-quart casserole; stir in 1 to 2 tablespoons sugar, cornstarch, lemon juice and water until smooth. Stir in peaches. Cover with casserole lid and microwave (High) 8 to 10 minutes, stirring twice towards end of cooking, or until sauce is thick.

While fruit cooks, make cobbler topping by combining biscuit mix and 1 tablespoon sugar. Add egg and melted margarine; stir with fork until well mixed. Drop by small spoonfuls around edges of hot fruit, leaving center open. Sprinkle with sugar-cinnamon mixture. Microwave (High), uncovered, 3½ to 4 minutes or until topping no longer looks doughy on top and when pulled apart with fork. Serve warm in individual dishes, spooning fruit over cobbler topping. Top with ice cream, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Each serving — ¼ of recipe: 138 calories, 2g protein, 4g fat, 24g carbohydrate, 211mg sodium, 30mg cholesterol.

Nutritious Recipes Your Family Will Love

We've never been more health conscious. We're into low sodium, low sugar, low fat, low calorie.

We've developed leaner meats, lower fat dairy products and tasty fiber and grain offerings.

The emphasis on cholesterol has given oats a new life. Evidence that oats or oat bran might reduce blood cholesterol levels makes oatmeal a trendy and healthy food. The cholesterol lowering effect of oatmeal and oat bran is actually the effect of the fiber found in these foods. Other foods may offer similar benefits.

Despite wanting lower fat, sodium, sugar and calories, one thing we do not want is low scores for flavor and nutrition. If you're into nutritious eating that doesn't sacrifice flavor, try these recipes.

HEALTH BARS

½ cup raisins
½ cup water
2 carrots, chopped
1 apple, sliced and unpeeled
1 egg
½ cup butter
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup flour
½ cup wheat germ
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup unsalted nuts, optional

Frosting:
¼ cup honey
3 tablespoons plain yogurt

Heat raisins and water to boiling. Place carrots, apple and juice from cooking raisins in blender. Blend on medium speed for 60 seconds. Add egg, butter, salt, vanilla, ginger and cinnamon. Blend 60 seconds more. Combine flour and wheat germ, baking powder and brown sugar in a large bowl. Pour mixture from blender over top. Mix well. Add plumped raisins and ½ cup nuts, if desired. Pour into shallow baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees about 30 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

Frosting: Blend honey with yogurt. Frost baked bars.

Bars are also good without frosting.

Feature Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Audrey Nemeth of Mt. Vernon, Maine. Audrey submitted this recipe for the peanut butter topic of Home On the Range. Unfortunately, it arrived past deadline and we could not use it for the peanut butter collection.

When recipes are received too late, I try to use them later, but unfortunately some good recipes never get printed. Please try to send recipes in advance whenever possible. In this particular case, the envelope was postmarked 10 days before it arrived at the office — obviously a post office error.

Audrey writes that she heard this recipe announced from their local radio station called Yankee Kitchen. "Every one is raving about it."

ANSWER — Jeanne Kenna of Ottsville asked for suggestions on how to organize recipes that she cuts out of the paper. Thanks to Viola Keefer, Helen Nicholas of Riegelsville, Alverna Martin, Wellsboro, and others for the following ideas. Glue the recipes to notebook paper and keep it in a regular three-ring notebook. Recipes are separated according to desserts, meats, candy, etc.

Buy a cheap, small photo album with the plastic cover over each sheet. Slip recipes under the plastic.

If you have school age children, have them print them on recipe cards.

ANSWER — Shirley Schwoerer of Wysox wanted a recipe for making spiced apple rings in a quantity that can be canned. Thanks to Lois Miller of New Freedom for sending the following recipe.

Red Cinnamon Apples

Select firm apples that will not mush during processing. Prepare syrup made from proportions of 1 cup sugar and 2 cups water. Flavor the syrup with cinnamon according to taste and add red food coloring to the desired shade of apples.

Peel apples, slice thick. Boil 3 to 5 minutes in cinnamon syrup. Pack into clean jars and fill with cinnamon syrup to within ½ -inch of top of jar. Screw lids on firmly. Process in boiling water bath for 15 minutes for pint jars.

ANSWER — Ethel Megonnell of Harrisburg wanted a recipe for homemade tomato soup that doesn't curdle. Thanks to a reader from Kutztown, Janis Reinford, Newville, and from Ethel Megonnel of Paradise for the following.

Cream Of Tomato Soup

Saute:
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons chopped onion
Blend in:
3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dash garlic salt, oregano, basil and thyme
Remove from heat. Gradually stir in:
2 cups tomato juice.
Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute.
Stir hot mixture into:
2 cups cold milk
Heat almost to boiling and serve.

Tomato Soup To Can

1 peck tomatoes
6 medium onions
1 bunch celery
Cut up and cook until soft. Put through a sieve and mix together. Add:
⅓ cup sugar
¼ cup salt
½ cup flour
½ cup margarine
Cook at a simmering boil for 45 minutes. Put in pint jars and seal while hot. To serve, boil a jar of soup with ¾ jar of water. Immediately before serving, remove from heat and add:
1 cup cream.

Old Stand-by Tomato Soup

2 cups pulpy tomato juice
½ teaspoon baking soda
4 cups whole milk
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
2 tablespoons butter
Boil tomato juice. Add baking soda (can be omitted if juice and milk are mixed together while still cold. But be careful not to let soup boil or it will curdle). Stir and quickly add milk, salt and pepper to taste. Heat and add butter. Serve with saltines.

ANSWER — A Virginia reader wants more low calorie, low fat recipes. Readers, please submit these on a regular basis. Check page B6 for several. Also, Alverna Martin, Wellsboro, writes that she cuts back one-third to one-half of the shortening and sugar amount requested in cake and other baked recipes. Below are low-fat and low-calorie recipes from Beverly Mey.

Greek Pasta With Scallops

3 ounces linguine
1 pound scallops
2 teaspoons olive oil
2 garlic pieces, minced
1 regular-size tomato, chopped
1 teaspoon oregano

Cook linguine and drain. Heat olive oil, garlic, scallops, tomatoes and herbs. Saute 5 minutes or until scallops are opague.

Remove from heat and stir in cheese. Spoon scallop mixture over the linguine. Toss until coated. Serves 4.

Onion Rings

2 cups onion rings, sliced ¼ -inch thick
3 egg whites, beaten
⅓ plus 2 teaspoons bread crumbs
¼ cup cornmeal
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
Paprika
Pepper
In heavy skillet, boil one-inch of water and a metal steamer over it. Separate onion rings and steam for 4 to 5 minutes.

In a large bowl, combine onions and egg whites, tossing until coated evenly. Mix remaining ingredients in a pie plate and with a fork, dip rings a few at a time, until coated. Place on a cookie sheet sprayed with liquid shortening. Bake six minutes until golden. Turn and bake 3 minutes longer.

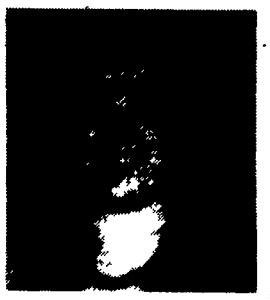
TAKING TIME

by Rebecca Wolf

Extension Home Economist



The last two weeks I have been working with employees trying to help them manage their family responsibilities and work obligations better. One of the difficulties is the stress associated with their own ailing health or concerns about another family member's health care.

As the country's population continues to age, we will see more and more adults take on the role of "caregiver." Most of these people have already been caregivers for their own children, but now they are facing a very different challenge -- that of caring for their aging parents, spouses and other relatives.

Seventy to eighty percent of all primary caregivers are women -- wives, daughters, daughters-in-law, and granddaughters. Many are employed and still face the demands of teenage children in the home. Add to that the reality that the person they care for may resent their help. (Many caregivers don't realize this is a normal reaction to the aging person's sense of lost independence and control.).

Caregiving can take its toll on a person both physically and emotionally. Caregivers may begin to feel they have nothing left to give. A daughter may start to feel anger or frustration with her father after constantly caring for his needs and neglecting her own personal interests. This can lead to illness, increased use of alcohol or drugs and marital problems.

If you are a caregiver for an elderly family member, I'd like to share some ideas with you that may reduce the strain you are expecting. These suggestions encourage you to share the responsibilities and concerns with others.

At Work

Be honest with your supervisor about the nature and extent of your caregiving responsibilities. Don't wait for crisis before talking! Until employers become informed about the seriousness of this stress -- until they realize that their employees can't work as effectively because of the strain, they will do little to create support in the business community.

Suggest through the proper channels that your employer consider options like flex-time, day care assistance, and information and referral support.

Talk to your local area agency on aging. They are aware of community benefits and options that will help you with daytime care. The agency is listed in the blue pages of your phone book.

At Home

If at all possible, in some way, allow the care-receiver to reciprocate your help in a small way. Could your mom watch the door and tell you when the children come home? Could your aunt keep the clothes in a stack on her lap as you fold? This involvement helps maintain a person's sense of dignity and worth.

Ask support groups and health care companies about tools that will allow your dad to maintain his independence in as many ways as possible. Ask about equipment that will decrease your physical strain. Are there mechanized chairs or lifts you could use? Can you afford to hire a laundry service or cleaning service? Perhaps a distant family member can finance the expense as his contribution to your parent's care. Don't be embarrassed to ask for financial assistance from family members and from government agencies.

Delegate normal household upkeep to other family members. Remember to take a break from caregiving! Take a day off to be with friends, to see a matinee, or to get your hair done. Take a break, and DON'T FEEL GUILTY! By treating yourself to some well-deserved time off, you will be more productive when you return to the demands of your family.

Not only caregivers but also other family members need to be sensitive to these concerns. In fact if other family members are in a position to help and don't, the primary caregiver suffers increased resentment, frustration and regret.

If you're not a caregiver, take the time to support those people in your family who are. Volunteer to give them a day off. Recognize that you can take on some responsibilities. This will encourage your wife or sister, and it will strengthen your relationship with her.

Perhaps you can make some phone calls to community assistance groups, to an insurance company or to a physician. Perhaps you can investigate area adult day care or respite care options. Are you able to take care of some of the financial details for the family? Can you complete other tasks -- transporting children to after-school activities, buying groceries, vacuuming?

In this decade, nearly every family will experience the strain associated with caring for and making decisions concerning an older adult. Our efforts to support caregivers and, as a caregiver, to take time off to recuperate are essential to holding our families together as we face these challenges.

Kids And Moms Compete At Pedal Power Pull

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — It was a "hot" time in the Lancaster Ford Tractor shop, Rohrerstown Road, last Friday night.

About 200 people turned out for Lancaster Ford's annual pedal power pull where 54 contestants huffed and puffed to pull ahead to victory.

Competition was stiff as winners in each category had to have additional weights hooked to the pedal tractor to determine the champion.

Andrew David Herr and his brother Allan hoped to win one of the $150 worth of toy tractor prizes.

To get ready for competition, the boys said they practice by taking their dog, Spike, on a wagon ride.

While waiting to compete, the two little boys, dressed in red plaid shirts, blue jeans, and Ford tractor hats, talked tractors. "I like Ford best," Andrew said.

Their dad, Allen, has three Ford tractors that he uses to farm 80 acres of corn, wheat, tobacco, soybeans and hay. The boys plan to be farmers and use Ford tractors just like their dad.

Andrew said, "I like to watch the commercials and movies about Ford tractors."

3-4-year-old division

In the three to four year-old class, Jay Lehman placed first. The four-year-old son of Steve and Mary Lehman, said he won because his dad told him, "Go fast." He did.

Charlie Book, 4-year-old son of Charles and Julie Book of Pamyra, placed second. Ken Nolt, 4-year-old son of John and Alta from Mt. Airy said that he won because he saw the prizes and wanted one of the tractors.

5-6-year-old division

In the five-to-six-year-old division, first place honors went to Nathan Denlinger of Strasburg. The son of Bev and Ken Denlinger said that he practiced the day before competition by pulling big blocks on his pedal tractor.

Mark Shoemaker of Kirkwood placed second. The son of Staurt and Ann Shoemaker, Mark said that his dad puts cement weights on the back of the pedal tractor.

Third place went to Andrew Longenecker of Elizabethtown. The son of Fred and Sherry Longenecker said that he didn't practice before but he does ride lots of bike, plus he said, "I expected to win."

Eight-year-old-Frankie Hableie, son of Fred and Cindy, won in the 7-8-year-old class. He said that he has won lots of times.

Jeff Nolt, 8, of Peach Bottom, placed second because, "I throw lots of hay bales," he said.

Jay Irvin, 8, son of Irvin and Anna, Ephrata, placed third in his division.

Ladies Competition

Kids from ages three to eight competed while parents cheered, yelled, and clapped, but it was the mothers who stole the show.

"Come on, Mommy. You can do it," a five-year-old cheered.

"Don't stop...keep pedaling!" another child yelled.

Husbands whispered hurried instructions to their wives: "Pedal as fast as you can and don't stop. Look straight ahead. Don't pay attention to the crowd."

While kids screamed and cheered as their mothers pedalled fast and furiously, husbands struggled to appear non-charlant — despite hoping their wives would win the dinner-for-two prize.

In the end, Lori Rowland of Quarryville pulled 270 pounds past the finish line to beat eight other contestants in the ladies class.

P.L. "Larry" Groff said, "Although the ladies won't admit it, I think they have been practicing. This is the stiffest competition we've ever had."

The champion lady denies practicing. In fact, Lorie, the wife of Dean Rowland, said it was the first time she entered a tractor pull.

"I didn't know about the ladies competition until I registered my kids tonight," she said.

Lori credits her victory to "drinking lots of chocolate milk and chasing after the kids."

Although her sons Jason, 5, and Jeremy, 7, didn't take home any trophies, they sure were proud of their mom.

Winners in the seven to eight year-old class include from left: Frankie Halbeie, 1, Jeff Nolt, 8; and Jay Irvin, 8.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know how to make filling in the oven. She also wanted to know which leaves are taken off tomato plants when they are staked. Thanks to M.L., Pine Grove, for writing that the leaves that sprout between the crotch of tomato plant limbs must be pinched off. M.L. also sent a oven filling recipe as did Alverna Martin, Wellsboro.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

The robots are coming! The robots are coming!

Maybe sooner than we think.

For years .... decades .... probably centuries, people who milk cows have periodically pondered what it would be like to not have to cover milking chores twice a day, every day, seven days a week, Christmas, Easter, July Fourth, New Year's Eve, birthday, anniversary, and ad infinitum.

Those far-sighted foreseers who look ahead to science-fiction technology have envisioned for some time the likelihood that the day will come when that very thing will happen. Someday, the speculation proposed, robots will be devised to milk cows, thus eliminating the drudgery (well, on some days it seems that) of twice-a-day, every day, Christmas, Easter, etc.

You can stop chuckling.

The robots are coming. In fact, one has already arrived.

The only one in the world currently resides in the Netherlands. Which is not surprising, in light of the fact that, smart as we like to think we are, much of our "new" technology these days originates elsewhere in the world.

Now the robots are coming into our back yard, with the recent signing of an agreement between the pioneering dairy-robot company, Gascoigne-Mellotte, and the University of Maryland. A research robotic milking setup is reportedly to be in place by the end of the year for use with the University's 150-head milking herd at Clarksville, Maryland, just outside Washington, D.C.

I confess to being "udderly" fascinated with this whole idea.

Computerization, of course, is the foundation of the system. Cows wear electronic identification, already a proven method in today's most ultramodern milking and feeding systems. The computer I.D. signals the unit to allow a cow into the stall, supplies her with an amount of feed dependent on her production, and adjusts the milking units to fit the cow's udder "arrangement". It also signals such things as body temperature, flagging changes which might signify sickness or reproductive cycling.

Udder area is automatically washed and prepped for milking before what the engineers label the "automatic cluster attacher" fastens individual units to each teat. When milk flow ceases, automation removes the robot milker and disinfects it prior to use on the next herdmate.

Like any other emerging technology, there are undoubtedly numerous "bugs" to work out of the system.

How, I wonder, will it be affected by a nervous newcomer heifer shifting around and "dancing" at the unfamiliar feel of a milking machine. Will there be another robotic arm to soothingly talk to her and gently pat her flank until she feels comfortable with the milking process?

We registered breeders striving to put together good cow families sometimes keep around a few proven, pedigreed old cows with udders lowered or perhaps tilted with age, due to their ability to produce outstanding offspring. How much problem would be posed by a less than perfect udder?

Or how about a high-producing young cow that may have injured a quarter, but still milks well in the remaining three? Would that fit in the robotic system?

And what about those inevitable high-strung gals, good producers and reproducers, which nevertheless let a foot fly and remove the milkers themselves on occasion? Could you afford a back-up for breakage?

Speculation is that a unit might run upwards of $90,000 and would obviously be sensitive equipment due to the nature of the technology and mechanics. Can't you just imagine the potential end result of a piece of equipment of that cost and sensitivity when it meets the I-mean-business end of an irate 1,800-pound cow's back foot?

Despite the inevitable hurdles, robot milkers will surely become part of the future dairy business, as routine someday as the once gee-whiz technologies of artificial insemination and embryo transfer.

Yes, indeed, the robots are coming.

But I'm not going to start studying the help-wanteds just yet.

'Search For Spring' At State Museum

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "SEARCH FOR SPRING" is a new program blossoming at The State Museum on Sunday, March 11 from 1-4 P.M. This festival of esteemed guests and activities highlights the emerging wonders of nature. Museum visitors will see and hear "spring" everywhere. Planned by The Public Services Staff and sponsored by The Friends of The State Museum, all activities are free.

The Barolk Folk will provide sounds of spring with their vibrant repertory of traditional music performed on hammer dulcimer, recorder, viol, guitar and piano. Terry Maclay of Nature's Harmony will share the sweet pungent smells of spring herbs and provide visitor's with a spring tonic for tasting. Nan Keenen with her interpretations for the Victorian Art of Florigraphy will invite visitors to paint a "Meadow Mural," hear a fable about the gifts of spring, and solve "Flower Riddles."

Gene Wengert, a science specialist at Cumberland Valley High School, will show slides and bring animal friends. Audubon Society representative Mary Herrold will assist visitors with bird identification.

Dr. Curtis Barnet and Miriam Meyers, licensed animal rehabilitators, will bring recovering wildlife and discuss their role in returning these animals to the natural habitat. Members of the Penn-Cumberland Garden Club will encourage visitors to sign "The Green Pledge" and consider other ways of conserving our natural resources.

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

Friendships Are Important In Later Life

Recent research has learned that having friends and therefore, being a friend, helps an older person's life satisfaction and morale. In fact, most researchers claim that friends are more important than family relationships to morale and well-being in old age. Friendships foster feelings of attachment based on equality, consensus, and the sharing of good times. They are particularly important as sources of enjoyment. As such, they have an especially important impact on an older person's sense of immediate well-being.

Because friendships are voluntary, not obligatory, they many times are more important to well being than family relationships. Freedom of choice in selecting friends promotes feelings of independence. The demands of the relationship with friends are flexible and support is optional. Also, expectations may be less than what an older person expects from his or her family.

Friends offer their support voluntarily and the relationship is based on mutual gratification. Friends often fill gaps left by lost roles and relationships (to some degree) more than family. Friends also tend to involve older persons in the larger society, because they have grown up in the same era, with shared lifestyles and interest.

What kinds of support do friends most often give? Emotional intimacy and companionship. The elderly frequently turn to friends when they are lonely. Having a confidant is related to good mental health and high morale. It seems to act as a buffer when stressful life events occur. While instrumental support is more likely to be given by family members, friends also provide short-term emergency service and help with certain tasks such as shopping, light chores and errands. Friends are also an avenue for self-worth reaffirmation in later life. This happens when friends make each other feel competent, liked and needed.

Theorists have assrted that feeling needed is crucial to an older person's sense of well-being. They maintain that after widowhood and retirement, older people need relationships with others who appreciate them and share their needs and interests; roles that can be filled only by their contemporaries.

They also say that giving support to friends in later life can be gratifying because it enables people to contribute to others and suggest that support will be there for them when they need it. It also is an important means of guaranteeing security in old age.

Friends and family are both important support providers. While they may be substituted for each other, they are usually governed by different values and expectations.

New Look For 4-H Benefit Auction

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster 4-H Benefit Auction has a new date and a new look this year.

The two-day event will be held at the Farm and Home Center on Friday and Saturday, March 23 and 24.

Items will be arranged in a home-like setting, from kitchen to bedroom.

The theme, "Safety in the home," will be stressed. Lancaster General Hospital will offer free blood pressure screening.

Zoann Parker, 4-H extension agent, said that other years the auction was combined with the 4-H Fair in August, which did not allow enough time to adequately cover each event.

This year the 4-H clubs are determined to make the auction a spectacular success. On Friday evening, 218 Winross trucks will be auctioned.

Starting at 6:30 a.m. on Saturday, 4-H'ers will serve an omelet breakfast until 9:00. Auctioneer Harold Keller will start the bidding at 9:00 a.m.

"Donations have doubled this year," Parker reported. "We are thrilled by those donating items and with those who are willing to pick them up."

Items include new accessories for all rooms of the house — quilts, pictures, lamps, dishes, pillows and more. For the hobbyist, several Winross trucks and toy tractors will be auction throughout the day. For those who work in the outdoors, mulch, bedding plants, trees and farming and gardening tools are available.

While parents are bidding, children can enjoy visiting the farm yard animals on display.

Starting at 11:00 a.m., a pig roast luncheon will be available. Two pigs will be roasted to serve about 450 people. A concession stand with munchies also will be available for those who love to eat.

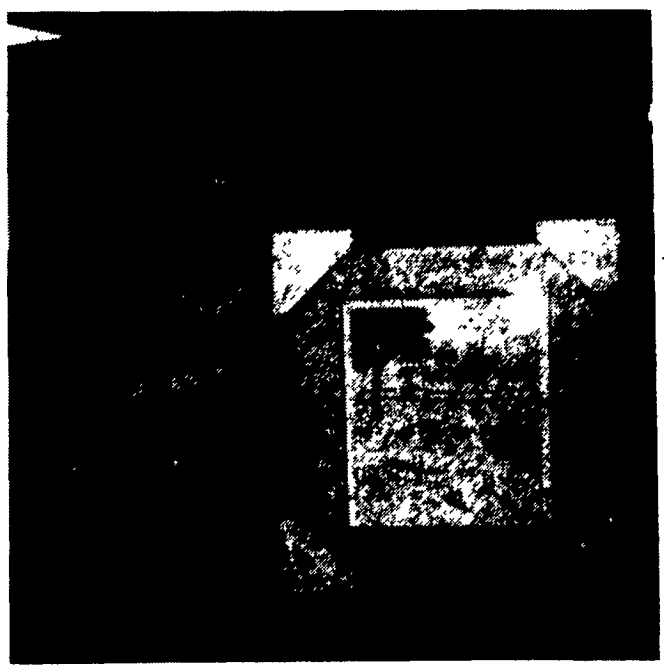
At 2:00 p.m., livestock including an Arabian filly, a quarter-horse, calves, and peeps will be auctioned.

Parker said 4-H'ers hope to raise $10,000 to use for funding. Last year, the auction earned $6,800.

"The monies raise at the auction help keep 4-H affordable for every child," Parker said. "We want to keep it that way."

Presently the county provides club activities for 4,000 4-H members and provides training for 650 volunteer adult leaders. Insurance, project materials, and partial transportation costs are paid from these monies.

For a listing of items to be auctioned, call the extension office (717) 394-6851. All donations are tax deductible.



Zoann Parker, Lancaster extension 4-H agent, holds a painting, by Christian Newswanger, that will be auctioned for the benefit of Lancaster 4-H.

When children must share a closet, prevent arguments over space by painting each half a different color.

Solving The Problem Of Hunger One Family At A Time

A Gift Of Hope — A Gift Of Life

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW WINDSOR, MD — For half of the human race, the world is a hungry place. Every 24 hours, hunger and starvation kills 35,000 people — 24 every minute.

Many people, although sympathetic toward the plight of the hungry, feel frustrated by not knowing how to help the hungry.

In 1930, an Indiana farmer, Dan West, helped distribute powdered milk to those suffering from the destruction of the Spanish Civil War.

He believed that handouts made people more dependent upon outside help. He sensed the humilation and despair the people felt as they waited in line each day for their daily rations.

West reasoned that the best way to help others is to find ways for them to help themselves.

"If the people had their own cow, they could care for it, milk it and feed themselves," he said.

His idea birthed the Heifer Project International, a non-profit, interfaith organization helping to alleviate world hunger, one family at a time.

According to the Project's rules, the recipient must pass on the heifer's first female offspring to a neighbor in need.

In 1944, the first shipment of heifers was sent to a country in need. Since then, the Heifer Project International has provided over 90,000 animals; 1,350,000 fowl; 5,000 bee hives and 1,300,000 fish fingerlings to impoverished families throughout the world.

Gifts have been sent to 110 countries and 33 states in the U.S.

Sue Richardson, associate for the the volunteer activities, recently accompanied a shipment to Uganda. "When you see the difference this project makes — it gives parents hope, allows children to attend schools — you are never the same," she said.

The Heifer Project is a thoroughly researched program that not only gives animals, but provides training and breeding assistant along with a self-governing community group. A training program is carried on by VIVA, Vets In Volunteer Assistance.

Each request for animals is thoroughly examined. Some are denied. The Project's Department of Global Services examines each request carefully and works with sponsoring groups to complete formal proposals. Final approval of projects is made by the board of directors on basis of need, adequate facilities, training of participants and a plan for passing on a gift.

When Richardson accompanied the Uganda shipment, she said the recipients needed to have prepared a zero-grazing area.

"Part of the problem has been with the nomadic nature of the Ugandians," Richardson said. "The grazing cattle have destroyed the environment. For that reason, we require that recipients prepare a zero-grazing area to house the animal. These vary in style from place to place, but typically are built with sticks and grass-thatched roofs.

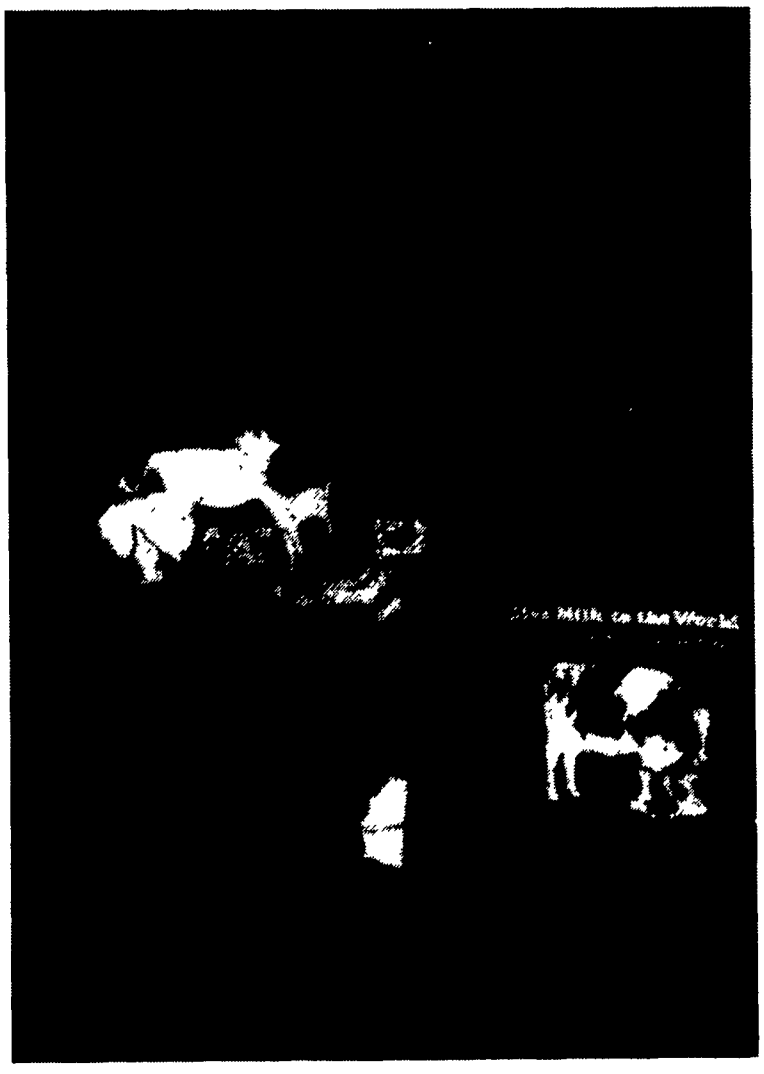
Elephant grass needs to be planted so that the animal can be hand-fed. This requires the family to have access to a plot of land. Sometimes families will walk three miles to an available plot to gather elephant grass for their animals.

"Time and distance mean nothing to the African people," Richardson said. "They are so thrilled to get an animal, that they generally do a terrific job of caring for it."

If they don't, a self-governing committee appointed by the community decides whether or not the animal should be taken away and given to another family.

The first female offspring will be passed on to another person in need by the recipient of this heifer.

These children will now have milk to drink because someone cared enough to send them a cow.



Sue Richardson, associate for volunteer activities at the Heifer Project New Windsor Office, wears and holds samples of sweatshirts sold to promote helping others help themselves by giving a cow.

If an animal dies, the committee decides if it has died through neglect.

Richardson tells about a community that had been given a bull. They were warned that it needed to be fed more to remain healthy. The community ignored the warnings and the bull died. Distraught the community begged the Project for another. "We have cows, but we cannot breed them. Please send us another bull."

They were told that the bull was their responsibility and since it died, it was the community's responsibility to replace it. By saving a percentage from the sales of milk, the community eventually collected enough money to purchase another bull. This time, their care keeps the bull quite healthy.

"The experience taught them to become independent," Richardson remarked. "And that is the purpose of the project. We do not want them to look to us for handouts."

Not only is milk an essential part of the diet, but the manure is used to improve soil quality. Recipients are taught to build a trough made with mud and clay to collect the manure until ready to spread. Pictures show the difference between the scrawny corn and the tall, verdant leaves of those fertilized.

After each shipment, extensive records are kept to show what happens to families who receive a cow. In addition to increasing their nutritional intake, families benefit economically by selling excess milk to neighbors.

For example, in 1984, Emmanuel Pallangyo of Mulala village earned less than one dollar a day. He lived on subsistence farming that barely provided for his family's needs. Then he received a pregnant heifer that has provided 13 liters per day average during the early months of each three lactations. This has provided him with an income of approximately $4 to $5 per day over and above what his family consumes. From the sale of milk, he has been able to build a house with a cement foundation, oil-treated lumber, and a corrugated steel roof. He has purchased a second cow and been able to buy an additional one-half acre land. He has passed on a heifer calf to his neighbor who was selected by the project committee.

"It's unbelievable — the amount of red tape required to transport animals to another country," Richardson said.

In Harrisburg, donated animals are quarantined in a holding barn for 30 days. When a shipment is loaded in a cargo plane, care must be given to load it so that it is balanced.

Current needs

Richardson said that only high quality milk producing cows are sent to other countries. Currently, the Project needs 110 Holstein heifers and six bulls for a shipment to Jordan. Jerseys are needed for a project in North Carolina and Kentucky.

For those who cannot donate a whole heifer, shares can be purchased. Gifts are tax deductible.

For more information, write to Sue Richardson or John Dieterly, P.O. Box 188, New Windsor, MD 21776 or call (301) 635-6161 or (800) 422-0474.

RICHMOND, VA — More than 180 Virginia FFA members, including members of the Pennsylvania FFA Officer Team, were in Lynchburg, Virginia, February 24 and 25, for the FFA Made For Excellence Conference, which was held at the Radisson Hotel.

During the two-day conference FFA members from across the commonwealth found out what made them unique, how they could develop and maintain a positive outlook on themselves and on life, how to win over challenges and conflicts with others, how to determine what they wanted in life and how to achieve it?

Matt Lohr, Virginia FFA president, said that, "FFA members had the chance to learn and experience the excitement of workshops conducted by former national FFA officers and Washington Conference Program staff."

The Virginia FFA is an association of 13,200 students in 210 local chapters preparing for more than 200 different agricultural careers. FFA activities and award programs complement instruction in agriculture by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge gained in classes. Developing agricultural leadership, cooperation and citizenship are FFA's major objectives.

PA Teen Named Winner In National Wool Contest

ACME (Westmoreland Co.) — Jennifer Stairs, 17, daughter of Jesse and Joan Stairs of Acme, in Westmoreland County, was second runner-up in the Junior Division of the National Make It Yourself With Wool competition held in Phoenix, Arizona in January.

As the Pennsylvania winner, Jennifer won a trip to Phoenix for the contest, and as the second runner-up in the national contest, she won $500.00 and a set of luggage.

For the MIYWW contest, Jennifer made a fuschia wool wrap coat with a shawl collar from a vogue pattern.

The contest is sponsored on a national level by the American Sheep Industry Women, and in Pennsylvania by the Sheep and Wool Producers.

In 1991, the national competition will be held in January in Long Beach, California. It is not too soon to begin thinking of Pennsylvania's 1990 contest, especially since this time of the year, wool fabric, which must be at least 60% wool, can be found on sale in most fabric stores. 4-H'ers who are thinking of this year's sewing project might want to make their project of wool, and the garment could be used in both programs.

There are four categories to the MIYWW competition: pre-teen, junior, senior, and adult. For information and guidelines for Pennsylvania MIYWW, please contact Shirley Dunn, R.D. 3, Box 942, Chicora, Pa. 16025, or Janet Mawhinney, R.D. 2, Box 141 A, Waynesburg, Pa. 15370.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative District 5 Holds Annual Meeting

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) — When Atlantic Dairy Co-Op members received their equity payout checks this year, according to Director J. Wade Groff, they smiled broadly.

"Order 4 has a strong class 1 market, one of the few in the U.S. who do," Groff told members at the District 5 annual dinner meeting held on March 1, at the Bird in Hand Restaurant.

He reported, "Butterfat is the drag of the market while cheese is the drive of the market."

Recently the Co-Op signed an agreement with the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, which will allow producers to designate a milk amount each month to go for world hunger. In the past, Groff said, most of the milk powder supply came from Canada, but that is now dried up. Three big milk powder plants are in the Order 4 area.

Three farmers received 25 year awards for consistent production, quality, and supply: John Kreider, Trout Spring; Mel Eby, Paradise; and Richard Barge.

Delegate Glenn Binkley reported a rosy picture for Inter-state profit. Equity payments were 6.8 million with 24.2 million returned to members and 1.6 million paid in quality premiums.

"The Co-Op has one of the best and most aggressively patron refunds among co-ops," Don Breiner, the speaker for the evening event, reported. "Since the merger of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative and Lehigh Valley Farmers, $29 million has been paid back."

Breiner stressed the importance of commitment to the Co-Op. "The Co-Op negotiates and talks for the dairy farmer and it is only as strong as you make it."

He warned members of the necessity to clean up drugs stored on the farm. He said of the controls placed on drug storage and approval, "We must abide by these laws. They aren't going to go away because FDA is pressured from consumer groups."

Breiner said, "Tidy up the place every day of the week to maintain the required passing score of 90 for ratings. The ratings are tough, not unfair, but tough. You should be able to score a 90 every day of the week."

In other business, PA Alternate Dairy Princess Angela Spickler told the audience that some of her best friends are cows. She said that growing up on a farm taught her that to succeed you must work hard.

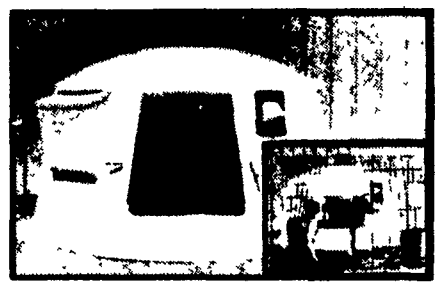
Poly Dome Means Healthier Calves.

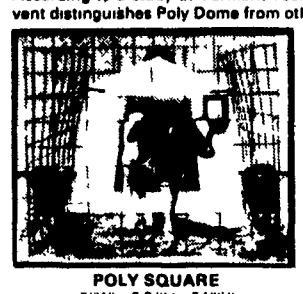
All-Season



POLY DOME 60" (H) x 86 (D)

Raising calves is no easy chore! But dairymen everywhere have discovered the benefits of raising their calves in Poly Dome Calf Nurseries. In fact, Poly Dome is the first choice of dairy farmers throughout the United States and Canada. After comparing Poly Dome Calf Nurseries with modified wooden hutches, the University of Minnesota-Morris found that Poly Dome calves were healthier and grew faster than calves kept in wooden huts. And Poly Dome is now being tested at several universities across the country with similar results.

According to a study at Vermont Technical College, this rotatable air vent distinguishes Poly Dome from other huts on the market.



POLY SQUARE
5'(W) x 6 6 '(L) x 54"(H)

MINI DOME
72 '(D) x 68"(H)

DON'T ELIMINATE PROFITS!

Poly Dome will help put money back into your pocket faster. Why risk burnt lungs, frozen ears and tails? Poly Dome will help eliminate ammonia build-up. Your calves will be healthier and they'll grow faster. Your heifers will be part of your money-making milking herd sooner. And with three different dome styles to choose from, you can select the one that works best for you-- Poly Dome, Poly Square or Mini Dome.

4-H HAPPENINGS

HERE'S TO 4H TOMORROW'S LEADERS!

1990 4-H Sausage Sale

The 1990 4-H Sausage Sale is over and it was a record year. A total of 3,500 pounds of sausage was sold, a 30 percent increase over 1989. Froehlich Packing of Johnstown, who processed the sausage, said that a 250 pound hog yields about 125 pounds of sausage. This means that it took about 25 to 30 hogs to provide the sausage that was sold.

There were seven persons who worked about 12 hours each to process the hogs into sausage which is a total of 84 man-hours. One reason that the sausage sale is a good project for 4-H'ers is that a useful agricultural product is being sold and local people are working to produce and process the product.

The top 10 selling clubs in 1990 were (1) Dairy Club with 1270 lbs., (2) Blacklick Valley Community Club with 420 pounds, (3) Lamb Club with 312 pounds, (4) Jackson Township Horse and Pony Club with 242 pounds, (5) Pleasant Hill Swine Club with 230 pounds, (6) Jackson Township Community Club with 160 pounds, (7) Exchange Club with 156 pounds, (8) Capon Club with 150 pounds, (9) Ebensburg Horse and Pony Club with 136 pounds, and (10) Pleasant Hill Community Club with 78 pounds. The 1,270 pounds of sausage sold by the Dairy Club represents about 35 percent of the total sausage sold in 1990.

4-H Sheep Club Members Welcome

Youth who are interested in feeding market lambs or raising breeding sheep are invited to attend the reorganizational meeting of the Lancaster County 4-H Woolies Club at 7:00 p.m. on Monday, March 19, 1990 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Election of officers will highlight the meeting activities and members will receive project books.

To be eligible for membership in the clubs, members must be between the ages of 8 and 18. They have the responsibility of caring for and feeding their own sheep and keeping records on their lambs. They also have the opportunity of showing their lambs and eventually selling them at one of the 4-H auctions.

For more information about the 4-H Club program, contact the Penn State cooperative extension, 394-6851.

PA 4-H Week

4-H members across the state are celebrating Pennsylvania 4-H Week March 11 to 17.

4-H, the youth education program of the Pennsylvania State University, began 76 years ago in Mercer County and quickly spread to every corner of the state.

To promote Pennsylvania 4-H Week, Bucks County commissioners Andrew Warren, Mark Schweiker, and Lucille Trench will proclaim 4-H Day in Bucks County on March 14. Receiving the proclamation will be the Bucks County 4-H ambassadors, Josh McMahon, Beatrix Histand, Megan Montgomery. These 4-H members were chosen to promote 4-H in Bucks County for one year.

More than 3,750 youth are involved in the 4-H program in Bucks County. Boys and girls 8-19 participate in 4-H through organized clubs, special interest groups, school enrichment programs, and short-term projects.

The informal education program uses a wide range of projects and activities to give youth opportunities to gain self-confidence, practice skills, and develop leadership potential. Members may choose from many project areas, including microwave cooking, horses, photography, gardening, woodworking, sewing, small engines, and bicycling. Adult volunteer leaders and teen leaders play an important role in guiding, advising, and encouraging their 4-H members.

28 Foot Length Shown

Optional deck over the neck is 7½ 'x8'

The FLIP-UP BEAVERTAIL raises and lowers in seconds -- slide out ramps are stored under the beavertail. The Hillsboro Flatbed features a full 96" deck width which is more value than the competition.

The Hillsboro Flatbed is available in two styles; the 20' and 24' trailer with standard neck, and the 28', 30' and 32' trailer with heavy duty neck.

VERSATILE — RUGGED — RELIABLE and REASONABLY PRICED!

The Hillsboro Flatbed Trailer with flip-up beavertail can be the one trailer that means lower cost for you. Here's why!!

VERSATILITY! That's what makes a Hillsboro trailer such a good investment. With the beavertail down it's an excellent trailer for moving wheeled equipment. Flip the beavertail up and it adds an extra four feet of deck space for hauling hay and other bulky loads.

HERE'S WHAT HILLSBORO QUALITY MEANS - All Hillsboro trailers are manufactured in precise jigs and fixtures which assures excellent alignment of axles, a better pulling trailer, a level and square trailer.

HILLSBORO WORKMANSHIP INCLUDES-Exceptional weld quality, material that is chemically cleaned, two coats of high quality paint, material strength engineered into the best flatbed value.

CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

You'll get more out of an Eby aluminum grain body. Lightweight and rugged aluminum provides rigid, fuel-efficient support to fill your grain hauling needs.

Eby packs years of experience, workmanship and performance into every aluminum body it manufactures. And special Eby options let you customize your body to your individual operation. Available in standard lengths, each unit is designed to provide you with an investment in durable performance and practical economy.

Look over these outstanding features.

- Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction.
- Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting.
- Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

Flash (2) Late Model Used Timpte's Nice Priced Right

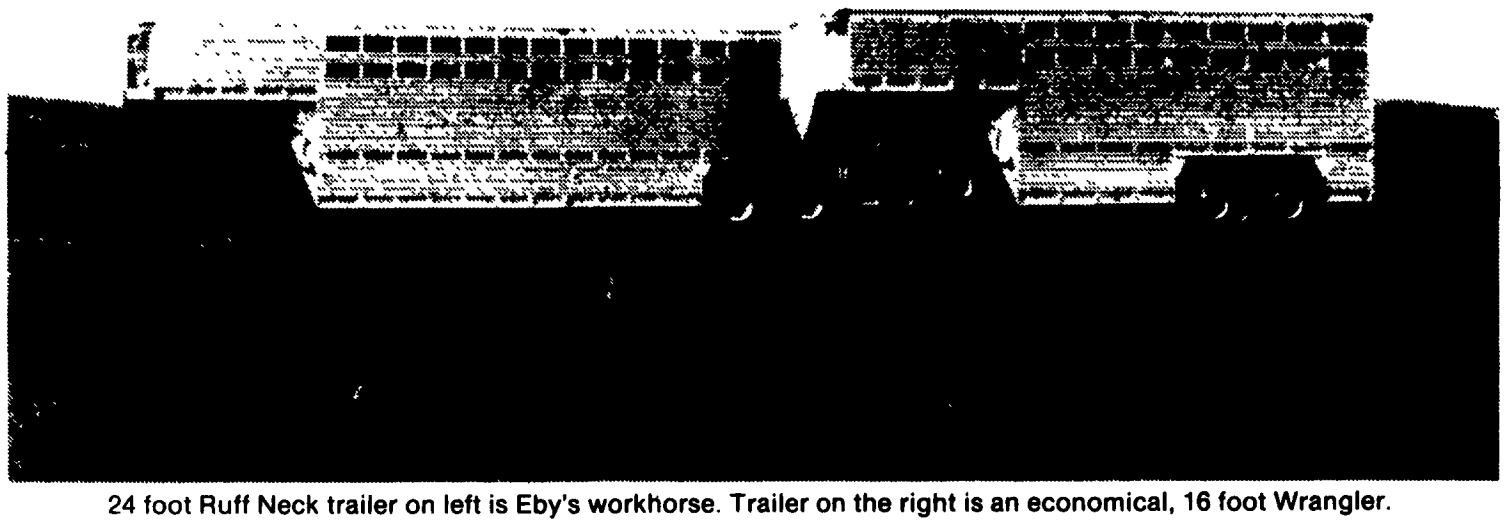
Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

M.H. EBY, INC.
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971



24 foot Ruff Neck trailer on left is Eby's workhorse. Trailer on the right is an economical, 16 foot Wrangler.

Get outstanding value in EVERY Eby trailer.

Whether it's a top-of-the-line Ruff Neck or an economical Wrangler, you know your livestock trailer is built to last if it's from Eby.

Aluminum construction is one of the main reasons these trailers are so durable and reliable. They'll never rust through or need welding. In fact, without ever being painted, an Eby livestock trailer will stay looking new for years.

Standard features make your Eby trailer a profitable investment. Extra-heavy axles, brakes, wheels and tires. Thick aluminum sheet flooring. Sturdy posts and rails. Even an aerodynamically designed front end is standard.

And, while standard features make even the economical Eby Wrangler far more than an average economy-model, we custom-build everything we make. So you tell us what you want. Choose from a long list of options. Select those features you need for your particular operation. Whether it's a Wrangler or deluxe Ruff Neck, the trailer you buy will be the trailer you need.

As a result of the interview, a state winner will be selected for each program area from the Keystone Winners. The state winners will represent Pennsylvania at the National 4-H Club Congress held this December in Chicago.

A total of 13 Adams County 4-H members entered the county competition for 14-18-year-olds.

Cumberland Co. 4-H Goat Club

The Cumberland County 4-H Goat Club organizational meeting was held on February 7, 1990 at the home of Billy Leib.

Officers were elected and the results were president, Kelli Zeigler; vice-president, Bobby Glennon; secretary, Heather Glennon; treasurer, Billy Leib; news reporter, Tim Zeigler; social chairman, Bradley Nye; and county council representatives, Kelli Zeigler and Andy Rook.

The next meeting will be held on March 7 at the Newville Boro Hall at 7:00 p.m.

Warren County Dairy Day Examines BST Use

WARREN (Warren Co.) — The fifth annual Warren County Dairy Day will be held Tuesday, March 13, from 9: a.m. to 3 p.m. at the 4-H Center in the Warren County Fairgrounds.

This year's program will focus on the newest biotechnology in the dairy industry, bovine somatotropin (BST). Also, information will be provided to dairymen on getting more money for their milk and how to better manage their dairy operation.

The potential use of BST has created a lot of controversy. Hanging in the balance is the question as to whether the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) will approve using BST. If BST becomes available, it will be up to each individual farmer to use it or not.

To help county dairy farmers in making decisions about BST, several Dairy Day speakers will discuss their experiences. A Perry, New York dairyman, Jeff True, has conducted a BST trial on his 300-cow dairy herd. Jeff will explain how BST worked for him during a controlled study. True's veterinarian, Dr. Les DeGroff of the Perry Veterinary Clinic, will discuss the health effects of BST-treated cows, as compared to herdmates not on the study. Kathy Klepfer of Monsanto Agricultural Company will give an update of where the technology of BST originated and where it is presently.

The afternoon program will feature John Siglow, general manager of the Producers' Equalization Agency. This agency was established to provide a consistent payment of over-order premiums to all dairy farmers marketing milk in Federal Order 36.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) will be highlighting new management programs that are being offered. David Bigelow, DHIA regional manager, will discuss how dairy farmers can better utilize their DHIA records. He will also explain the new dairy nutrition program and staph aureus testing program.

Housing And
Grouping Heifers

From the time heifers are born until the time they calve, they need to be divided into about eight different management groups, based upon their size and upon the tasks that need to be performed at various stages in their life cycle. These groupings help to determine the kind of heifer housing that is needed. A heifer grouping and housing needs example is summarized in the table.

Some of the management tasks that might be appropriate for each group of heifers are described below; they will vary greatly from farm to farm. Ideally, the housing facilities should be planned to make it possible for these tasks to be performed in an efficient manner.

0-2 Months

A calf hutch or individual pen for each calf is preferable. The number needed will depend on seasonality of calving and the number of "bob calves" to be housed. The table above assumes a uniform calving pattern throughout the year and the need to house some "bob calves." Some goals and tasks for this group are:

- As soon as they are born, prevent fecal contamination of calves from their dam and from other older cattle.
- Provide calves with a well-drained, well-bedded, draft-free rest area.
- Prevent nasal contact with sick calves.
- Prevent calves from inhaling germ-laden air of older cattle. If calves are housed in a barn with older cattle, the direction of the air flow and the drainage of liquids should be from the calves to the older cattle.
- Dehorn calves and remove extra teats.
- Vaccinate calves for IBR and PI, tape calves, and start them on a coccidiostat program if necessary.
- Wean calves and get them started well on dry feed.

2-4 Months

Provide pens or super hutches for groups of 3 to 5 calves. Some goals and tasks for this group are:

- Provide a well-drained, well-bedded, non-crowded, draft-free rest area. Calves at this age do not adjust well to free stalls. Virginia style heifer barns or to slatted pens.
- Continue to protect calves from the manure, the air and drainage of older cattle.
- Teach calves to drink from automatic waterers and to compete with other calves for feed at the manger.
- Encourage the development of a functional rumen before attempting to feed silage and pasture.
- Get calves used to reaching through fences and dividers for feed before introducing them to self-locking headgates. Dumb calves that get hungup in headgates tend to shy away from the manger for extended periods of time.

4-6 Months

Pens or groups can consist of 6-12 calves of similar size. Some goals and tasks for this group are:

- Vaccinate for Brucellosis, IBR, PI[3], BVD, and BRSV, and tape calves.
- Deworm.
- Continue to develop the rumen, and possibly introduce the calves to limited amounts of silage and pasture.

6-9 Months

Group calves according to size.

9-12 Months

Group calves according to size.

12-18 Months

This is the sexually active group. Some goals and tasks for this group are:

- Successful heat detection, getting cows bred, and having provisions for pregnancy checking, heat synchronization, etc.
- Deworm and vaccinate for Lepto and other diseases as needed.
- Tape or weigh heifers and breed according to size.

18-24 Months

Monitor heifers' body condition.

Pre-Calving

Some goals and tasks for this group are:

- Place heifers in dry cow group and monitor closely.
- Feed a good dry cow ration, and acclimate heifers to limited amounts of ingredients that will be included in the lactationg ration.
- Provide a sanitary maternity area.

Footnotes:
1 Approximations are based on heifers calving at 25 months. Seasonal calving patterns would increase heifer housing needs, especially for younger calves.
2 Approximate % of the youngstock herd that is comprised by each group.
3 Less bunk space is needed if heifers have access to TMR most of the day.
4 Approximate % of total heifer pen bedded area needed by each group.
5 Includes "bob calves" that are kept about a week before being marketed. It also assumes a small death loss. No housing is provided for raising bull calves.
6 Hutches are suggested as an alternative to free stalls for young calves.
7 A small % of heifers are non-breeders, and are culled.
8 Close-up group of springing heifers - perhaps housed with the dry cows.

Management Tasks

Some Housing Considerations

What is the goal of your heifer raising program. Is it to raise healthy, growthy heifers that are ready to calve at 22 to 24 months of age, weighing 1200 to 1300 pounds? If so, you can't afford to have facilities that stress calves and heifers at any point in their growth cycle.

How important is it to use existing facilities on the farm?

What impact will the heifer facility have on the future lifetime performance of all the heifers that go thru the facility? This is a difficult question to answer; never the less, it is one that needs to be asked. An existing structure, or a heifer barn that is cheap to build initially, could turn out to be very expensive if it is responsible for stunting heifers and putting a cap on their future production potential, or if it discourages workers from completing essential tasks in timely fashion simply because these tasks are inconvenient or unpleasant to perform. It might be worth spending an extra $500 or so per head at time of construction or remodeling to help make sure that these tasks will get done and that heifers will not experience any unnecessary set backs.

One thing that is essential for all cattle -- heifers and cows -- is fresh air. Provide plenty of it! Sunshine and exercise also are beneficial.

Also consider the handling and storage of feeds and manure, along with the need for handling and restraining heifers, and providing good working conditions.

Calf hutches may be a good way to raise calves, but they don't offer the best working conditions, especially during inclement weather. Solar calf kennels and well-designed, properly-ventilated calf barns, may be an acceptable alternative. They should be designed for easy cleaning and sanitizing and with the capability of being shut down temporarily, if necessary, to interrupt disease cycles.

Open front sheds and bedded packs are still a good way to house heifers. They can be made labor efficient, and there is no need to build additional facilities for storing manure. However, these advantages are partly offset by the added cost and labor involved in bedding the pens. Locating the feeding area outside the pen, preferably under a separate roof, will help keep the bedded area cleaner and drier and reduce bedding needs. If lots and feed alleys need to be scraped this requires additional labor, and provisions must be made for storing manure.

Another advantage of pole barns and open front sheds is they are very flexible. They have many potential uses with little or no renovation costs. Today they can house heifers (any age); tomorrow they might house milking cattle, steers, machinery, commodities, pigs, etc.

Gated free stall barns and Virginia style heifer barns can greatly cut down or eliminate the need for bedding, but the alleys need to be scraped regularly and you need a place to store the manure. That's extra labor and expense. If the alleys are not scraped regularly, hoof problems can occur.

The Virginia-style barn addresses the foot problem by providing two sloped concrete pads, one for the heifers to rest on and one for them to stand on while feeding. Hoof action works manure off these sloped pads, and the hoofs stay drier and healthier. However, the heifers are generally dirtier, but this can also be a problem in other poorly-maintained facilities.

A popular alternative to scraping alleys is to install slatted pits. They eliminate the need for scraping alleys - a great labor saver. The waffle style slats generally provide a higher percentage of openings for the manure to work through. With slats, you need to restrict the use of long hay and bedding. The slats generally stay very clean as long as proper animal density is maintained and as long as there are no extended periods of very cold weather. If manure does freeze on the slats, it works through the slats upon thawing. The pit can be used as the manure storage area or as a gravity flow channel for directing manure to another storage facility.

Fence line feeders can be located at the edge of the slats, and there appears to be no need for a sloped or elevated pad for cattle to stand on while feeding. On slats, heifers' hoofs generally remain dry and healthy.

In long narrow open-front buildings it is desirable to erect a solid, floor-to-ceiling, wind-break partition about every forty feet.

Another concern is how to enter pens to perform necessary tasks, how to constrain the heifers, and how to switch them from pen to pen. Locking head gates make good restraints. Some farmers aim to keep the groups of heifers that need the most attention in the end pens where they are more accessible. Others are building access lanes behind the pens or constructing narrow passage ways for people in pen partitions. If curtains are used in the back wall for summer ventilation, access lanes help protect the curtain by keeping cattle away from it.

When gates are hinged at the pen partition and latched along the fence line feeder, it is a challenge to get heifers to walk around the end of the gate without catching the gate and getting wedged by it. With slatted alleys, since there is no need to scrape alleys and no need to pen heifers out of the way, the gates can be hinged on the fence line. This makes it is easier for people to slip through the gates while heifers are locked in the headgates.

PCCEA Delegates Meet

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Several Franklin County residents met with their representatives recently as part of the annual Legislative Day activities sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations (PCCEA).

"Legislative Day is a chance for people from throughout the Commonwealth to meet with members of the General Assembly so we can express our support of programs offered by the Penn State Cooperative Extension," said Michael John, president of the Franklin County cooperative Extension board of director.

"This year, it is especially crucial to let our representatives know how important it is to increase funding for agricultural research and extension education programs," said John. "Without an increase in state appropriations, it will be difficult to maintain existing programs, let alone continue the progress we've made."

More than 200 PCCEA delegates from across Pennsylvania met in Harrisburg for the day-long session. After meeting with representatives and aides at the Capitol, they were joined by approximately 70 members of the General Assembly for dinner.

PAFC Sets Teen Business Seminar

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives (PAFC) has announced its series of one-day institutes on cooperative education for teens across the state.

Entitled "Business Seminars for Teens," the purpose of these programs is to inform students about the cooperative way of doing business.

According to Carol Buckhout, PAFC executive director, "this format is extremely effective in educating youth about the importance of cooperatives in our business sector." Hosted by local co-op councils, the individual programs may vary, "but the message is the same." Buckhout said the programs could not be run if it were not for the dedicated people involved with co-op councils across the state.

Teens are quizzed about their knowledge of cooperatives. Those that score well are sponsored to the PAFC Summer Youth Institute, a four-day seminar from June 24-27, 1990 at Shippensburg University. It provides more in-depth information about cooperatives as a way of doing business.

Don Robinson, teacher of adult agriculture in Eastern Lancaster County School District, is the Director for the 1990 PAFC Summer Youth Institute. According to Robinson, the youth that attend the program "are always top quality and a great experience to work with."

Yeutter: 'Potential Of Feed Grains Demand Excellent'

PHOENIX, Ariz. — "If there is one segment of agriculture that has excellent demand potential, it's the feed grains industry," noted Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter at the 32nd Annual National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) Corn Classic.

Yeutter said there is tremendous potential for new markets in the U.S. with alternative fuels such as ethanol. "But if you want American agriculture to be a major growth industry, you have to look outside the U.S."

Yeutter said rising income in Thailand, Latin America, and even Eastern Europe could be good markets for U.S. feed grains. But he stressed that it takes years to develop markets and U.S. corn growers should take a long-term view. Much of what happens in world trade will be determined by the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) negotiations.

"These negotiations come along about once a decade. And if we are going to achieve some benefits for American agriculture, we've got between now and December. If we can't do it by then, we may never have another chance until after the turn of the century.

Yeutter also expressed concern about the upcoming 1990 Farm Bill debate and encouraged the more than 1,900 participants to 'be involved and give us your opinions."

"Farmers have been saying for a long time that they want more flexibility in farm programs," said Yeutter. But since the Secretary introduced his flexibility proposal that called for more flexibility based on a normal crop acreage (NCA) approach, some members of Congress have suggested that it goes too far.

"I'd be surprised if farmers are intimidated by that type of flexibility," said the secretary. "I always thought you would prefer to make your own planting decisions rather than have the government do it for you."

Yeutter's farm bill proposals also called for modifications in the farmer owned reserve (FOR) to make it more responsive to market conditions.

"If we are going to be in the business of selling, we've got to serve our customers well. We have to design our farm programs to take good care of those customers. If we don't, they'll go buy somewhere else."

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Yeutter Creates Rural Development Position

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter today created a new position to coordinate the U.S. Department of Agriculture's rural development efforts and appointed Walter (Walt) E. Hill to that post. Hill will become the assistant under secretary for small community and rural development and will report to Roland Vantour, who is the under secretary.

"Walt's agricultural and farming background, combined with his decade of experience as a state legislator, make him well-suited for the newly created position of assistant under secretary," said Yeutter. "He will assist Under Secretary Roland Vantour in overseeing the president's rural development initiative as well as in coordinating departmental activities in support of economic development in rural America."

Since July 1989, Hill has been serving as the special assistant to the under secretary for small community rural development. Prior to coming to Washington he served in the Oklahoma House of Representatives from District 61, which covered Beaver, Cimarron, and Texas counties. Hill was elected in November 1978 and served for over 10 years on various committees, including agriculture, appropriations and budget, and government operations. Beginning in 1986, he also served as house minority leader.

"The key to development of our rural areas is the proper coordination of programs and policies between local, state, and federal governments, and Walt's vast experience will make him a valuable member of our USDA rural development team," Yeutter said.

Hill has been manager and owner of a 2,000-acre irrigated farm in Beaver and Texas counties since 1973. From 1984 to 1989, he served as chairman of the board, Added Assets, Inc., an Oklahoma City real-estate firm. In earlier years he served as an agronomist for Wheatheart Land Development Co. in Perryton, Texas, where he supervised five farms — 60,000 acres — in Oklahoma, Washington, Oregon, Colorado, Texas, and Kansas.

Hill received a B.S. degree from Panhandle State University, Goodwell, Oklahoma, in 1964. He obtained a M.S. degree in soil science from Oklahoma State University in 1966, then a doctorate of science in soil chemistry and plant nutrition from that same institution in 1971.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy-duty steel welded seams, and reinforced for even more strength.

Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5-inch steps to lengths from 6'3" to 7'11". To allow for different row crop spacings, you can offset either right or left 5, 7½, 10 or 12½ inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching, during dumping cycle, and when departing.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight-through air flow.

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20 000 lbs quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly

RICHARDTON

Make your operation safer • Use year round • Variety of crops • All field conditions • Operate in wet and muddy

THE LANDSMAN

by Krause

An Implement That Can Cut Time And Labor Costs By 50%

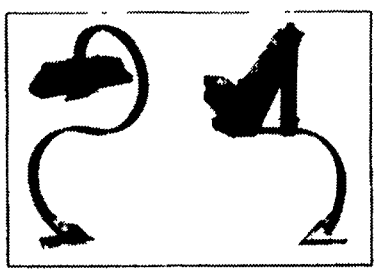
Non-Folding Models - 12 ft. to 15 ft.

Folding Flex Wing Models - 18 ft. to 36 ft.

Preparing a seedbed used to take a lot of time, a lot of fuel, and a lot of money.

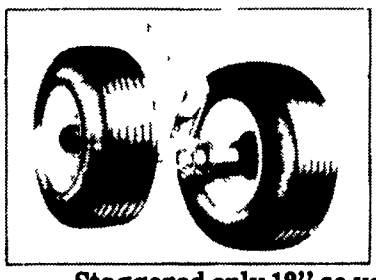
But now there's a smarter way to get the job done — with a Krause Landsman. It's a unique tillage implement that discs, incorporates chemicals (either deep or shallow), cultivates, and finishes all at once — to prepare your seedbeds with just one pass.

Built with heavy-duty features like these:

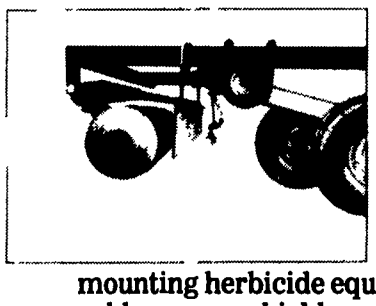


Choice of two cultivator shanks, both offering 25" of clearance under frame... Spring-cushioned shanks have rear-mounted shock and come with 10" sweeps. Heavy-duty "K-Tine™" shanks feature a high point load to keep sweeps level and still provide aggressive mixing action.

Massive hitch is an extra-heavy design, proven on Krause disc harrows. It is spring-cushioned to reduce frame stress on uneven ground — a feature most competitors don't offer. Built from heavy 4"x6" steel tubing.



Walking tandem wheels flex over obstacles individually and follow contour of the land for uniform working depth. Staggered only 18" so you can make tight turns without harmful side loading. Regreaseable bearings.



Wide incorporation area is provided in the 42" space between disc gang and front row of field cultivator shanks. Lots of room for mounting herbicide equipment. Flexible rubber spray shields are optional for high-speed application.

There are forage harvesters that cost a lot more than the Gehl 860 But very few give you as much in return

Designed for 60-150 h.p. tractors, the 860's high capacity, close-coupled cutting cylinder and blower make it a model of reliability and economical performance.

There are no cross-augers to plug. And no 90° corners.

Just straight, non-stop feed flow from crophead to cutterhead to blower to forage box.

The economically priced 860 also offers a long list of options, including a Gehl designed Metal Stop metal detector, overrunning clutch and in-head, hydraulic knife sharpener.

So if you're in the market for a high capacity forage harvester, don't cut corners. Contact your local Gehl dealer today and cut costs with a Gehl 860

SILO CHUTE
Made With Fiberglass, The Material Of The Future - And Proven In The Past!

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7½ ' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2½ " tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check Your Silo Now For Rotten Staves. If You Have Been Using Your Silo For 10 To 15 Years For Either Corn Silage Or Haylage, It Is Time To SHOTCRETE.

If you have a 15 year old silo .. get it fixed or insure it better! But don't wait until the last minute to have it repaired because we may not be able to fix it if you wait too long.
REMEMBER your silo will not fall over when it's empty - it will fall over when it's full. It cannot stand on deteriorated concrete...

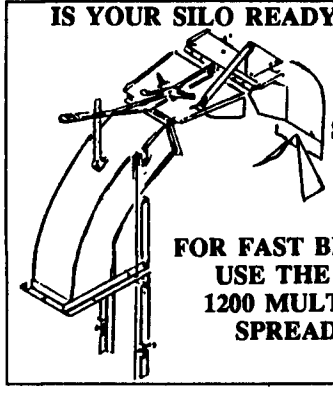
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

S & S Silo Serivce Has Experience
Over 700 Silos Have Been Relined With Shotcrete

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



FOR FAST BLOWING USE THE NEW 1200 MULTI-FLO SPREADER!

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Pigs Maintained In Separate Groups Healthier

By David L. Dunbar
Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office

All-In, All-Out Improves Finishing Hog Performance

Many producers practice the all-in, all-out concept in the farrowing house and nursery. Ken Kephart, Penn State swine specialist, relays the following Purdue University research report which indicates that maintaining pigs in separate groups improves health and weight gain in the grower-finisher barn as well.

Three trials were conducted to compare all-in, all-out and continuous flow methods of handling growing finishing pigs.

Benefits of the all-in, all-out system

Trial 1:

Faster growth rate (1.70 pounds/day vs. 1.56 pounds/day).

Fewer lungs affected wtih pneumonia (63 percent vs. 69 percent).

Less lung area affected by pneumonia (2.8 percent vs. 6.2 percent).

Trial 2:

45 fewer days to market weight.

Reduced variation in days to market weight.

Trial 3:

Fewer pneumonia lesions.

30 fewer days to market weight.

In the fourth trial, results were similar. However, the researchers learned that performance in the continuous flow facility is reduced further when pigs are housed next to pigs with pneumonia problems. Pigs housed in an all-in all-out facility had the fastest weight gain and had no lung lesions. Pigs housed in a continuous flow facility next to coughing pigs had reduced weight gains and 94 percent of the lungs were affected with pneumonia lesions at slaughter.

Under conditions of both good and poor herd health, the all-in all-out concept allows pigs to grow faster and reach market weight with fewer chronic respiratory problems.

The workshop will run from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Its purpose is to help part-time and small-scale farmers better select and utilize both new and used machinery. Emphasis will be placed on the used machinery market. Specialists from around the Northeast will share information on the following topics to help make part-time farming safe and profitable:

- Affordability.
- Buying versus renting or leasing.
- Spotting cover-ups when buying.
- Tax management and record keeping.
- Preventive Maintenance.
- Matching tractors and implements.
- Special equipment options.
- Reducing injuries from older machinery.
- Warranties and service.
- Buying at auctions.

Following the workshop, there will be an optional tour of Wengers, Inc., one of the largest suppliers of used parts and equipment in the United States.

The consignment sale will begin at 9:00 a.m. (Saturday, April 7) at Gratz. The sale will be directed by 12 volunteer auctioneers. Over 150 consignors will offer farm equipment and tractors, trucks, automobiles, lawn and garden equipment, shop and hand tools, and household goods.

The registration fee for the workshop is $50.00 if paid before March 23 ($60.00 after March 23). The fee includes refreshments, lunch, and printed proceedings.

New Oat and Barley Comparisons

The report of the 1989 Pennsylvania Spring Oat and Barley Performance Tests summarizes field tests in Centre and Lancaster counties, Pennsylvania.

Two- and three-year averages are provided for varieties that have been tested for more than one year at a locations. The tests were designekd to evaluate grain yield, bushel weight, and other characteristics of varieties under the climatic and disease conditions prevailing in the state.

Copies of the report are not available at county extension offices.

Alfalfa Seems To Be Self-Limiting

Alfalfa declines in yield and number of plants after 4 or 5 years in the same field. Researchers believe they've now found the reason: alfalfa is auto-toxic — in other words, it poisons itself.

Scientists believe the toxin produced by the plants helps alfalfa defend itself against insects, fungi, and competition from other plants. But as the toxin slowly builds up in the soil, it takes a toll on its originator.

USDA researchers have not isolated the compound midicarpin from alfalfa roots as one of the culprit chemicals in the toxin. In lab tests, when alfalfa seedlings were dipped in a medicarpin solution, their growth was reduced by 40 percent for 72 hours. The compound also delayed seed germination for four hours and seeding growth for 48 hours. By contrast, in soil containing no medicarpin, seeding emergence was 16 percent greater than in soil with the compound.

Researchers are now trying to determine how much medicarpin is produced by different varieties of alfalfa. They will also test the compound as a potential natural, biodegradable herbicide for various weeds.

FLY CONTROL TIPS

John H. Schwartz
Multi-County Poultry Agent

We are approaching the fly season — the time of year when flies increase in number and become a nuisance in poultry houses and to our neighbors. Each year poultry producers spend millions of dollars in fly control. Are you receiving the results from your fly control program?

The rate that flies multiply depends on temperature and moisture content of breeding material. The ideal moisture range for fly breeding is 50 to 85 percent.

The time it takes a fly to complete its life cycle (egg → larva → pupa → adult) depends on temperature.

The typical number of days required for the house fly to complete its life cycle is presented in Table 1. By lowering the temperature in your poultry house, you are able to buy time by reducing the number of flies being produced while giving your control materials time to become effective.

Preventing fly explosions

Sanitation and moisture level of the manure are the most important considerations in fly control. Some items to consider:

1. Remove and dispose of dead birds daily.

Table 1. Days in House Fly Life Cycle At Various Temperatures

Degrees F.	Eggs Hatch	Larva	Pupa	Total
64	1.25	12	13.75	27
68	1	9	11	21
77	0.5	7.5	8	16
86	0.4	5.6	4	10
95	0.3	3.7	3.5	7

2. Keep broken eggs out of the manure pit.
3. Keep the manure pit as dry as possible by controlling water leaks and providing adequate ventilation.
4. Keep weeds and grass mowed around the poultry house.
5. Keep air inlets clean.
6. Make sure water drains away from the poultry house by properly grading and maintaining downspouts.

Controlling fly explosions

Poultry farmers sometimes experience fly explosions after cleaning out a poultry house or when there is a change in weather conditions which favor fly breeding (humid weather, long periods of rain, etc.). To control a fly explosion in a cage poultry house, follow these steps:

1. Start feeding a larvacide in the feed.
2. Reduce moisture level in manure by controlling water leaks and increasing air movement through the poultry house.
3. Reduce poultry house temperature to 65 to 75 degrees F.
4. Spray walls with an approved residual insecticide.
5. Use a space spray or mist spray for a rapid kill of adult flies.
6. Discontinue feeding larvacide when maggot activity in the manure ends (usually after 4 to 6 weeks).
7. Continue using baits and sprays until adult population is under control. Remember to rotate classes of insecticides.
8. Monitor manure for maggots. Resume feeding larvacide when maggots appear.

Johne's Disease Seminar Set

MADISON, Wis. — A Johne's Disease seminar and workshop for producers, veterinarians, and agribusiness representatives will be held March 28, 1990, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., in Syracuse, New York, at the state fairgrounds.

Topics include signs of infection and how Johne's disease is spread; testing methods and available tests; transmission of Johne's disease from cow to calf during pregnancy; an approach to eradicating Johne's disease from an infected herd; New York Johne's disease certification program; a study on the prevalence of Johne's disease in Ontario, Canada; successful eradication of Johne's disease; and a panel of New York farmers in different stages of the certifciation process will share their experiences regarding the eradication of Johne's disease.

The seminar is sponsored by Livestock Conservation Institute; Diagnostic Laboratory, New York State College of Veterinary Medicine; New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets; New York State Veterinary Medical Society; and the American Association of Bovine Practitioners.

Financial support for the program is provided by Eastern Artificial Breeders Corp.; Northeast DHIA; New York Purebred Dairy Cattle Association; and IDEXX Corporation.

SUPER N Meeting Held

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Eighteen growers attended the Cumberland Valley cooperative Super N meeting last week at the Lighthouse Restaurant.

Speakers for the event were Ray Lockman, chief agronomist for Agronomy Service Laboratory, Washington Courthouse, Ohio. Lockman has 37 years experience with laboratory and research service. Also speaking Fred Lauver, account manager for Agrio Chemical Co., New Orleans, Louisiana, and John W. Schwartz from Cargill Seed.

SUPER N, a new concept in nitrogen products, is a slow-release nitrogen for corn, wheat, and barley. Tested by universities for six years and field-tested on the farm for three years, SUPER N produces on the average over 9 bu./acre increase in yield of corn compared with other sources of nitrogen. SUPER N can be surface-applied, pre-plant incorporated, or side-dressed.

SUPER N applied at 16 locations in 1989 increased the yield of wheat by over 5 bu./acre compared with other sources of nitrogen. Application of SUPER N to wheat fields surface applied begins March 1 through April at the rate of 50-90 units of N per acre, depending on the variety of wheat planted.

John W. Schwartz of Cargill Seed pointed out some corn responds better to nitrogen application and the type of soil must be considered for maximum return. Applying the proper amount of nitrogen to the corn when it needs it is very important for the best return on the dollar invested.

Ford Wagon Chassis Boosts Harvesting Efficiency

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A new 14.5-ton capacity forage box running gear from Ford New Holland eases heavy loads over rough ground and through ditches with minimum flexing.

Designed for large capacity forage boxes, the new Model 614 wagon chassis features dual walking-beam rear-wheel suspension. The heavy-duty tongue is adjustable for easy hookup.

The new wagons are designed to boost overall harvesting efficiency. Their larger load carrying ability matches the capacity of new, larger forage boxes to help keep silage-making on schedule.

Bryant Becomes Wye Herd Manager

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Dean E. Bryant, 31, became program manager of the University of Maryland Wye Angus herd on February 19.

"Dean's nine years of experience managing the beef cattle research unit at Purdue University make him an excellent choice for this position," said Dr. Bryan Johnson, associate director of Maryland's Agricultural Experiment Station. "We welcome him to Maryland and look forward to his leadership in managing the Wye Herd."

Bryant's experience at Purdue University's Beef Cattle Research and Teaching Center included the design, startup, and operation of the $4.2 million center, experience in all phases of bovine embryo transfer, and animal science research and teaching.

Bryant has two degrees from Purdue University: a bachelor's in animal science and a master's in animal breeding.

The Wye Angus Herd was donated to the University of Maryland Foundation in 1978 by Arthur Houghton. Named for Houghton's Wye Plantation, the herd is managed by the Agricultural Experiment Station at the Wye Research and Education Center near Queenstown on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Service Specialist Graduates

RACINE, Wis.— Roy High, service specialist at Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc., has just completed a 4½ -day training course at the Case IH Training Center in Racine. The course emphasized the Case IH 7100 Series tractors, called the Magnum line.

The training program included classroom and hands-on study of the Magnum line's transmission, engine, hydraulic system, hitch, and electronic systems. Students received an overview of the manufacturing processes used to assure high quality in the Magnum tractors.

To sharpen their servicing and repair skills, students disassembled and reassembled components. They also practiced performing critical adjustments and learned precise testing and troubleshooting procedures.

Case IH offers a wide variety of training courses for dealer service specialists. Personnel from dealerships throughout North America use this training.

Select Sires Selects Technician

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — Tim Bowman of Hooversville, Pennsylvania has accepted a position as a technician for Select Sires Inc. Bowman will offer arm service to dairy and beef producers in Somerset County.

Bowman received his bachelor of science degree from Delaware Valley College in 1983. Upon graduation, he held the position of herdsman for two large dairies. He then joined Animal Medic Inc., where he was territory manager, responsible for direct sales of farm supplies.

Select Sires is a family of 12 farmer-owned and controlled cooperatives, serving the largest number of co-op members in the United States.

Gehl Round Balers Provide 'Infinite Options'

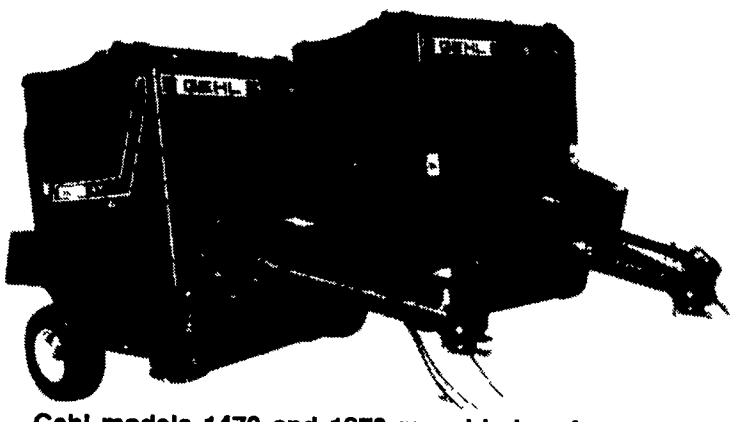
WEST BEND, Wis. — The Gehl Company introduces two new variable chamber round balers, the models 1470 and 1870. These balers feature total density control (TDC) to give the operator complete control over the size and density of each bale.

The key to TDC is Gehl's "air-draulics" system, in which air pressure regulates the size of the bale core and hydraulic pressure controls the density of the outer bale wrap.

"These balers provide infinite options depending on crop and moisture conditions," says Jim Phillips, Gehl product manager for hay tools. "This ensures high-quality bales that stand up to weather, hold their shape, and retain valuable nutrients."

The bale forming system on the 1470 and 1870 also provides faster bale starts, easy bale formation, and low horsepower requirements. A new dual twine wrap mechanism is electrically operated and offers manual or auto control.

The model 1470 builds bales up to 5 feet in diameter. Model 1870 makes bales up to 6 feet in diameter. Gehl variable chamber round balers also offer textured belts for better crop handling and a constant velocity drive line for smooth operation, even during tight turns.



Gehl models 1470 and 1870 round balers feature total density control (TDC) to give the operator complete control over the size and density of each bale. The bale-forming system on the 1470 and 1870 provides faster bale starts, easy bale formation, and low horsepower requirements.

Steel Take-Off Unit Gives Greater Control

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A new stainless steel take-off unit that gives dairy farmers greater control over the milking operation is now available from Alfa-Laval Agri, Inc., a Kansas City-based dairy equipment and supply company.

The SST™ II SS take-off unit is fully programmable, allowing the operator to choose from numerous delay settings and operational modes. Its compact size makes it ideal for parallel parlors and other small work spaces. The unit's stainless steel construction ensures years of trouble-free performance.

With the SST II SS, dairy farmers have greater control over delay settings governing milking, retraction, and vacuum decay. The operator can also choose between two milk sweep settings and can further program auxiliary functions such as backflush or milk meter draindown.

All key parts are constructed of 304 stainless steel, including fittings and mounting hardware. Electronic controls are surrounded by stainless steel and sealed from moisture for maximum protection from the parlor environment.

Two other important features are positive vacuum shut off and an indicator light that alerts the operator whenever retraction delay begins. This gives the operator extra time to check the unit around-the-clock milking operations.

"We presently offer a full line of HDI automated milking equipment specifically designed for rugged service in large installations," Calhoun said. "With the addition of the SST II SS, dairyman have even more choice in improving the efficiency of their milking operation through advanced automation."

The take-off unit is available through independent De Laval dealers nationwide.

The SST II SS can be used as a stand-alone system to provide basic automated milking or as an integral part of a fully automated dairy. The unit interfaces with two types of DHIA-approved milk meters.

According to Don Calhoun, marketing director-capital equipment, the new SST II SS expands a line of products designed to meet the needs of large dairies and

Pfizer Offers Free Semen

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Pfizer is offering free semen to dairy producers using Rumatel®, an in-feed dewormer marketed by Pfizer.

Under the program, dairy producers can receive a $10 gift certificate for semen from any American Breeders Service (ABS) bull for each purchase of 100 pounds of Rumatel 4.4 gram crumbles or an equivalent amount of Rumatel (440 grams) in a premix or complete feed. The offer is good on purchases made from March 1 through May 31, 1990. The certificate is redeemable directly through ABS.

Andy Webb, marketing manager for Pfizer, said this offer is part of a total marketing program designed to encourage dairy producers to optimize herd performance by using Rumatel as part of a strategic deworming program.

"This promotion focuses on two of the most important areas of animal husbandry -- herd health and genetics," said Webb. "A dairy producer can improve production with Rumatel and improve his genetic program with the ABS semen."

Webb said, "A strategic deworming program using Rumatel can increase milk production in lactating cows, as well as improve growth and shorten the time to breeding in heifers. That's dollars and cents to the dairy producer,"

"Rumatel doesn't force you to dump milk; there's no discard period. That makes it the ideal dewormer to use on your whole herd," he said. "Maximizing your animals' performance while eliminating multiple dewormer inventories on your farm is just good management."

More information about the Rumatel promotion is available through Pfizer sales representatives or a local feed supplier.

Farmers Support G.E. Soybean Loan

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — In an independent poll, soybean farmers supported the Graduated Equity Loan (G.E. Loan) by a four-to-one margin. The G.E. Loan is a concept being proposed for the 1990 Farm Bill by the American Soybean Association (ASA) to give U.S. soybean farmers planting flexibility with income protection.

The mid-February telephone survey of soybean farmers was conducted for ASA by Maritz Market Research Inc. Survey participants included both ASA members and non-members.

"Frankly, we weren't surprised by the results of the survey," said ASA president Maryln Jorgensen. "We spent nearly two years developing this concept and had the input of more than 500 soybean farmers from across the nation. It is a well thought — out program that addresses the needs of soybean farmers in all regions of the nation."

Jorgensen says major support for the G.E. Loan cuts across geographic areas with the greatest support in southern states where soybean production has suffered severe cutbacks in recent years.

"The results of this study show that a large majority of U.S. soybean farmers support ASA efforts to obtain a soybean provision in the 1990 Farm Bill that ties together both planting flexibility and income protection," said Jorgensen.

"Under current farm policy, U.S. soybean farmers are losing their dominant position in the world market," he said. "This $11 billion-a-year industry is too important to the farm and national economy to allow it to continue to deteriorate as it has under farm policy of the last five years. Immediate action is necessary to reverse this alarming trend."

In fact, one of every five tractors now sold in the Western World is an M-F. Which makes Massey-Ferguson the Western World's largest tractor manufacturer.

One of the big reasons for this popularity is the great value of the 50-90 PTO hp line of M-F 300 Series tractors.

They all give you the torque, economy and reliability of world-famous Perkins diesel engines and all the advantages of advanced Ferguson system hydraulics. Plus you get the practical features you want, like hydrostatic steering as standard equipment.

Massey-Ferguson engineers put a lot of time and effort into designing these tractors to save more of your time and effort. They're incredibly easy to operate and maintain. And they have one of the best reliability records of any tractor ever made.

Better ask your M-F dealer soon to show you why an M-F 300 Series tractor can be the best value for your hard-earned investment.

Practical choices.

Del. Ag Industry Dinner Marks Anniversary

DOVER, Del. — Wayne Humphreys, an Iowa farmer and speaker, will entertain and enlighten this year's audience at the 20th anniversary of Delaware's Agriculture Industry at a dinner on Saturday, March 17, in Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware's Newark campus.

Congressional and state elected officials will be among the guests gathered to celebrate Delaware's number one industry and kick off National Agriculture Week, March 18-24. Representatives from the state's major agricultural organizations and agencies also will be on hand.

The evening begins at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour and reception. Dinner and the formal program follows at 7 p.m., and the traditional ice cream social will round out the evening. As always, the meal will feature products grown or processed in the First State.

This year's keynote speaker describes himself as "a farmer and speaker." A grain and livestock farmer with an agricultural degree from Iowa State University, Humphreys also is an active member of the National Speakers Association.

As national vice president of Future Farmers of America, Humphreys travelled and spoke in 10 countries and 47 states. He realizes today's farmers are facing some tough realities, but his philosophy is that everyone deserves to feel good about his life and feel as if he makes a difference in this world.

"Listening to a fun speaker and being able to sit back, relax, and be entertained by someone who has chosen the same profession is one way of doing that," Humphreys said.

The annual dinner is sponsored by the Council of Farm Organizations.

Think About Sulphur Before Topdressing

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Wheat growers looking for a high return on investment should consider topdressing sulphur with their nitrogen, university soil specialists say.

Sulphur-containing fertilizer may not be needed in every field, in every wheat growing-area. But where sulphur deficiencies are identified — and more are reported each year — a small investment in "the fourth major nutrient" could yield high dividends.

"With fertilizer we're generally glad to get a $3 return on every dollar we put in," said Bill Segars, extension agronomist at the University of Georgia. "But in many cases with sulphur, it's not uncommon to get — and this is a conservative estimate — a $9 or $10 return, particularly on wheat."

Said Hunter Follett of Colorado State University, "Sulphur can be pretty inexpensive to use. So if it's needed and if you can piggyback it with your nitrogen, it should produce a decent return on investment."

Coarse-textured, sandy soils low in organic matter generally have the greatest need for sulphur. But don't be surprised if sulphur also pays dividends on some of the heavier, finer-textured soils.

"If your soil contains only 1 to 1.5 percent organic matter, there is certainly a greater possibility of seeing a sulphur response," says Ray Lamond, Kansas State University.

Fields that have been farmed intensively — as well as those that have received repeated applications of high-analysis, sulphur-free fertilizers (urea, conventional nitrogen solutions, triple superphosphate) — are also highly susceptible to sulphur deficiency.

"We've been getting more calls about potential sulphur deficiencies in wheat than ever before, especially in seasons following above-average precipitation," said Jay Goos, North Dakota State University.

To assess sulphur requirements, agronomists generally recommend a soil test, followed by a plant analysis. For optimum yield and protein content, wheat plants should contain one unit of sulphur (S) for every 12-15 units of nitrogen (N). Anything wider than 15:1 could signal a sulphur deficiency and a need for added sulphur.

Wheat growers should also be careful not to "create" a sulphur deficiency. Agronomists say that applying nitrogen to a crop that is marginally sulphur deficient may widen the crop's N:S ratio and induce sulphur deficiency.

"A lot of times on wheat, we don't see a sulphur deficiency until after we put on the spring nitrogen application," said Stan Chapman, University of Arkansas.

Sulphur-containing fertilizers are available in dry and fluid forms, so preplant, starter, and topdress applications may be considered.

"There are still good arguments for starter and preplant applications of sulphur," said Charles Mitchell, Auburn University. "But in terms of optimum yield and fertilizer efficiency, our studies give the edge to topdressing all or most of your wheat's sulphur requirement."

Besides increasing yields, resaerch shows that sulphur can increase protein content and improve the grain's milling and baking qualities.

"As wheat producers become more concerned about quality, they'll have to become more concerned with sulphur," said Bob McDole, University of Idaho. "Without it, you can't expect the crop to reach its full potential."

In cooperation with university specialists, The Sulphur Institute has produced a brochure on sulphur's role in wheat production. For a free copy, send your name and address to "Wheat Brochure," The Sulphur Institute, 1725 K Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20006.

What Constitutes 'Animal' Rights?

BY DR. RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
Extension County Agricultural Agent
University of Delaware

In recent years I've made it a habit to look through veterinary journals seeking out topics which are, so to speak, hot. One topic that has provoked interest and debate is the issue of animal rights.

It's interesting to read differing points of view on animal rights, and, believe me, the veterinary profession appears in a dilemma over the issue. The line has been drawn and people are choosing up sides. While some vets are strongly on the side of animal welfare, others just as firmly support animal rights.

This debate over animal welfare/rights belongs in the veterinary profession just as it belongs in the animal science departments, agricultural engineering departments, and all the other university departments that are involved with the animal industry. The issue is also open for discussion in the agricultural community. Some veterinarians, however, maintain this is strictly a veterinary issue and everyone else should butt out.

This attitude is unfortunate because the animal welfare/animal rights controversy must be discussed as a multidisciplinary issue. There is no doubt that veterinarians should be involved in this debate from the standpoint of animal health. No people are more qualified than our top veterinarians who work within each species subgroup. But small-animal veterinarians should not enter the debate involving swine, and swine veterinarians should not get into the dog and cat debate.

In addition to the animal health issue, other concerns are nutrition, housing, equipment, and environment. While some veterinarians may be trained in some of these areas, it is important to realize that other people are in a better position to discuss these topics.

Some veterinarians have taken stands that border on the illogical. They have written in their professional journals that they don't swat flies since flies are sentient beings and should not be killed. In response to this rationale, other vets have written to question the validity of such an argument: if flies are to be spared, what about fleas and internal parasites? How can we expect future veterinarians to take a logical approach to health and healing when teachers instructing at veterinary schools are of this mentality?

After all, when you profess your life's ambition is to prevent animal suffering, then you need to come to grips with what constitutes an animal. Is it an intestinal worm? Flea? Fly? Mouse? Rabbit? Where do you draw the line?

If a problem exists in animal agriculture, it should be addressed at the research institutions in the land-grant system to find alternatives that improve the situation or eliminate the problem. Opponents of animal agriculture are not seeking change, however; they want elimination.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Jones, but you can no longer raise pigs in confinement. Pigs should be allowed to roam free and wallow where they want to." As a pork producer, how would you like somebody telling you that? What if the statement were, "I'm sorry, Mr. Jones, but confining that sow in this acre lot is inhumane. She may want to be in another area of the woods." But many in the animal industry are not willing to sit down with concerned individuals to discuss the situation. This is also unfortunate.

What we really need to put this whole problem into perspective is the best scientists working on the issues with open minds. If changes are needed within our industry, then the scientists should direct research in any areas that may need work. At least one veterinarian should be included on this panel of experts, since animal health is a key issue.

Right now, the issues surrounding animal welfare and animal

Booklets Available On Home-Grown Feed Use

DeKALB, ILL. — Two informative booklets on the advantages of using home-grown feeds are now available from A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., headquartered here.

Titled "Medium Moisture Forage" and "High-Moisture Grain," the full-color brochures describe how livestock farmers and dairymen can benefit from using Harvestore® brand storage structures to process their crops.

The forage brochure discusses medium-moisture haylage and its important advantages over conventional silage and dry hay. It also outlines the important management practices required to produce top-quality haylage from a variety of forage crops, and how these feeds can be used in livestock rations.

The high moisture grain brochure provides similar information concerning the use of natural moisture corn, barley, and grain sorghum. The booklet includes an examination of the relative costs of delayed harvest, artificial drying, and high-moisture storage and provides a simple worksheet that can be used to calculate potential economic benefits.

The brochures are available from your local authorized, independent Harvestore system dealer, or by writing to Agricultural Marketing Department, A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., 345 Harvestore Drive, DeKalb, IL 60115.

What Constitutes 'Animal' Rights?

rights are murky. Few, if any, producers believe that the animal rights movement deserves any time, since compromise on the part of some of these groups' members is not possible. We can and should address the animal welfare issue every chance we get to ensure our livestock the best possible care.

It seems ridiculous that some people may be more concerned about the well-being of an intestinal worm when our hogs are ill from a severe parasite infestation. What do you think? Drop me a line at 4600 S. Dupont Hwy., Dover, DE 19901. I'd like to know how you feel about this important issue.

Cash 'Em, Don't Trash 'Em

LYKENS (Dauphin Co.) — The Dauphin Co. Farmers' Association announced today that it is starting a petition-signing campaign to encourage the State General Assembly to pass legislation leading to a deposit being placed on returnable beverage containers.

"Each year farmers are faced with a major cleanup of bottles and cans along the roads and in their fields," said Jon Johnson, president of the local farm group. "This carelessly discarded trash causes major damage to our equipment and can kill our farm animals."

Kicking off a campaign called "Cash'em, Don't Trash'em", the local association is participating in the statewide campaign that would let the general public vote on the issue in a statewide referendum.

"We want to see a referendum placed on the ballot that would give direction to the Pennsylvania General Assembly, which would then hopefully pass legislation placing a deposit on returnable beverage containers," Johnson said.

The State General Assembly approved the Municipal Waste Planning Recycling and Waste Reduction Act (Act 101, 1988), which will require recycling for most municipalities within three years. But, according to Johnson, this law doesn't go far enough.

"If we place a value on a beverage container, glass and cans," he said, "the people would be less likely to throw them in our fields and along the roadways. That's the ultimate purpose of our campaign."

The state legislature came close to placing a deposit on returnable beverage containers, but decided to pass the recycling legislation. "States that have recycling laws even tougher than Pennsylvania's found that bottles and cans along with other trash are still being dumped along highways and in farm fields," said Johnson, citing Ohio as an example.

"On the other hand, states that have recycling and a deposit on bottle and cans have seen a dramatic change when it comes to trash being dumped along the road," he said.

The local farm group plans to take all of the petitions to Harrisburg on April 2, 1990, when the organization holds a statewide legislative conference.

Nichols Elected ASA Chairman

BOZEMAN, Mont. — J. David Nichols of Anita, Iowa, a member of the American Simmental Association (ASA) Board of Trustees since 1986, has been elected chairman of the board. He succeeds Gerald Williams of New Carlisle, Ohio.

Nichols is managing partner of Nichols Farms, a family-owned operation running 1,200 registered cows representing three breeds. Nichols Farms annually merchandises in excess of 400 yearling bulls by private treaty only, pricing them exclusively on performance and EPDs.

Nichols has been involved with Simmental since 1970, and for the past two years has served as president of ASA Publications, Inc., the governing board of The Register, ASA's official publication.

Nichols is a past-president of the U.S. Beef Improvement Federation and ia a frequent speaker before cattle and other agricultural groups. He attended Iowa State University and served in the U.S. Army.

During ASA's recent Annual Meeting and Convention at Washington, D.C., Breck Ellison, Jr. of Knoxville, Tennessee was elected vice chairman/chairman elect. Johnny Poore of Barnesville, Georgia, was elected treasurer. The five-member executive committee includes Nichols, Ellison, and Poore along with Don Clanton, from North Platte, Nebraska and Delbert Carstens, from Greenacres, Washington.

Two newly elected trustees were seated during the convention. They are Tom Risinger of Crockett, Texas and Gordon Hodges of Pilot Mountain, North Carolina. In addition, four incumbents were installed for a second three-year term: Ellison; Carstens; Orville Deckert, Arena, North Dakota; and Clanton.

ASA's 1991 Annual Meeting and convention will be held February 20-23 in Houston, Texas.

Manure Injector Keeps Nutrient Loss To Minimum

KAUKAUNA, WI — A new liquid manure injector, designed to maximize manure fertilizer value by reducing nutrient loss, is available from Badger Northland, a manufacturer of farm materials handling equipment.

Badger Northland's new disc-injector provides a cost-effective means of fertilizing crops before planting. The unit keeps nutrient loss to a minimum compared to conventional spreaders, which can lose more than 60 percent of manure's nutrients and cause odor problems.

Badger's patented disc-injector places a uniform 1/4-inch by a 22-inch wide layer of manure right at the crop's root zone for maximum benefit. This method of injection elminates root burning or "striping" associated with other more conventional forms of injectors.

Badger's disc-injector is available in three, four, and five shank models, with horsepower requirements of only 25 hp/shank. Each shank is spring-loaded to resist shock, while optional gauge wheels assure constant operating depth by quickly adjusting to match soil conditions.

The disc-injector's notched 22-inch discs rotate during operation to loosen and aerate the soil for maximum manure absorption and are ideal in a minimum tillage situation.

The new Badger disc-injector retrofits any Badger injector as well as most competitive units. Options include rolling coulters for "trashy" fields, independent hydraulic controls, and an electronic value monitor.

For more information on the Badger disc-injector, contact Chet Gibbons, Badger Northland Inc., 1215 Hyland Avenue, P.O. Box 1215, Kaukauna, Wisconsin 54130-9986, (414) 766-4603.

Johnson Re-Elected President Of ADADC

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Raymond Johnson was recently re-elected as president of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc. (ADADC), at their 30th annual meeting held here Feb. 21 at the Sheraton Inn.

Johnson, a dairy farmer from Schaghticoke, New York, has been president of ADADC for the past seven years. In partnership with his son, he owns and operates a 450-acre farm where they milk 75 Holsteins.

The ADADC annual meeting is held each February. Dairy producers representing New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania meet in order to elect local officers and to review advertising and promotion programs implemented by ADADC.

Also elected were Ron Harris as vice president, Allen Ostrander as second vice president and Dan Baker as treasurer. Re-elected was David Hardie as secretary.

"Investing in the 90s: Your Promotion Portfolio" was the theme of the meeting, which was highlighted by a panel of four experts who discussed different aspects of dairy promotion as we enter a new decade. Also included was a review of beverage advertising trends for the 90s.

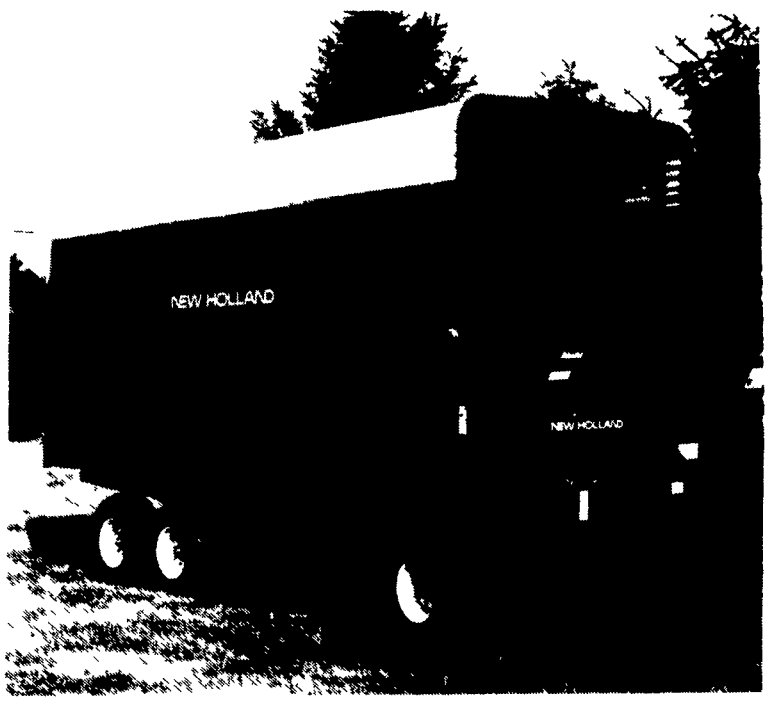
New Forage Box Unloads 35 Percent Faster



The new Model 818 forage box from Ford New Holland is 18 feet long — two feet longer than previous models to increase carrying capcity. Maximum apron chain speed has been increased 35 percent.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Model 818 forage box from Ford New Holland can unload 35 percent faster. It is 18 feet long — two feet longer than previous models.

This extra capacity is in line with the larger carrying capacity of the new wagon chassis, according to the company. With today's higher crop yields, forage wagons are often full before the forage harvester can get around the field. As a result, forage box capacity can limit overall harvesting efficiency.

The faster unloading and larger carrying capacity of the new forage box boosts overall harvesting efficiency. In addition to the 35 percent maximum apron chain speed increase, the "818" discharge chute is wider. The top beater has been moved rearward to provide smooth, even crop flow to the blower.

Steel frames allow the new "818" to withstand severe flexing under heavy loads. Its galvanized metal roof is protected by a baked enamel finish. A single lever controls all unloading functions.

CERTIFIED LAMB REACHES WEST COAST

The first officially stamped USDA "Certified Fresh American Lamb" recently arrived in San Jose, Calif., retail meat cases. "Consumers will see less fat; consequently, demand should rise," said Curt Terry, coordinator of research and technology for the American Sheep Industry Association. The certified lean lamb program sets standards for the identification of lean lamb and high cutability carcasses that have acceptable quality standards.

RETAILERS FEATURING LAMB 20 PERCENT MORE

Surveys show retailers across the United States are featuring lamb cuts about 20 percent more in consumer advertising than in 1988. Despite the overall increase, officials of the American Sheep Industry Association's American Lamb Council said recent feature activity in the southern and Pacific coast regions dropped during the fall months. Conversely, the Great Lakes region showed a dramatic 30 percent increase in lamb feature activity.

MAMMA Trains Retailers At Discount Rate

TOWSON, Md. — The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association and Johanna Farms have joined forces to help train area retailers on the latest methods of increasing sales on milk and other dairy products.

The first of the four programs was held recently in Pennsylvania at Fort Washington. Close to 40 dairy managers representing Clemens, Shop 'N Bag, Shop and Save, and Thriftway attended the day-long workshop. Another similar program is due to be held in Fort Washington in early March. Seminars are also scheduled for February in Cherry Hill, N.J., and Dover, Del.

Johanna Farms Sales Manager Russ Weidenhaefer says the sponsorship of these programs is a good example of a value-added service to their customers. Wiedenhaefer says, "We consider this a big plus for our business. A number of good points were offered, giving our accounts an avenue to learn new things."

MAMMA Marketing Director Bill Snitcher teaches the program to retailers across the mid-Atlantic area.

"This workshop has a history that goes back to the mid 1970s when it was originally put together by the American Dairy Association," Snitcher said. "It covers a number of sound principles and practices that go into effectively managing the dairy department of a modern supermarket.

"To keep the program as current as possible, we rely on research information provided by the American Dairy Association, the National Egg Board, Progressive Grocer, along with a number of other industry sources," Snitcher said.

According to both MAMMA and Johanna Farms, the seminars for Fleming resulted from earlier programs held last summer for Super Fresh. One Johanna official pointed out that following those workshops, fluid milk sales at Super Fresh increased by 10%. Both Johanna Farms and MAMMA are hoping for similar results from Fleming accounts.

MAMMA offers the program free of charge, and passes along to each participant about $20 worth of books and materials.

Ford New Holland Tractors Offer 18 x 9 Powershift Transmission

The 8030 Series tractors from Ford New Holland feature an 18 x 9 powershift transmission, and the shuttle shift allows the operator to change direction in one easy motion.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Ford New Holland has introduced a new line of Ford tractors that offer the all-new Ultra-Command™ 18 x 9 powershift transmission on the larger models.

"Ultra-Command is the most significant breakthrough in the field since powershift was first introduced. There is no other powershift like it in the 100 - 200 PTO hp range," said Bob Wright, product manager, in announcing the new Ford 8030 Series tractors.

"Ultra-Command features our exclusive shuttle shift, which allows the operator to change directions in one easy motion, smoothly and automatically, without clutching. And it provides an excellent range of forward ground speeds from 1.2 to 18.6 mph, along with nine reverse speeds from 1.9 to 7.0 mph. It is the ultimate in powershifts — what farmers have been asking for," Wright said.

The 8030 Series lineup of four new models, which replace the popular TW series, includes:

• MODEL 8830. A 170-hp turbocharged and air-to-air intercooled diesel designed for large farms. It is ideal for row crops and grain operations requiring heavy-duty pulling power. A 16-speed dual power transmission with 14-inch cerametallic clutch is standard. It is available with optional 18 x 9 Ultra-Command powershift.

A Ford 401-cubic inch, six-cylinder diesel engine is standard. Turbochargers on Models 8630, 8730, and 8830 provide maximum drive and fuel efficiency.

Precision engineered gears, large shafts, and a sturdy final drive provide smooth power transfer.

The standard 16x4 dual power transmission shifts on-the-go between direct drive and power drive for a 28 percent increase in pulling torque.

The 3-point hitch operates on advanced hydraulics that provide lift capacity up to 9,450 pounds with optional auxiliary lift cylinders.

The 8030 Series tractors feature optional four-wheel drive, which engages on-the-go to cut time and fuel consumption by up to 20 percent.

Comfort and convenience have been designed into the Whisper-Quiet cabs on the 8030 Series tractors. The cab features low vibration design, two doors for easy access, and good visibility. An air suspension seat and a convenient foot throttle provide added comfort and ease of operation.

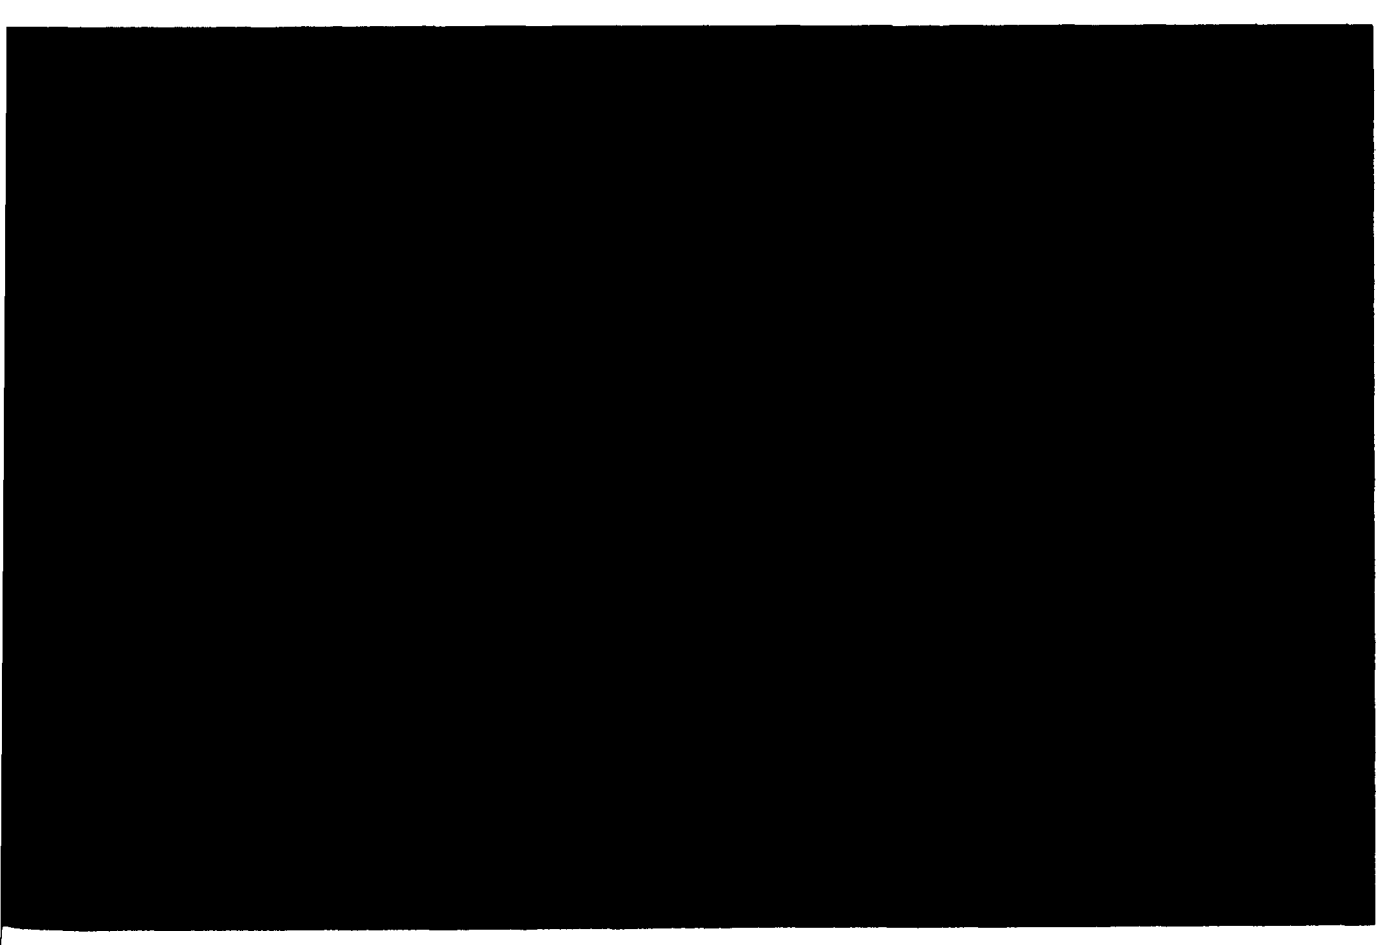
AND BLUE.



Black shank and blue mold are two of the biggest enemies a leaf of burley or flue-cured can have. And on a cost-per-acre basis, nothing protects tobacco plants from these diseases like Ridomil.®

Just one application (at labelled rates) in the field before transplanting fights black shank, blue mold and Pythium all season long.

Ridomil stops disease on contact in the soil. Then its systemic action allows it to be absorbed into the plant through the roots, keeping it safe from disease. You get a healthier plant, higher quality tobacco.

So this season, use Ridomil. Before a few of tobacco's biggest enemies beat your bottom line black and blue.

If you want to know more about Ridomil, call Furney Todd any Monday on the Monday Hotline, sponsored by CIBA-GEIGY. 1-800-862-2229.

Foraging Around

By Dr. John E. Baylor
Director of Market Development
Beachley-Hardy Seed Company

Starting now, weather permitting, farmers are in the field seeding small seeded legumes and grasses. Red clover and timothy broad cast in winter grains is the first to be sown. But other species using a number of seeding techniques will be seeded in rapid order as the season progresses.

Here's a brief look at several of the seeding options available to you with a judgement as to how successful each might be.

OVER-SEEDING IN WINTER GRAINS

The term "seeing on the honeycomb" is frequently used. This refers to seeding a legume or legume/grass mix in an already established crop, usually a winter small grain, in late February or early March during the time when we normally have conditions of alternate freezing and thawing. The common seeding is one of red clover with or without timothy. Of the legumes, you will normally have most success with red and alsike clover. Seedings of alfalfa can also readily be established in a winter grain are normally marginal at best and the success rate with birdsfoot trefoil is ever less.

SPRING SEEDINGS WITH SPRING GRAINS

Where oats or other spring grains are used, if possible choose a grain variety that is early maturing, stiff-strawed, and non-lodging. Then reduce its seeding rate by one half. Many growers have returned to using a small grain companion crop for purposes of weed control and soil conservation, even though small grains do compete with young seedlings for light, moisture and nutrients.

For best results where a spring grain is used, remove it as green chop, silage, or hay, just as heads emerge from the boot. Of the legumes the clovers are the least risk when seeded this way. But with careful management alfalfa successfully. Because of its low seedling vigor and lack of shade tolerance birdsfoot trefoil is more of a risk. Most cool season grasses can also be sown at this time, although late summer is the "ideal" seeding time for most cool season grasses.

SPRING SEEDINGS ON A PREPARED SEEDBED

Making a spring seeding on a prepared seedbed without a companion grain crop, broadcast or band seeded, and weeds controlled chemically, continues to be a popular and generally low risk method of establishing alfalfa. In the Pennsylvania alfalfa growers program, for example, top yields were generally from such seedings. And seeding year yields of up to 5 tons of hay per acre have been obtained. A firm seedbed and good soil to seed contact is a must. Your success with grasses seeded with alfalfa depends, of course, on your herbicide program for weed control.

NO-TILL SEEDINGS GAINING FAVOR

Seeding alfalfa or other legumes the no-till way, either in small grain or corn stubble, or in sod, continues to gain in popularity.

A good time to have gotten ready for a spring no-till seeding in sod, according to Virginia workers, was last fall with control of existing vegetation using appropriate herbicides. But regardless, both Virginia and Pennsylvania workers agree there are several requirements for successful no-till establishments including:

(1) Competition from other plants must be eliminated or minimized.

(2) Heavy thatch and plant growth tall enough to shade the soil surface must be removed.

(3) Seedlings must be protected from insects, especially when seeding in sod. Furadan in the row can still be used.

(4) Soil fertility must be medium to high with Ph above 6.5.

As regards the latter Virginia workers have found that for seedings made in sod, surface applications of lime on soils needing lime are beneficial. Ideally the lime should be applied 6 months or more before planting.

FLUID SEEDINGS

Fluid or suspension seeding, usually by a custom applicator or your fertilizer dealer, is a relatively new, but very effective, way of broadcasting legumes seeds, uniformly over large acreages in a short time. Except for timothy fluid seedings have not been satisfactory for grass seeds.

Cultipacking before and after seeding, along with other good seedbed preparation to assure adequate soil/seed contact, is a must with this kind of seeding. Studies show that if seeding occurs immediately after the inoculated seeds are added to the suspension there is no injury to the rhizobia. Likewise recent studies indicate that with metalaxyl (apron) treated seed ⅓ or more of the apron applied to alfalfa seed appear to be absorbed into the seed and is still available after being placed in the fertilizer solution.

Speaking of the systemic fungicide metalaxy (apron) studies indicate this material provides good protection against present strains of Pythium and Phytophihora seed and root-rot organisms with initial stands from treated seed lots frequently 20-40% better than untreated controls where these organisms are present.

One final word, many new seedings have been damaged from herbicide residues, particularly triazines. Thus, plan your herbicide program for all crops in the rotation- not just the immediate planting.

MILK.

HOT WEATHER IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER.

Now Is The Time To Stock Up On THERMOLASS at BIG DISCOUNTS!

Hot weather is a major stress factor on your dairy cows' ability to produce their maximum potential. As a cow's body temperature increases she tends to experience a depressed appetite resulting in less intake of total feed. This leads to:
A.) A Drop in Milk Production
B.) Depressed Butterfat levels
C.) Reduced Reproductive Performance.
D.) All of the Above — and none are Beneficial.

Thermolass, with it's high level of sugars provides a "quick-release" source of energy. In addition, Thermolass has proven to be a stimulant in increasing the cows appetite and aids in increasing rumen activity resulting in:
A.) Increased net energy content of the total diet.
B.) Increased digestibility performance.

The extra "quick-release" energy, increased appetite, and stimulated rumen activity translates into healthy cows producing more milk and maintaining or slightly improving butterfat levels.

The second annual meeting of the Corporation, Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association, will be held March 1-2, at the Penn State Days Inn (Formerly the Sheraton). A new feature of the annual meeting is an orientation for new local directors and committee members the afternoon of March 1. General Manager Dick Barth points out that subjects to be covered are fundamental to a clear understanding of DHIA's purpose and goals and should provide newly-elected member representatives with a clearer picture of their responsibilities now and in the future. Perhaps you will encourage and support attendance of your representatives to this annual meeting.

Comply With Conservation For Better Farming

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A national awards program for outstanding conservation farmers and ranchers began its eighth annual competition recently.

Sponsored by the National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation and funded by the Du Pont Company, the program honors innovative farm and ranch families who protect water quality and other resources while producing high-quality food and fiber.

One outstanding conservation farmer or rancher in each state will be selected by June 1990. Each state winner will be honored in a variety of statewide events and may receive further national honors.

"Thousands of farmers and ranchers are creatively using and protecting their resources," said Emmett Barker, president of the Equipment Manufacturers Institute, who chairs the Endowment. "As we near the 20th annual Earth Day observance this spring, these innovative agricultural conservationists truly are the Good Earth People. They show that good stewardship is good business."

John A. Krol, group vice president for Du Pont Agricultural Products, said: "Du Pont always has been committed to safety and environmental stewardship. As we extend our own commitment into the 1990's and beyond, we want to recognize others in the private sector who share our vision for environmental stewardship. This excellent awards program highlights those families who do the best job of producing safe food — safely."

The top conservation farmer or rancher in each state is selected each year by committees of farm, conservation, and government leaders. From these state winners, 10 national finalists are selected. They and their spouses receive an expense-paid trip to attend a national awards ceremony in the fall.

Three national winners — chosen from among the 10 finalists — receive a $1,000 cash award and a certificate at White House ceremonies in December.

National winners in the 1989 program were from Indiana, Kentucky, and Utah. The other finalists were from Colorado, Connecticut, Michigan, Mississippi, Ohio, South Carolina and South Dakota.

ASA Calls For Gov't Policy On Soybean Problem

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Illinois soybean farmer Ken Dalenberg was emphatic today in testimony calling on Congress to support a farm program that provides equitable income for soybeans and allows U.S. farmers to respond to price signals.

Dalenberg represented the American Soybean Association (ASA) in testimony before the House subcommittee on wheat, soybeans, and feed grains.

Flexibility alone without income support will not solve the U.S. "soybean problem," said Dalenberg.

"The U.S is in danger of losing its $11 billion a year soybean industry to South America," said Dalenberg. "If we don't make changes in the 1990 farm program, we will have lost a valuable opportunity to reverse U.S. acreage loss and discourage foreign competition."

USDA statistics show U.S. soybean production has decreased 17 percent in the last 10 years while foreign production increased 75 percent. For every U.S. soybean acre cut, competitors added 1.3 acres.

Dalenberg told the Subcommittee that current farm policy has encouraged foreign soybean production and is a contributing factor in the decline of U.S. soybean production. In addition, the loss of soybean acreage means a loss of jobs in the huge support industry that handles, processes, transports, and exports U.S. soybeans.

"Even when market prices indicate a shift to soybeans, the current farm program gives farmers more attractive returns on other crops," Delanberg said. He urged support of the ASA-proposed Graduated Equity Loan (G.E. Loan) Program which combines income protection and planting flexibility for all farmers.

"The G.E. Loan is designed to give farmers the freedom and support to respond to and compete in the world market," Delanberg said.

Conservation Efforts Honored

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Approximately 135 million of America's 140 million acres of highly erodible cropland are now covered by an approved compliance plan, according to Karl Reinhardt, conservation planning leader in the Soil Conservation Service's conservation planning division in Washington, DC.

Reinhardt and other SCS officials around the country say the planning phase of the government's conservation compliance campaign has been a big success.

The 1985 Farm Bill gives growers until 1995 to fully implement their conservation plans. But SCS conservationists are advising farmers to start carrying out their plans now.

Learn the ropes

Reinhardt pointed out a number of benefits of early plan implementation.

"First, it's always helpful to start a new system a few acres at a time to get comfortable with it," he said. "Also, starting now means the grower can get personal attention and technical assistance from the SCS. That could be especially helpful for farmers designing terraces and waterways.

"And, of course, implementing conservation plans now instead of in 1995 means we conserve that much more soil sooner," he said.

SCS field staff are available to help growers put their approved compliance plans into motion.

"We'll be out in the field this year making one-on-one visits with growers who have developed their plans," said Jim Ranum, SCS area resource conservationist in West Union, Iowa. "These visits will help ensure that both the SCS and the growers understand the individual plans and help get things rolling for the farmers."

Mastering the changes that are outlined in individual plans — such as chiseling residue instead of moldboard plowing, farming across the slope rather than up and down hills, or farming along the contour — takes some practice, said Ranum.

So do tasks like measuring residue.

"We've got a simple procedure growers can use to measure their residue levels with a 50-foot string, or a long tape," he said. "It's not tough to do, but it takes practice. And measuring residue now will help farmers figure out how much residue a particular practice or program leaves on the surface.

"You don't want to wait until 1995 to find out you have to change shanks, then try to guess how much surface residue the new ones will leave," he said.

Time for adjustments

What if you find out this year that your plan calls for more residue than you can reasonably expect to leave on the surface — or that you can't effectively control your weed problems with limited tillage?

Ranum emphasizes that compliance plans aren't carved in stone.

"If the farmer has some changes, we can sit down with him and revise his plan," he said.

Many growers still ask if they can use preplant incorporated (PPI) herbicides in their compliance plans. The PPI products have become popular for consistent control of annual grasses and tough weeds like shattercane and Johnsongrass. Some are afraid conservation compliance rules will force them to change to a less reliable weed control program.

"Not necessarily," said Ranum. "Conservation options for most growers are flexible. If a grower feels he can't leave as much surface residue as his original plan called for, simple adjustments — like farming along the contour or adding grass buffer strips — could allow him the extra latitude on residue while keeping the field in compliance. That will allow many growers fighting weeds like foxtail, shattercane, and Johnsongrass to continue their PPI herbicide programs without disqualifying themselves from government programs."

However, before any changes are made, the farmer needs to discuss those changes with the SCS to make sure the farm remains in compliance, Ranum said.

Breaking fields up into conservation treatment units, (CTUs), is another option many farmers may have overlooked in the rush to develop a compliance plan. By dividing a field into separate CTUs, Ranum said, growers can farm the better ground more intensively while planting the more highly erodible land to small grains or hay or setaside.

Straighten out bases

For growers whose compliance plans require them to rotate out of corn, Ranum suggests working with the ASCS to establish a solid base for the new crop, whether it is wheat, oats, or another commodity.

"It's hard to make a rapid transition to a whole different kind of crop," he said. "You've got different cultural practices to learn and a different base to work with. In order for your plan to be considered fully implemented, you'd have to get that all worked out before you plant in 1995."

Clean up weeds

Even with carefully planned compliance programs, some growers may find themselves limited to a no-till program on problem fields. Those farmers should consider mounting an all-out attack on tough weeds before their plans must be fully implemented, according to district conservationist Jane Wilmes in Pierce, Nebraska.

"If you've got major weed pressure, you can begin implementing your program gradually, which will give you the chance to use PPI herbicides for the next couple of years," she said.

"If you've got particularly erodible land and a big problem with a weed like shattercane, now is the time to take care of it," Wilmes said.

Dairy Industry Economics Outlined

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

MARION CENTER (Indiana Co.) — Pennsylvania dairy farmers will receive an average of about 25 cents to 50 cents less per hundredweight for their milk in 1990 than they did in 1989, if the predictions of one Penn State milk marketing specialist are correct.

Dr. Robert Yonkers, an assistant professor of agriculture economics at Penn State University told about 40 Indiana County farmers at the Marion Center High School auditorium Thursday, Feb. 15, that the price for milk started out fairly high in January. But he predicted the price will now start falling, bottom out at about $11 in July, then climb to around $13 by the end of 1990.

Dr. Yonkers told the dairymen milk prices in Pennsylvania averaged about $13.50 per hundredweight in 1989, but will probably only average about $13 to $13.25 in 1990.

And he added his predictions are not as pessimistic as some he has seen from other economists.

At the meeting, sponsored by the Indiana County Cooperative Extension, Dr. Yonkers said in 1988 and 1989, the Pennsylvania all-milk price was above the U.S. all-milk price.

"Dairymen are doing pretty well relative to what the government thinks the support price should be," he said.

Among the reasons he listed for relatively high milk prices in recent months are a lower output per cow; poor quality forage in some areas: good consumer demand; and the fact the U.S. government has retained few stocks of cheese and non-fat dry milk.

But prices have generally been falling since their peak in the autumn of 1988 after the severe drought, he said.

Dr. Yonkers also gave the farmers his list of predictions on the dairy industry for the first years of the 1990s:

—Nationally, the number of cows will decline as productivity per cow increases.

—Total milk production will increase.

—The cost of producing milk will decline.

—Milk prices will decline.

—The trend toward fewer but larger dairy farms will continue.

In his last prediction, Dr. Yonkers said the phrase "will continue" should be emphasized. During the 1980s, he said, USDA estimated America may have lost one-third of all its dairy farms.

In a review of government programs designed to ensure an adequate supply of milk and provide market stability, Dr. Yonkers discussed the Federal Price Support Program, federal marketing orders, voluntary supply management, the Milk Diversion Program and the Dairy Termination Program.

As an example of the government's interaction with the dairy industry, Dr. Yonkers reminded the farmers that a 6.3 cent per hundredweight deduction was made from their January milk checks. The deduction was the dairy farmers' one-time contribution to helping reduce the federal government's national debt.

And as an example of how even small-farm operators should keep abreast of national dairy industry trends, Dr. Yonkers noted the current glut of butterfat on the market. In light of that, he said, when selecting breeding stock, farmers should perhaps be looking for sires based on protein rather than butterfat production.

One part of Dr. Yonkers' presentation which the Indiana County farmers especially seemed to enjoy was his "Dairy Farmer Quiz," an exercise designed to show how knowledgeable dairymen are about changes in their industry, and often how little consumers know about the diary products they buy.

Here is a sampling of questions from the quiz, with answers and comments from Dr. Yonkers. See how well you do.

QUESTIONS:

1. Name the top five dairy states based on total milk production.

2. What states have increased milk production the most in actual pounds in the 1980s?

3. What percent of total U.S. milk production does Pennsylvania produce?

4. U.S. per person consumption of all dairy products has increased every year since the National Dairy Promotion and Research 15-cent/cwt checkoff began in 1984. True or false?

5. In the U.S., is consumption per person of fluid milk up or down in the last 10 years?

6. Peak milk consumption in Pennsylvania usually occurs during which months?
   (a) January-March
   (b) April-June
   (c) July-September
   (d) October-December

7. According to a Penn State telephone survey of 500 adults who consume milk regularly, what is their major reason for consuming dairy products?
   (a) taste
   (b) price
   (c) habits
   (d) health
   (e) no substitute products

8. Among Pennsylvania adults who are decreasing their milk consumption or have alerady stopped drinking milk, what is their major reason?
   (a) taste
   (b) price
   (c) habits
   (d) health
   (e) substitute products

9. A 1987 study asked 1,500 adults nationwide, "Retail whole milk contains what percentage butterfat?" What was their average response?

10. The same study asked those adults, "Retail skim milk contains what percentage butterfat?" What was their average response?

ANSWERS:

1. Top milk producing states in 1989, in billions of pounds, were: Wisconsin 24.9; Californis 19.1; New York 11.3; Minnesota 10.1; and Pennsylvania 10.

2. California was tops, increasing its yearly milk production by 6.1 billion pounds between 1979 and 1988. Wisconsin and Pennsylvania rounded out the top three. Milk production is increasing fastest in states not usually thought of as big milk producers, Dr. Yonkers said. (The two states which increased their milk production the

4-H Farm Credit Awards Presented

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Keystone Farm Credit continued its tradition of honoring outstanding achievement to junior and senior 4-H members who excelled in their livestock project work over the past year.

Glen Wismer and Dean Shollenberger of Farm Credit in Silverdale presented trophies to the 4-H members at the Montgomery County extension board annual meeting held here at the 4-H Center.

In the rabbit category, Todd Becker (junior) and Eric Becker (senior), both of Norristown, took top honors. Jayne Landis of Telford won the junior division in market swine. Keeping the dairy goat winnings in the family were Amy Plummer (junior) and Paul Plummer (senior) of Chalfont. The dairy cow divisions were also won by a brother/sister team from Bechtelsville, Amy Wolfgang (senior) and Seth Wolfgang (junior).

Rounding out the competition were the winners in the sheep division, Andy Kumpf (senior) and Susan Truehart (junior), both of Norristown. In addition to receiving their own trophy, the members will have their names engraved on a permanent plaque in the display case at the 4-H Center.

Nancy Kadwill, county agent, expressed appreciation to Keystone Farm Credit for their support over the years and thanked them for recognizing the positive efforts of today's young people.

The Montgomery County 4-H programs are open to all boys and girls ages 8-19. There are many projects and clubs for non-animals related areas such as model rockets, ceramics, crafts, sewing, gardening, shooting sports, public speaking, and a host of other interest areas.

Dairy Industry Economics

most as a percentage of their 1980 production were Alaska and New Mexico.)

3. 7 percent.

4. This is actually a trick question, according to Dr. Yonkers. The answer was true until 1989. But between January and November 1989, per capita consumption actually declined because of population increases.

5. Down about 20 pounds per person per year in the past 10 years, although it has been up in the past five years.

6. October through December, even though peak production occurs April through June. It's another inherent imbalance of the industry, Dr. Yonkers said.

7. Health aspects, Dr. Yonkers said, especially for milk's calcium and protein content.

8. The same answer — health aspects — except this time for negative reasons such as fat, calories and cholesterol. These two answers explain why one advertising campaign cannot work for all consumers, Dr. Yonkers said.

9. Although the actual average is about 3.25 percent, Dr. Yonkers said the average response from those surveyed was 15 percent.

10. Again most consumers missed the mark. Although the legal standard is less than 1 percent, most people surveyed thought it was considerably more than 1 percent. "Consumers need a lot of educating about dairy products," Dr. Yonkers concluded.

Protects itself in your rocky fields!

Case International 496 Cushion Gang Disk Harrow

You need all the protection you can get for your disk harrow in rock- and root-infested ground. The Case International 496 Cushion Gang Disk Harrow is your answer. It soaks up shock loads with exclusive C-shaped double-spring steel bearing standards. The gangs flex and float over obstructions. This cushioned "give" protects your harrow while providing uniform depth control over your entire field, and across the full width of cut.

- Folding wing sizes from 18′ to 32′ with 7½″ or 9″ spacing.
- Disk blades last up to 20% longer than ordinary blades due to tough Earth Metal® steel.
- Level disking with synchronized master and slave hydraulic cylinders.

See the 496 Cushion Gang Disks with their tougher blades now!

Get the power to punch through crop residue with encapsulated Bullet® herbicide. Encapsulation protects the firepower of Bullet from volatilizing in dry weather and from movement out of the weed germination zone in wet weather. It also makes Bullet more resistant to microbial breakdown than ordinary herbicides.*

for tough weed control with great crop tolerance.

Bullet stops labeled grasses and broadleaves dead in their tracks. . . but it's also very gentle on young corn. And since it works through crop residue, Bullet can help you implement effective conservation practices without compromising on control.
